LA PLATA HOLDS 6 'BLACK SHIRT' GANG SUSPECTS

Hearing Set Tomorrow on Robbery and Hold-up Charges.

ONE TO FACE COURT TODAY IN CAR THEFT

Three of Men Are Discovered in Barn Near Lothier; More Arrests Due.

The reign of terror, which for nearly two months held nearby Maryland counties in its grip, was believed ended yesterday with six men, who authorities "have good reasons" to believe are members of the dreaded "Black Shirt" gang of southern Maryland, under arrest.

One of the men, arrested several days ago following a gun battle near Conowingo Dam, near the Pennsylvania line, gave information that yesterday led to the arrest of three others in a barn near Lothier, Md. A sheriff's posse, led by Sheriff R. L. Cooksey, of Charles County, members of the State police and a small band of citizens, captured the men without a struggle.

Seized After Gun Fight.

Blaine Swann, 20, arrested following a gun battle last week, is said to have named his cousin, Preston Swann, 35, as leader of the gang. Preston Swann and Herman Meredith were captured yesterday and taken to the La Plata, Md., jail.

Secret activities carried on by police had formerly netted the arrest of Griffith Swann and Frank Grason. All six will be given a hearing tomorrow on the holdup and robbery charges, while Preston Swann faces a hearing today on charges of using a stolen automobile.

Sheriff Cooksey said last night he had "conclusive proof" that the men were responsible for the series of depredations throughout St. Marys and adjoining counties.

More Arrests Expected.

Although the six men are colored—and victims of the robberies described their assailants as white—Sheriff Cooksey declared his prisoners "are light-skinned and could easily be taken for white men in the dark."

The sheriff said that he expected to arrest two more suspects within a few days. Residents of the sections terrorized by the gang will be given an opportunity to view the suspects tomorrow.

Einstein Will Present Unified Theory Today

Berlin, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—The Jewish Telegraph Agency reports that tomorrow Prof. Albert Einstein will present to the Prussian Academy of Sciences a new paper setting forth conclusions reached as a result of his researches of the last year.

The paper is understood to deal with the unification of his relativity theory and his new field theory.

Will L. Comfort, Author, Is Dead

Investigation Is Ordered by Coroner Following Sudden Death.

Los Angeles, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—Will Levington Comfort, 54, noted American novelist and short-story writer, died suddenly in a hospital tonight under circumstances that led the coroner to order an investigation.

Comfort was admitted to Monte Sano Hospital in Glendale late this evening and died within ten minutes. Cause of his death was not immediately determined, and Dr. Curtis Brigham asked the coroner to take charge. Coroner's deputies said an autopsy will be performed tomorrow to determine the cause of his death.

Mr. Comfort served in the Fifth United States Calvary during the Spanish-American War in 1898. He served as a war correspondent in the Philippine Islands, China, Russia and Japan for newspaper syndicates.

He was the author of many novels and short stories. Among the best known are "Fate Knocks at the Door," "Midstream," and "Down Among Men."

Dropping of Reynolds Charges to Be Delayed

Winston-Salem, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Decision as to whether a nolle prosse is to be taken in the case of Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds and Albert Walker, charged with the murder of Smith Reynolds, young millionaire aviator and sportsman, will not be made until all evidence in the case has been thoroughly investigated, Solicitor Carlisle Higgins said here tonight.

Receiver Is Ordered In Insurance Tangle

HERBERT L. DAVIS.

Announcement that a permanent receiver would be appointed for the Great National Insurance Co., capitalized for more than $1,000,000, was made yesterday by Justice Joseph W. Cox in District Supreme Court at the conclusion of hearings involving the solvency of the company. The receiver, when named, will take over all the assets of the company and distribute them to persons entitled to share in such distribution.

The Great National Insurance Co. was originally incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia, having for its purpose the issuing of policies on various kinds of fire and automobile risks.

Thereafter, according to testimony offered at the hearings, the National Fidelity Insurance Co. of Baltimore was merged with the Great National Insurance Co. and offices of the company were transferred to Baltimore and in December, 1931, again moved to Newark, N. J.

Testimony was offered tending to show that certain persons in Baltimore, not officers or directors of the company, actually directed and dominated the company and that as a result of such direction and domination, the assets of the company were converted into stocks of certain corporations, said to be controlled by these same men, and said to be of doubtful value. Testimony was offered tending to show these stocks had no market value.

The court's attention was invited

'JAFSIE' SAYS HE GOT RECEIPT ON RANSOM

Declares Paper Was Given to Lindbergh; Clears Gem Thief as Suspect.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh kidnaping case, revealed today in conversation with Arthur Barry, jewel thief and escaped convict, that he had been handed a receipt for the $50,000 ransom money he gave to a man outside of a Bronx Cemetery.

Word of this revelation, however, was followed by a statement from Trenton by Capt. J. J. Lamb, of the State police, who said Dr. Condon must have been mistaken in talking of a receipt, as no receipt had been given. He added that the doctor probably was referring to a note containing certain directions, the nature of which he would not reveal.

Dr. Condon talked to Barry at police headquarters after he had failed to identify him as the man to whom he handed the ransom money. Barry stood in line with six detectives for the inspection.

"None of those men was the one," Dr. Condon said.

At his request, he was permitted by Deputy Frank A. Brex to talk to Barry.

"You are not the man, nor do you resemble the man to whom I handed $50,000 of Col. Lindbergh's money and you knew, Barry, the papers said I tossed this money over a cemetery wall, but that is not so. I handed it to a man personally and obtained a

Oslo, Norway, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—The Russian steamer Tovarish Stalin, with 126 passengers, some of them women, ran aground in the night, off the West Coast of Spitzbergen en route from Tromsoe to the Russian coal mines in the Spitzbergen Islands.

She is in a dangerous position. The salvage steamer Jason is hurrying to her aid, but the trip probably will take two days.

INQUEST TOMORROW IN REPORTER'S DEATH

No Evidences of Foul Play Uncovered in Shooting of James Bradley.

No evidence of foul play has been uncovered by members of the homicide squad in the death of James B. Bradley, 24, Prince Georges County reporter for the Washington Times, who was found with a bullet wound through his head early yesterday, following a party at his apartment at 2627 Adams Mill road. Although the bullet passed through his head and embedded itself in his arm, Bradley lived for several hours at the Emergency Hospital.

One of the three youths who shared the apartment with him discovered Bradley lying on a bed in the apartment, and thinking him to be asleep, attempted to waken him. Discovering the reporter's condition, he summoned the Emergency Hospital ambulance.

The three roommates were held for questioning but later released to appear at the inquest, which is set for 11 a. m. tomorrow. The youths gave their names as Robert L. Hamilton, 24; James H. Wells, 23, and Joseph K. Simmons, 22. Two girls, Gertrude Stevens, 24, of 1812 North Capitol street, and Emma Stevens, 22, of 1731 Connecticut avenue, were also quizzed by police. The girls were said to have been present at the party and had been taken home by Bradley's roommates.

A report that a bootlegger delivered two pints of gin to the house after the girls left was being investigated.

Detectives said that a .38 caliber gun found beside the wounded youth belonged to Bradley. It was usually kept in a drawer in the bedroom of the apartment.

The absence of powder marks and lack of a motive for suicide were under investigation to uncover any indications of murder. Friends of the dead youth said that he seemed in good spirits during the party, but that he may have been worried over financial matters.

An autopsy will be performed this morning to determine the exact course of the bullet.

New Jersey, Aroused, Bars Trucks From Pennsylvania

Order Issued in Reprisal for Neighbor's Enforcement of New Law Requiring Registration in State of For-Hire Vehicles.

Philadelphia, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Hundreds of Pennsylvania motor trucks laden with tons of perishable products were tied up tonight at New Jersey border points as that State retaliated against Pennsylvania's revocation of the reciprocal truck registration agreement.

New Jersey officials declared there will be no truce in their order barring all Pennsylvania trucks which do not bear New Jersey licenses. The order was issued in reprisal for Pennsylvania's enforcement of a new law requiring all foreign trucks carrying property into this State for hire on more than 15 days a year to be registered here. Previously, inter-State truck traffic has not been hampered.

New Jersey has no such law, and, in retaliation, today was turning all Pennsylvania trucks back into the State, while Pennsylvania was stopping only the common carriers.

Complaints from truck owners poured in to the capitol at Harrisburg and Pennsylvania threatened to take similar action against New Jersey trucks if the order to stop the trucks was not rescinded. The New Jersey order was not rescinded and there matters rested tonight.

ACCORD ON SPANISH COLONIES IS DENIED

Student Seriously Injured as Protest Demonstrations Are Renewed.

Madrid, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—It was revealed in official circles today that a military-conservative uprising during the three-day visit of Premier Edouard Herriot of France, which ended tonight, was frustrated by authorities.

Several arrests were expected to follow upon the departure of the French premier on the night train for the border. The uprising, it was said, was planned for tonight or last night, but was prevented when officials learned details of the plot in time.

Paris-bent travelers were loud in protests today when they learned the government had monopolized the regular night Paris express for the Herriot party.

Disarmament Discussed.

Foreign Minister Luis de Zulueta said he had discussed "a practical form" of Franco-Spanish collaboration and mutual problems of the two nations along general lines with M. Herriot. He said the French premier explained the disarmament program France is presenting at the Geneva conference this month.

M. Herriot made a similar explanation of his discussions here, saying he told the foreign minister the French ideas concerning the French problems of peace and disarmament. He denied that France and Spain planned collaboration in the Spanish colony of Rio de Oro on the western coast of Africa.

(Berlin newspapers were concerned today with a report that France desires rights of passage through Rio de Oro, an important base for air service for South America, which Germany has been pioneering in the flights of the Graf Zeppelin.)

Elaborate Precautions.

It was believed generally the Herriot party was occupying the whole train leaving tonight for the border to avoid possible undesirable incidents. The government has taken elaborate precautions during M. Herriot's visit here, although he pledged his word there were no hidden motives for his trip. He described it as purely a friendly gesture.

Sporadic altercations occurred again today at university classes here as a result of disputes over M. Herriot's visit and one student was seriously injured, but there were no arrests.

The French premier made the short round trip today to the famous show places of Toledo, the city of Moorish and early Gothic art treasures. He was guest at the home there of Dr. Gregorio Maranon, former Spanish ambassador to France. Dr. Maranon will return with M. Herriot to Paris, where the Spaniard is to receive an honorary degree at the University of Paris.

Messenger Missing With Bank Deposit

Police were looking last night for Raymond Howard, 25, colored, a Federal Security & Mortgage Co. messenger, 1522 K street northwest, who disappeared yesterday afternoon with $4,258.30 in cash and securities, which he had been given to deposit. Officers of the company told police the deposit included $711.90 in cash and a $3,000 certified check.

Howard is said to have been a trusted employe. Police believe he went home after leaving with the deposit. His mother said he came home during the afternoon and left.

Detective Sergts. Arthur Fihelly and Howard F. Ogle have been assigned to the case.

U. S. IS LINKED IN PARIS PLAN TO BLOCK WAR

Herriot's Party Session Will Consider New Arms Proposal.

PROJECT WOULD BAR HELP TO AGGRESSOR

Abandonment of Rights of Neutrality and Liberty of Seas Sought.

Paris, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—A consultative antiwar pact with the United States is suggested in the new arms plan which France will present at Geneva on Friday, says a report on foreign affairs to be submitted tomorrow to a convention of Premier Herriot's Radical-Socialist party.

The plan also envisages the creation of a general military staff to function when the peace of continental Europe is threatened, official French quarters said today.

This staff would have a fixed number of trained soldiers at its disposal. The men would be assigned to the general staff by the various continental countries who agree to the plan.

Rights of Neutrality.

The Radical-Socialist report on foreign affairs, which will be presented to the party convention at Toulouse by Francoise de Tesan, vice chairman of the foreign affairs committee of the Chamber of Deputies, and one of Herriot's closest political advisers, confirmed previous statements that the French arms plan attempts to define an "aggressor nation."

The project also calls for the abandonment of the rights of neutrality and says, "If the United States accepts the Capper resolution to amend the Kellogg pact, a great step toward the problem of the liberty of the seas will have been achieved."

(Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, introduced a resolution in the Senate last year designed to supplement the Kellogg pact by forbidding shipments of arms to violators of the pact and stopping trade and financial agreements with violators.)

Hope for U. S. Cooperation.

An official spokesman stated, however, that the United States would not be asked under the plan to promise anything in advance, but the French hope that America would not interfere in the functioning of the European peace machine and would collaborate the maintenance of peace, or at least refrain from helping an aggressor.

The spokesman said the French plan offers Germany equality of rights and that the size of the armies of continental countries would be subject to negotiations based on the considerations of national safety.

Premier Herriot will stop at Toulouse on his way back from Spain to address the convention. In view of the strong hold which the Radical-Socialist party now has in Parliament, this convention is regarded by political leaders as highly important.

Barbados Ship Seized With $200,000 in Rum

Woods Hole, Mass., Nov. 2 (A.P.). The motorship, Amacitia, out of Bridgetown, Barbados, with its crew of eleven men and a $200,000 cargo of liquor, was seized by the Coast Guardsmen today in New Bedford Harbor. Two power boats carrying fifteen men were captured as they approached the Amacitia.

Coast Guard headquarters said the Amacitia was sighted running without lights.

Special Texas Session Called on Oil Regulation

Austin, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Gov. R. S. Sterling late today issued a proclamation convening the Texas Legislature in extraordinary session at noon tomorrow to enact laws to strengthen the oil and gas conservation statutes and give the Texas Railroad Commission additional authority to regulate the production of oil.

HOOVER CHARGES FAILURE OF FOES TO MEET CRISIS; SMITH HITS G. O. P. TACTICS

Former Governor Sees Effort to Scare Voters.

Says Gov. Roosevelt Holds Solution to Problems.

Music Hall, Troy, N. Y., Nov. 2 (A. P.).—Alfred E. Smith declared tonight that the solution of American problems lies in the election of the Roosevelt-Garner ticket, and that President Hoover is "talking to scare the people."

"Now, I never had any doubt about the Democratic cause," he said in a booming voice, "and I never entertained for a moment a doubt about the success of the Democratic ticket, but if perchance some doubt did creep into my mind, it was thoroughly dispelled when I listened to President Hoover at Madison Square Garden."

Each mention of Gov. Roosevelt's name brought prolonged cheers from a capacity crowd inside the hall, estimated by police at 1,700, and an even larger crowd in the street outside, listening to the speech by way of amplifiers and waiting for a glimpse of their favorite in the 1928 campaign.

Charges Failure of Regime.

"What hope is there from an administration that has dismally failed and will not admit it?" Smith asked as he leaned forward and pointed his hand toward the back of his audience.

"What chance is there of getting a President to acknowledge that he was in error? He is going to back up everything he did to the last ditch, no matter how wrong it may be, and what chance is there of changing his mind?

"What chance is there of impressing on the Republican majority in the Congress of the United States that for four years back they have been entirely in error; that they have retraced their steps; that they must take another turn and admit their own weakness?

Says Democrats Hold Hope.

"There is no chance of doing that, and we know it will never be done. Therefore, the hope for the solution of all these problems lies in the election of Roosevelt and Garner and a Democratic Congress."

Much of the first part of Smith's

Dog Battles Bull; Saving Two Lives

Scraps' Gameness Enables Farm Hands to Rescue Prostrate Men.

Kansas City, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Scraps is a bulldog with a fighting heart and a neighborly instinct, to both of which qualities J. M. Harris and George Shiner probably owe their lives.

Shiner, gardener at the farm of A. C. Jobes, banker, was knocked down by a blooded guernsey bull in a pasture late today and his chest crushed. Harris, farm manager, attempted his rescue. He, too, was knocked down.

Other employes were trying to drive the bull away with pitchforks, when Scraps appeared from across the road.

The dog rushed the bull and bit it on the nose. The bull turned on Scraps, as the rescuers removed the two injured men. Scraps eluded the bull after a chase across the pasture and got home safely.

ACCUSED

PROTEST IS ENTERED IN RICHEY 'THREATS'

Hoover Aid Cursed Him for Supporting Roosevelt, Marrinan Says.

Cleveland, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Alexander F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, in a telegram to President Hoover today, protested against "threats" he said were made against John Marrinan by Lawrence Richey, a member of the President's secretarial staff. The "threats," Whitney said, were revealed in a letter he received from Marrinan, who was Mr. Hoover's secretary when the President was secretary of commerce.

Whitney's message, a copy of which was made public here, said:

"Mr. John Marrinan, who served as your secretary for some time while you were Secretary of Commerce, advises me in a letter dated November 1 that Secretary Lawrence Richey called him on the telephone about the accuracy of the published report that Mr. Marrinan would support Gov. Roosevelt for the Presidency and that when Marrinan verified the report, Secretary Richey proceeded to abuse him with a line of profanity which exceeded anything he had ever heard.

"Further, that Secretary Richey declared his intention to tell the world about Marrinan, threatened to have him placed in jail and concluded by saying that, win or lose, he would get him before March 4.

"We have heard considerable comments about the alleged threats that have been made by some big industrialists as to what would happen if their employes failed to support you for President, but we did not be-

35 Gang Chiefs Caught In Huge Extortion Plot

Chicago, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Thirty-five of gangdom's leaders and lesser lights, including several close associates of the imprisoned "Scarface" Al Capone, had been rounded up tonight by police for questioning in a reputed plot to extort huge sums from contractors and other business men.

Releases on bond after bookings on disorderly conduct charges were obtained by several, six were freed on habeas corpus writs, but ten of the more or less "big shots" were held for further investigation.

Discloses Plan to Be in California Election Day.

Reiterates Wet Stand to Quiet Rumors of Change.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Resuming his vigorous campaign attack upon Gov. Roosevelt's economic policies, President Hoover last night broadcast the charge that "Our opponents at no time have proposed a single constructive measure to meet this emergency."

Addressing the Pacific Coast States over a specially arranged long-distance telephone broadcast, the President also repeated the declaration made at Madison Square Garden last Monday that the new policies offered by the Democratic party in the present campaign "are destructive in character, both in the short and long view of our Nation." At another point he alluded to the "shallow hypocricy of Democratic pretentions" on various tariff schedules, and he again challenged the legislative record of the Democratic House of Representatives in the last session of Congress.

Mr. Hoover spoke before the annual meeting of the California Society of Washington, at the Carlton Hotel. His words were transmitted by telephone to Los Angeles, where they were broadcast over a Pacific Coast network to Washington, Oregon and California.

To Vote in Palo Alto.

During the course of his extended address the President announced his determination to return to his home at Palo Alto next Tuesday in time to vote.

Leaving Washington late this afternoon, he will campaign through Indiana and Illinois tomorrow, and through Wisconsin and Minnesota Saturday. After a major address at St. Paul Saturday night, he will hasten to California, "not for the purpose of carrying on a political campaign amongst my neighbors, who are my friends, but to satisfy that proper instinct inherent in every American to cast his vote amongst his neighbors at his own home."

Reiterates Wet Stand.

Earlier in the evening, Mr. Hoover advised Edward C. Stokes, chairman of the New Jersey Republican campaign committee, that he had not changed his attitude toward prohibition since his address accepting the renomination. Stokes had wired the President that rumors of a change in his attitude were being circulated and asked authority to deny them.

In his acceptance speech, Mr. Hoover said that "in order to remedy present evils a change is necessary." He suggested that each State be allowed to handle the liquor problem as it saw fit with the Federal Government protecting States that chose to bar intoxicating beverages.

Although the final schedule of the presidential special beyond St. Paul has not been worked out, time has been allowed for a brief stop in the

Two Chicago Officials Sail to Return Insull

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Charles A. Bellows and Andrew J. Vlachos, assistant State's attorneys of Chicago, sailed for Europe today to seek the return of Samuel Insull, public utilities magnate now in Greece.

Bellows and Vlachos, who arrived this morning from Washington, where they had been in conference with Government authorities, refused to say whether they had papers providing for Insull's return, but said they would not have undertaken the voyage unless they could return with him.

Live Wire Kills 60 Rebels During Attack in Manchuria

30 More Are Slain in Three-Hour Battle as Japanese Reinforcements Rout Insurgents; Headquarters of Gen. Pu Bombed From Air.

Mukden, Manchuria (Thursday), Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Sixty insurgent soldiers were killed today by an electrically charged wire used as part of the defenses of the Penghuangcheng station on the Mukden-Antung Railway, the Rengo (Japanese) News Agency reported from Antung.

The mass electrocution took place during an insurgent attack on the garrison maintained by the Japanese and Manchukuo troops.

After a three-hour battle Japanese reinforcements routed the attackers, of whom 30 more were killed in action.

Meanwhile there was fighting on another front. Cooperating with a vigorous anti-insurgent offensive launched by Maj. Gen. Hideo Hiramatsu's brigade along the Taitsihar-Koshan Railway in northern Manchuria, a Japanese air squadron bombed the Paichuan headquarters of Gen. Pu Ping-Shan. Gen. Pu, in command of 5,000 Manchukuo troops, has revolted against the government of Henry Pu-Yi.

Numerous bombs were dropped on the rebel general's garrison, and his troops were scattered.

The planes also dropped hand bills along the railway threatening drastic punishment unless all rebels returned immediately to the command of the Manchukuo government.

Japanese military authorities declared that several insurgent leaders, frightened by the havoc wrought by Japanese bombers at Paichuan, offered to surrender.

The Mukden-Antung Railway runs southeast from Mukden to the border of Korea. For the most part this section of Manchuria has been fairly quiet recently, most of the opposition to the Japanese sponsored State of Manchukuo being in the north and northwest.

FUND RACKETEERING LAID TO DEMOCRATS

Republicans Declare State Managers Have Adopted Farley Methods.

(Associated Press.)

The Republican national committee last night issued a statement which said "racketeering methods of the Democratic national committee in its drive for political funds * * * seem to have been adopted by the State organizations."

The statement added:

"The finance committee of Oklahoma, set up by the Democratic national campaign committee and headed by L. B. Jackson, of Tulsa, has written to bankers in Oklahoma, holding out to them the promise that if the Roosevelt-Garner ticket wins Oklahoma bankers will profit through the transfer to Oklahoma of more than $150,000,000 belonging to Indian tribes and held in Federal receiverships and now 'deposited in Eastern banks.'"

The Republican statement went on to say:

"In adopting this method of seeking campaign funds, through implied promises of performances by a Democratic administration, this Oklahoma committee was following the lead of the Democratic national campaign committee finance division, which has written letters to manufacturers, shipbuilders, importers and other groups holding out promises of pecuniary gain to them through the operations of a Democratic administration, in the event Franklin D. Roosevelt should be elected President.

Depression Is Laid To G.O.P. by Wright

State Senator, in Cherrydale Speech, Says Roosevelt Real Progressive.

Speaking at a Democratic mass meeting in Cherrydale, Va., State Senator William A. Wright declared last night that "the one issue before the voters is whether they are willing to continue the present administration, which had been a large contributor to the present economic depression, or whether they want instead the party with a progressive leader like Franklin D. Roosevelt."

The speaker assailed the Hawley-Smoot tariff law, saying it had caused the destruction of foreign trade and the subsequent demoralization of American industry and agriculture.

The meeting, which was held in the auditorium of Fireman's Hall, also was addressed briefly by Mrs. Alma Partridge, Washington attorney, and Hugh Reid, Virginia delegate from Arlington County.

Stimson Is Releected To Pan-American Post

Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson was reelected chairman of the governing board of the Pan-American Union yesterday by a unanimous vote of the members. Dr. Adrian Recinos, Minister of Guatemala, was elected vice chairman. They will serve one year.

Jorge Triana, of Colombia, was appointed a member of the Pan-American Railway committee to succeed Fred Lavis, of the United States, who resigned. John Briano, of Argentina, is chairman. Recognition of the one hundredth anniversary of the death of Jose Matias Delgado, national hero of Salvador, November 12, was given in resolutions.

Daniel Willard Holds Conference With Newton

(Associated Press.)

Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, yesterday conferred with Walter H. Newton, one of President Hoover's secretaries, concerning railroad matters on which, he said, he had "had correspondence with the White House."

Willard smilingly told newspapermen there was "no news" connected with his visit, since his conference "did not in any way concern the political campaign."

Capitol Picketing Right to Be Urged

(Associated Press.)

Joseph North of the International Labor Defense in a statement last night said he would confer with Capitol police today about a request for permission to picket Capitol grounds Monday in behalf of the Negroes convicted in the Scottsboro assault cases.

A letter was sent yesterday to Capt. Stephen Gnash, of the Capitol police, North said, asking that the International Labor Defense be allowed to station pickets.

Capt. Gnash said to newspapermen: "I have granted North an audience tomorrow and it depends on what he says, whether there will be any picketing or not. I will hear what he has to say and then make known what I'll do."

receipt which is now in Col. Lindbergh's possession."

Dr. Condon then asked Barry if he ever thought of his mother, and asked him to make a promise he would pray every night at 10 o'clock for Jafsie's success in finding the kidnapers or at least those who got the ransom money.

"I won't at 10, but I will at 11," Barry said.

"That's all right," said Dr. Condon. "And I'll pray for you every night at 11 o'clock."

At Trenton Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf said the State police investigation of Barry has ended. He said Barry's handwriting had been checked with the ransom note by handwriting experts and that they showed "absolutely no similarity."

Chief Brex, at Newark police headquarters, said Barry has agreed to waive extradition and that the New York State authorities will be notified they can have Barry for return to Auburn Prison, from which he escaped in 1929. He was captured ten days ago in a hideout near Andover, Sussex County.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

(Associated Press.)

The following is the text of President Hoover's address transmitted across the country last night and broadcast to political rallies in California and other Pacific Coast States:

I am speaking tonight to our California Association in this city and to my fellow Californians and my friends in Oregon and Washington over the telephone and radio.

I am speaking tonight with no feeling of being removed or apart from the people at home in our own States. There is no separation of time or distance which the longing of the heart and mind can not span between those whose common experience in daily living, fundamental aspirations and ideals give common sympathy and common understanding.

The telephone and the radio which convey my voice to you across the continent are not quicker in their errand than is the spirit which prompts the message they bring to you.

It is almost 48 years since I came, as a boy, to Oregon where, under the tender care of my uncle, I spent seven years amid the glories of the Willamette Valley and it was there that I began to earn my own living. Still a boy, I, 40 years ago, came to California in search of an engineering education, with little means beyond the savings I had made. That opportunity was made possible for me by a citizen of California in the endowment of Stanford University free of tuition.

After having worked in the mines of California with my own hands, through the same gentle kindliness of another great citizen of California, I was started on my professional career. A great chance came to me through the world leadership California had attained in the mining industry and I participated in responding to the demand of foreign countries for the training and skill that California had developed in that profession. I have never gone so far away, nor remained so long, except during the Great War and the Presidency, that the homing instinct has not carried me back every year to sink more deeply and more firmly the roots of my being in the fertile soil of California's spiritual and cultural life.

Cherishes California As Home State.

During the four years of the Great War I represented the United States in great enterprises which brought credit and distinction to our country and to my State. But I was deprived during those years of returning to my home. Fearful that my sons should grow up without that imprint of California, that they might fall in touch with their own people, they, with their mother, spent a large part of that period in our California home, to be educated there in the prime school of democracy—our public schools.

After the war we came home with the hope and long-treasured enterprise of every normal American family of building a new house. I am not one of those Californians whose heart needs the awakening influence of absence to quicken his appreciation of the State of his birth or adoption. When sooner or later the time arrives which permits me to do so, I propose to return to my home in Palo Alto to live with my fellow Californians.

Elevated to the Presidency of the United States as a son of California, it has been my task to contend with the greatest peace-time disaster which has ever come to the American people. That crisis has extended over every hour and every day for the whole of the last two years. It has not so far permitted me to be away from the nerve center of the Nation, the headquarters of a great battle, a distance of more than a night's journey.

Our family has each year made fond plans for return to spend a summer at our own home for normal change and relief from work, but new crises and new emergencies have compelled me to remain at the Capital of the Nation. The improved situation in the country affords me the deep satisfaction of coming home to vote, not for the purpose of carrying on a political campaign among my neighbors, who are my friends, but to satisfy that proper instinct inherent in every American to cast his vote among his neighbors at his own home. I trust I may not be prevented from exercising this privilege.

My friends, in addressing you tonight, as a Californian I am asking you for support in this contest because, in the outcome of this fight for the Republican party, the people of the State of California have a great stake. I am addressing the people of Oregon and Washington because they, too, might be faced with the sacrifices of their most vital interest.

Claims of Opponents Are Viewed Lightly.

No more serious moment has ever brought the people of California and myself together in counsel as friends and neighbors than that which challenges us now. California has been honored by the Nation with its leadership during a period even more dangerous than a great war. I do not take seriously the claims of our opponents, however loudly voiced, that California will contribute to the responsibility of interrupting that leadership to the Nation which California has itself provided.

I do not need to remind Californians of the stages by which this crisis developed. While our opponents lay it largely to the mania of speculation, which indeed did contribute, all Californians know the ease with which our own State has time and again recuperated from such reverses by a short wait for the solid forces of growth to catch up with the over-advancement and overdevelopment of hope and enterprise.

Our opponents further claim that this great calamity was also due to increases in the tariff. Pacific Coast States can scarcely agree to this idea, because they themselves were among the largest beneficiaries from these increases.

The Democratic candidate stated at Seattle:

"When this tariff was passed with its outrageous rates, these laws started us on the road where we now find ourselves and that is the road of ruin."

He further states:

"Here on the Pacific Coast it has had a destructive effect in our Oriental trade."

He repeated at Sacramento:

"I have called immediate attention to the tariff that has done so much to destroy foreign trade by making foreign trade virtually impossible. I called for consideration of means by which trade with the Orient, which has so largely been destroyed, may be restored."

In the face of the facts no one has a right to broadcast such statements blaming the people of the Pacific Coast. I may mention after that tariff bill was passed our exports to China increased from $80,000,000 in the fiscal year 1931 to $93,000,000 in the fiscal year 1932; exports to Japan increased from $146,000,000 in the fiscal year 1931 to $240,000,000 in the fiscal year 1932.

Economic Collapse Of 30 Nations Cited.

And even this is not the whole story, for if we were to analyze the effect of the decrease in world prices we would find on a quantity basis that our Oriental trade is even larger than is shown by dollar valuation. While our opponent is ignorant of the facts he reveals his hostility to the tariffs on Pacific Coast products.

In fact, the true cause of the real calamity which interrupted our party into the road of recovery some eighteen months ago lies deep in the World War and its aftermath, the inability of Europe to longer stand the strain without enormous readjustments of debts, overexpansion of armaments, &c., which finally brought about economic collapse of 30 nations. In every quarter of the globe confidence, which is the foundation of the faith on which the economic structure is builded, crumbled, business came to a standstill, European institutions, with a hundred years of financial stability, collapsed; European social order received such reverses that the whole structure of civilization was at one time on the brink of chaos, collapse and ruin, and we, alone, held the last fortress of stability in the world. The invasion of this army of fear destroyed confidence, sapping the defenses of our financial system and stifling our exports of goods to those nations, threatened to bring down our entire industrial and commercial structure.

This was the new world war, a war of fearful and invisible enemies. Its spectral hosts, recruited in Europe and gathering allies from every land, turned their final march of assault upon our shores and even upon our Pacific Coast States.

As the responsible head of the Nation, I, following the historic policy of our past, abjured partisanship. I called for national unity in the face of national danger; I set before the leaders of both parties a complete program of measures for national defense and recovery. To the credit of my countrymen, they answered this call with almost complete unanimity. Many patriotic Democrats in the Congress aligned themselves with patriotic Republicans under the banner of a united Nation.

I need not recite the long series of over 30 measures initiated by my administration to sustain wages and employment; to prevent hunger and cold among millions of men, women and children; to hold impregnable our Government credit as the basis of all stability to maintain in the structure of private credit system through the Federal Reserve System, the Reconstruction Corporation, the Land Banks, the Agricultural Banks, Home Loan Banks, the Farm Board, the expansion in public works, the mobilization of cooperation in all parts of our country, and a score of other activities. Their whole purpose was to hold the Nation steady in this crisis and to maintain the validity of the deposits of our people in the banks, the savings, the insurance policies of our people and to hold the jobs for those who had work, to care for the distressed and keep the economic machine functioning until the hurricane was passed. These actions saved this Nation from a score of years of destructive degeneration.

Says Democrats Back Destructive Measures.

Nor were these dangers just general to the Nation. These invasions swept from State to State and from city to city throughout the country. It was a battle not alone against a Nation-wide startling growth of fear but against local and separate dangers in which at times each one of our Pacific Coast States has been the object of acute anxiety and direct action on the part of the Federal Government in their defense.

One great difficulty which arose to halt our progress was the development by the Democratic House of Representatives and the allies which they had secured to themselves of a series of disastrous measures for vast raids on the public treasury, the issuance of greenback money, and other interferences with the currency. The flank attacks had to be fought, coincident with fighting a hundred battles on the whole economic front and they delayed the effectiveness of our potent measures for recovery until the Democratic House of Representatives and their allies adjourned. Our opponents at no time proposed a single constructive measure to meet this emergency.

Finally, confidence being restored, we have been able to mobilize these measures into counterattack on the depression. Since the adjournment of Congress a million men have returned to work, new courage and enterprise have come into the lives and souls of men, and again America has begun the march forward which she has moved over these 150 years. The poignant question which citizens are asking today is whether we are going to check this progress and subject harried business, employment and agriculture to a new term of waiting and uncertainty by the threat of new policies which are destructive in character both in the short and long view of our Nation.

I can not better illustrate the measures of defense and attack than to point to a few of their applications to our Pacific Coast States.

Bear in mind that the head of a nation has the obligation to exert equal concern for the necessities of every State. I use this illustration merely to bring home to my neighbors and friends in the West the practical application to them of the vast program we have put in motion.

Tariff Is Beneficial Directly to California.

No man can say I was unmindful of the Pacific Coast States when immediately upon taking office, and in the face of every prophecy and every precedent of political disaster to Presidents who demand tariff revisions, I called Congress into special session for upward revision of all farm tariffs, including the products of every farm, orchard, ranch, and garden in California, and the other Pacific Coast States, and, further, that I secured the support of Republican States not interested in the setting up of the oil and lumber tariffs, so that we gained for these industries and their workers a much-needed relief to their unemployment.

There are no States in the Union where prosperity is so dependent upon the maintenance of the protective tariff as in those of the Pacific Coast. There is scarcely a commodity now produced within your borders that could be produced on a commercial basis tomorrow if we were to take down the barriers which prevent a flood of goods outside our boundaries from the north, the south, across the Atlantic and the Pacific.

You are familiar with the proofs. I need recite but a few.

For instance, southern California should be interested that lemons can be laid down in New York from Europe at $3.50 a box, while through tariff protection California is able to sell her product for $6.50. Petaluma is interested that the import of over 3,000,000 dozens of eggs has dropped to 300,000 this year under Republican tariff and through the recent order I signed in connection with dried eggs, upon the determination of facts by the Tariff Commission, we saved that industry. New Zealand butter could be sold at this moment over the whole Pacific Coast at less than 14 cents per pound; similar grades of butter bring 22 cents per pound because of the tariff. Against Asiatic beans the tariff has afforded, during the last two years, a nearly 100 per cent protection for the Pacific Coast farmer. Raisins and figs of Fresno and prunes of the Willamette and Santa Clara Valleys would sell in the common markets of the East at rates that would, despite the low level of present prices, reduce returns to those producers by nearly 50 per cent. The price of California wool in the Boston market is 38 cents today, whereas your Australian competitors could sell the same kind of wool there for less than 22 cents, and the difference is due solely to the tariff.

It is not difficult to gauge the shallow hypocrisy of Democratic pretentions of tariff consideration in behalf of the Pacific Coast farmer. The same story could be told of every farm product—nuts, grapes, melons, tomatoes, celery and a score of commodities.

Imports of Lumber Have Almost Ceased.

Turning to another of our great Coast products, 60 cents out of each dollar produced in the Pacific Coast Northwest comes from the forests, where higher wages are paid to lumber workers than in any other district in the world. Since the passage of the tariff act, British Columbian lumber exports into the United States have almost disappeared, and those from Russia, which had rapidly developed into a large trade, have almost ceased.

I would like to repeat here a statement made on Friday, October 28, by Mr. W. D. Euler, former national minister of Canada and now a member of the Canadian House of Commons. He said: "I have no particular love for our American friends so far as business is concerned, but I would not cut off my nose to spite my face. It may be that after the next election—and it looks that way—the American Government may change its attitude and you may find President Roosevelt, if he is elected, making certain proposals possibly as to allowing our lumber to come into that country, or our fish, or something else."

And this protection afforded to Pacific Coast industries by the tariff of 1930 and since has become doubly imperative within the last year due to depreciation of currencies as a part of the world collapse. As many of you know, due to a more than 50 per cent depreciation in Japanese currency since last spring, the competition of our Pacific Coast fish industries, which employ nearly 90,000 workers and have an invested capital of more than $103,000,000, have been confronted with the gravest peril. As a result of this depreciation of currency, foreign salmon is now quoted at about half the price of our Pacific Coast product. Our imports of canned sardines, which come largely from depreciated currency countries, were almost 90 per cent larger in September of this year than in September, 1931. And other branches of our important Pacific Coast industries, such as canned vegetables, dried fruits, beans, pulp, iron and steel may also be threatened with a similar peril.

In the light of this grave emergency, I have asked the Tariff Commission to investigate the situation immediately and, if the findings warrant, I shall at once increase the protection to these industries. The fact is, we on the Pacific Coast are faced with the necessity to consider increases in the tariff instead of the proposals of the Democratic party to reduce them.

Our citizens should not be fooled by promises of local Democratic candidates not to reduce these tariffs.

Foreign Protests Called Nothing New.

Every man who knows the Constitution, the character, platform, and the traditional policy of the Democratic party knows perfectly well that these products will rot on the farms and in our forests of the Pacific Coast under such a regime. Furthermore, it must be obvious that the progress the Pacific Coast has made from the crisis in certain industries toward upward movement of the last four months would wither under any such proposal. We would go back to conditions of depression worse than that through which we have passed.

I would call your attention to another phase of the tariff question; that is, the proposal of negotiated reciprocal tariff by the Democratic party. I have just examined again the protests which were lodged with the State Department at the time of the increases in our tariff two years ago. I find that protests were made by 40 different countries. They are nothing new. They occur with every tariff bill and the Democrats always ventilate them as being threats to our national welfare just as the Democratic candidate did while in our State. I found, however, that these protests in large part relate to items of interest to the Pacific Coast States: Wool, hides, tomatoes, lettuce, celery, onions, potatoes, carrots, cattle, hogs, butter, cheese, eggs, canned goods, canned fish, sugar, preserved cherries, oranges, lemons, raisins and dried fruits, apples, olive oil, beans, peas, cement, pottery manufactures, iron and steel manufactures, lumber and oil.

No reciprocal agreement could be made with these countries at all except at the expense of the Pacific Coast States. Because we have determined to protect the civilization upon which the Coast States rest, and their distance from States of predominant interest to that party, the Democratic candidate tells us that we have been unjust to foreign nations and that we have brought calamities on all other States and the world by our insistence upon your protection.

To indicate the practical application of our measures to protect the Pacific Coast from destruction in this crisis and to advance that recovery, I may cite a few of the direct applications to California, Oregon and Washington.

The National Credit Association and the Reconstruction Corporation at one time advanced over $150,000,000 to some 409 banks, including branches, in the State of California; to 62 in Oregon, and to 99 in Washington. This sum has been largely repaid. Those banks have more than 3,000,000 depositors, every one of whom was helped by these loans, which were made solely for the purpose of protecting their deposits and savings, and of preventing undue pressure on borrowers from those banks during the period of panic. Had these advances not been made your entire banking system would have collapsed beyond any doubt. But this action has tided over the panic, has reestablished the banking system of the Pacific Coast again on a sound basis, and has kept practically every family from despair at loss of their deposits.

I may call attention to the fact that during this period loans were made to 24 different building and loan associations on the Pacific Coast and to five mortgage concerns, with a view to preventing foreclosure of mortgages on the homes and farms of hundreds of thousands of people.

The Federal Farm Board, created by my activities, has advanced to California farm cooperatives a total of $31,298,000 to prevent their collapse in this time of distress, and thus aided hundreds of thousand of families.

On top of this, in order to aid in employment, the Federal Government has expended during my administration, on and let contracts for public works, buildings, road and other items, $100,000,000 in California, $45,000,000 in Oregon and $50,000,000 in Washington. This has provided work for hundreds of thousands.

Beyond this again, the Reconstruction Corporation, under provisions for advancing employment through reproductive works, has authorized advances to great projects in the Pacific Coast States which were held in abeyance because of the credit paralysis, such as the San Francisco-Oakland Bridge, the bringing of Colorado River water into southern California—which enterprises will finally expend upwards of $400,000,000 for the invigoration of the industries of California and the whole of the Nation.

Beyond this the Reconstruction Corporation has authorized loans to States on the Pacific Coast for the care of distress among unemployed.

Provided Protection For Home Owners.

Under these measures, which I have inaugurated, we have set up new agricultural credit banks on the Pacific Coast in order that there shall be no question as to the ability of our farmers to borrow money for productive purposes. We have set up new home loan banks in those States in order that we may protect and expand the activities of the building and loan associations and savings banks, not alone to protect home owners from foreclosures, but to free capital with which new homes can be built and new labor employed.

These great actions by the use of Federal credit to tide Pacific Coast States across the trough of this depression reflect directly and indirectly into every home and fireside in those States.

These measures which I have cited are but a partial picture of the reasons why I have not been able, during the whole of these four years, to renew the friendships and those associations in my home State, or even to have the pleasure of attending the Olympic games.

In all the stress of these past years, especially in these past few weeks, we have been battling that the rehabilitation of this Nation may be carried forward without interruption, nothing has been more heartening than the messages of confidence and hope that I have received from the mobilized women of California. I realize that when difficulties come of the character we have been meeting it is the women who first feel the effects of economic pressures on their shoulders, the burden of thousands of small economies that must be made for the preservation of the home and the safety of the children. They are proving the great steadying influence in the Nation, the great preservers. They will refuse to risk the fate of their families through the abandonment of those safeguards which we have builded during the past 150 years or to risk the programs of reconstruction we have inaugurated, by the adoption of the proposals of the Democratic party which will inherently destroy it. I should like to pay a tribute to the organization of your young voters who are fighting this battle with us to such telling effect.

I have been requested by the Republican State committee to comment on two calumnies being circulated by the Democratic agents in my home State. I had not supposed it necessary, but I can do so categorically. As to the first calumny, I have not, since I entered public service 15 years ago, owned any interest directly or indirectly in any kind of business outside of the boundaries of the United States, including any concerns producing, transporting or distributing oil. Twenty years ago I invested $5,000 in the California Oil Co. and I still have it. The second defamation that I am asked to denounce which has been industriously circulated is to the effect that the ranch at Wasco, my interest in which I disposed of two or three years ago, refused to employ white workers. To support this cheap political trick, a notice was prepared and hung on the gates and photographed for circulation despite repeated public statements of its fraudulent character by various substantial men.

Appeals for Continuance Of Republican Policies.

I might add one further note of interest to the Pacific Coast States. Repeatedly in these last four years in illustrating what may be accomplished under the American system of government, and by a virile people, I have pointed out publicly and privately, time and again, the great example of the Pacific Coast States, an empire to itself—where 8,000,000 people have settled in a period of less than 85 years, have builded a state of society in which there has been a degree of comfort, an addition to the sum total of human possessions, a diffusion of wealth, and a security that is not exceeded by any similar area on the face of the globe, no matter how old. And where, with it all, they have advanced in education and intellectual pursuits to the degree that the total number of students in institutions of higher learning amongst only 8,000,000 people, is greater than the attendance in similar institutions in the whole of Great Britain with its population of 45,000,000.

I am asking you to vote to maintain our American institutions which have given you this well-being, not halt them because of temporary dissatisfactions with forces outside the control of our Government. And it is my purpose tonight to bring to your minds that this march and progress should not be halted nor destroyed.

I do not hesitate to ask you to so express your citizenship next Tuesday as to insure the continuance of this progress, which over the years has made California what it is. It must not deter me from the solemn duty of appealing to you to vote on the basis of the constructive measures and policies of the Republican party which have protected you from great disasters in the past and have turned the country toward recovery, and not allow your votes to be inspired by misrepresentations and general and special appeals to discontent with temporary forces forced upon us from abroad rather than your own well-being.

HURLEY ANSWERS GLASS CHALLENGE

War Secretary Says Minority Party Wasted Cash on Pork-Barrel Bills.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War, speaking at a Republican rally here tonight, attacked the Democratic Congress for what he termed "pork barrel" legislation and defended himself and the Hoover administration against statements he said were made last night, in a radio address by Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), of Virginia.

Hurley quoted Senator Glass as saying that "the newspapers report that Secretary Hurley has openly proclaimed that should the Democratic party succeed at the November election the United States will be driven off the gold standard. If he said that, the President should have boosted him out of office before breakfast time the following day. This alleged declaration was not far short of treason."

"Let me repeat what I did say," Hurley said. "I said that the Democratic House of Representatives, under the leadership of Speaker Garner, the Democratic candidate for Vice President, did pass the 'pork barrel appropriations' from an already depleted Treasury; that it did pass the Goldsborough 'rubber dollar' bill; that it did pass the Patman flat money bill; that it did pass a bank deposit guaranty bill and that it did pass the Muscle Shoals bill, putting the Government in business in competition with private enterprises."

"I said that if these measures had not been stopped by the Senate or the President, they would have destroyed the credit of the Nation; depreciated the currency and driven us off the gold standard. Fortunately they were stopped, but they remain as the indelible record of what the Democratic organization would have done had it the power."

Rail and Bus Men Drop Truce Move

Plan to End Attempts to Influence Legislation Laid on Table.

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—A proposal that the railroads and competing bus and truck companies declare a truce in their efforts to influence legislation, now pending before a number of State Legislatures, was tabled today at a joint committee meeting.

The committee of railroads and highway users discussed the proposed moratorium at a lengthy session, but decided the knotty problem of proposed transportation legislation was so involved no agreement could be worked out between the opposing interests in time to present a united front before legislative bodies. For that reason, it was explained, the railroads, on their side, and the highway users, on the other, will not be asked to stop their efforts to influence legislation.

Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and Alfred H. Swayne, vice president of the General Motors Corporation, acted as joint chairmen at the meeting.

OPPONENT'S POLICIES AGAIN HIT BY HOOVER

vicinity of Salt Lake City Monday night for a brief radio appeal by the President to voters everywhere to exercise the franchise on November 8.

Speaking Itinerary.

The President's speaking itinerary this afternoon, tomorrow and Saturday calls for 28 platform appearances through 8 States, with three extended radio addresses—from Springfield, Ill., at 4 p. m. tomorrow; from St. Louis at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow, and from St. Paul at 8:30 p. m. Saturday.

The presidential special will pause in the suburban switching yards of Chicago early tomorrow, but no speaking arrangements have been made in that city.

In his address last night, Mr. Hoover introduced a review of the Federal Government's battle against the depression by recalling that never before since the World War has he been away from his California home for so long as four years.

"New crises and new emergencies," he said, "have compelled me to remain at the Capital of the Nation."

Answers Tariff Attacks.

Citing three different attacks on the tariff by Gov. Roosevelt during his Pacific Coast tour, the President replied that American exports to the Orient actually had increased during the 1932 fiscal year, as compared with the previous twelve months.

"I may mention," he said, "that after that tariff bill was passed our exports to China increased from $80,000,000 in the fiscal year 1931 to $93,000,000 in the fiscal year 1932; and exports to Japan increased from $146,000,000 in the fiscal year 1931 to $240,000,000 in the fiscal year 1932."

Again paying tribute to the Democrats of the House and Senate who cooperated in the nonpartisan program of emergency reconstruction measures in the last session of Congress, the President said those measures "saved this Nation from a score of years of destructive degeneration."

Cites Employment Gains.

"Since the adjournment of Congress," he continued, "a million men have been returned to work, new courage and enterprise have come into the lives and souls of men, and again America has begun the march forward which she has moved over these 150 years. The poignant question which citizens are asking today is whether we are going to check this progress and subject harried business, employment and agriculture to a new term of waiting and uncertainty by the threat of new policies which are destructive in character both in the short and long view of our Nation."

Highly optimistic reports concerning the outlook for the Republican State and national tickets in New York was brought to the White House yesterday by George Z. Medalie, Republican senatorial nominee in the Empire State, against Senator Robert F. Wagner. Mr. Medalie told the President the New York campaign had been notably stimulated by the Madison Square Garden address last Monday.

"There has been a very substantial gain for us in New York City," he said. "We expect to carry the State by a majority of 200,000. Those normally on the sidelines, and the independent voters, are falling into line for the President."

MARYLAND SENATOR FORFEITS RUM BAIL

Judge Sheriff Reprimands Defendant for Hinting That Liquor Was for Him.

Bitterly criticizing Maryland State Senator Thurman C. Atkinson for statements intimating that two quarts of gift liquor might have been intended for Judge J. Chew Sheriff, Judge Sheriff yesterday in Hyattsville police court allowed Atkinson to forfeit collateral on charges of being drunk and disorderly.

Atkinson and four other men were arrested last week and two quarts of liquor were seized after the party went to Judge Sheriff's home. The senator, Raymond Ayers, and Joseph Kunkel, all of Baltimore, and Thomas McNulty, of Hyattsville, were charged with being drunk and disorderly. Kunkel and Walter H. Kay also were charged with possession of liquor.

Kunkel yesterday pleaded guilty to possession and was fined $50, forfeiting collateral of $13.50 on the other charge. Kay, who was charged after taking a pint of the liquor from the sargeant's desk in the police station, was freed when Attorney Waldo Burnside pointed out that the Maryland law allowed a man to have a quart of liquor.

While trying the case, Judge Sheriff read aloud a story from a Baltimore newspaper which quoted Atkinson as saying that the liquor was intended for a man who was going to do the five men a favor. "I am afraid to say what might have happened if they had offered me that liquor," Judge Sheriff said hotly. He also said that the men had come to his home to plead for a man arrested with 50 gallons of alcohol in his car.

After Constable Charles W. Wilson had said that Atkinson "had been drinking but was in fairly good condition," Judge Sheriff questioned him until he admitted that the senator was "staggering."

G. P. O. Dark Nov. 8 to Let Workers Vote

The Government Printing Office will be closed on election day in order to permit several hundred workers who have voting privileges in various States to cast their ballots. Public Printer Carter announced yesterday.

Mr. Carter said the printing office will run all day Saturday, thus exchanging the regular furlough day of the week for election day. The printing office has been on the five-day week for some time.

Many of the workers are expected to take annual leave on Monday and utilizing Sunday, will thus have a three-day holiday, Mr. Carter said. The three days will also give voters who live in more distant States a chance to make the trip.

Officials in several other Government establishments were still debating yesterday whether time off would be given clerks for exercising their suffrage. At the Departments of State, Interior, Justice, Labor and the Veterans' Administration, it was said time would be given voters.

GARNER REITERATES VICTORY PREDICTION

Speaker Goes Home Saturday to Vote and Receive Ballot Returns.

(Associated Press.)

Speaker John N. Garner said yesterday he would leave Saturday night for his Uvalde, Tex., home to vote in Tuesday's elections and to receive the returns.

Reiterating to newspapermen his previous declaration that the Democratic national ticket would be victorious, the Democratic vice presidential candidate said:

"The people of the country long since made up their minds for a change in administration. President Hoover and his followers are defeated. Gov. Roosevelt will be elected President by an overwhelming vote.

"In spite of the pleas of the Republican administration to be permitted to remain in office, the people are determined to remove the whole outfit, and they are justified in doing it."

Garner said the "Democratic House will pass a beer bill at the coming short session in an effort to reduce the deficit being piled up under the Republican administration."

The Texan said he expected to remain at Uvalde until shortly before the December session of Congress. In the meantime, he added, he would "give thought and study to legislative problems of the approaching session."

U. S. Radio Official And Aid Suspended

(Associated Press.)

The Radio Commission said yesterday that W. Van Nostrand, acting supervisor of the Atlanta District, and his secretary, Miss Mary L. Bell, had been suspended for 90 days pending an investigation by the Department of Justice of unnamed charges against them.

The charges were made by the old Radio Division of the Department of Commerce following a preliminary investigation by the Department of Justice based on a request by Robert P. Lamont, then Secretary of Commerce.

No indication of the charges was given by the Radio Commission except that they affected the "official conduct" of Van Nostrand. The investigation has not been completed and it was emphasized that the charges may not be sustained. L. C. Herndon, of the Baltimore District headquarters, has been placed temporarily in charge of the Atlanta office pending disposition of the case.

COX SAYS U.S. RULED BY SECRET POWERS

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Declaring that the "central crisis of this campaign" is "the waning of that confidence in politics and government now conspicuous on every hand," former Gov. James M. Cox of Ohio said tonight "the one safe way out of our plight is to change—to throw out the management which has brought us to this pitiable pass."

In an address released in advance for delivery before a Democratic banquet here, the former governor launched into an attack on the Republican national administration after first dealing with State issues.

"The economic depression now heavily upon us is only one, and the lesser one, of two crises now confronting us," said Cox, who was the Democratic presidential nominee in 1920. "The lost confidence in business we shall sooner or later, given reasonable common sense, regain.

"Menacing Development."

"But preceding the economic collapse and accelerated by it there has been a yet more menacing development. I refer to the waning of that confidence in politics and government, now conspicuous on every hand, which once fully lost can never be regained. This is the central crisis of this campaign. Upon it turns the very perpetuation of our political and social institutions."

Asserting that the Nation "has fallen from an estate where men ruled openly as men to a level where men were ruled secretly as puppets of powers behind the scenes," the former governor declared the people had reached the point where they "refused to sit in a game in which they saw the cards so stacked against them."

The former governor then charged the Republicans, through certain industrial leaders, with an attempt to coerce workers to vote for retention of the present administration.

Hoover's Policies Attacked.

Launching into an attack on President Hoover, the former governor said:

"The man who had fed the hungry of Europe gave us the pledge that across this fair land poverty would never again cast its shadow. It was not a promise in the abstract. The specifications were supplied. The dreams of years were come true. On the strength of that assurance money was withdrawn from savings institutions as the base of credit in the purchase of homes and farms. * * *

"In due time there came disquieting developments, but from the White House we were reassured. Two Republican Presidents calmed our fears, but only for the moment. Then came the crash. * * * Now the people believe they were deceived for political ends."

After declaring that conditions under prohibition had created "other reasons for our distrust" and terming the Republican tariff an economic folly, former Gov. Cox continued:

"The President can't see, as the people do, the contradictions that lie before him. He asserts that our troubles are the backwash from foreign lands. Have we become mentally so debilitated as to forget that the Republican party turned its back on the rest of the world; that it abandoned our allies of the war and made an independent peace with the enemy, because, as some of the irreconcilables put it, this enabled us to pull out of Europe? * * *

Causes of Depression.

"Now we discover that we have become prostrated by conditions in the rest of the world. In short, we have discovered we are a part of this planet, subject to its currents of business and general welfare. Shades of Woodrow Wilson! If this is not a case of chickens coming home to roost, then I do not know the meaning of events."

INSURANCE RECEIVER ORDERED BY COURT

to public act 137, approved May 17, 1932, which requires that books and records of a corporation incorporated under District laws be kept within the District of Columbia.

The suit which resulted in the decision of the court to appoint a permanent receiver grew out of a bill filed by a former president of the company, Joseph A. Burkart. Suit was filed through Attorney W. Gwynn Gardiner, who, as representative of Mr. Burkart, prosecuted the case before Justice Cox.

Testimony also was offered during the trial tending to show that $158,500 of the company's cash, raised largely through the sale of the company's securities, was delivered to a corporation known as Standard Founders, Inc., a Maryland corporation having an office in Baltimore. Further testimony offered tended to show this stock was of no value.

Herbert L. Davis, superintendent of insurance of the District, testified he discovered alleged irregularities involving investments of the company and demanded restitution. Mr. Davis testified there were certain dealings of the company with one Ira K. Kramer and that his investigation showed Ira K. Kramer to be a fictitious person, there being no record of his whereabouts or existence. It was as a result of the investigation made by the superintendent of insurance and upon the report of his examiners that the action was instituted on which the court voiced opinion yesterday.

DEFEAT OF HOOVER FATAL, EDGE SAYS

Ambassador to France Feels Roosevelt Victory Would Be National Tragedy.

Lowell, Mass., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Walter E. Edge, Ambassador to France, tonight told a Republican rally that as the presidential campaign neared its close it had become more evident that "any interruption of the program of recovery now well under way in Washington would be fatal."

"In my judgment," Ambassador Edge said, "such a calamity would be a national tragedy. Not one proposal has been advanced by the opposition materially different from the well-developed organized efforts now pressed by the administration.

"I might qualify this statement by reference to the Democratic nominee's pledge to lower the tariff and the suggestion of some of his prominent backers to use the printing press to inflate circulation, both of which trial balloons have received so much criticism that they, like Mr. Garner, have been pushed into the background.

"This practically confines his appeal for votes to an effort to capitalize the depression."

Edge said it was fair to assert that the Democratic program had been completely punctured and the effort of the opposition "resolves itself into the natural desire for party success."

Speaker Garner's record was attacked by Mr. Edge, who said: "Four bills sponsored by Democratic representatives, under the leadership of Mr. Garner, would have placed a burden of $3,500,000,000 on the country."

Mr. Edge said that while President Hoover had been endeavoring to reduce the Federal budget, Gov. Roosevelt "has been steadily increasing the deficit" in New York State.

Gov. Roosevelt's stand on the tariff question, Ambassador Edge said, "is serious and destructive."

On the prohibition issue, Mr. Edge said the Republican platform, "summarized by the nominee himself, Mr. Hoover, takes into consideration the conviction of all classes."

Alleged Forger Held for Jurors

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 2.—James H. Haggard, a Washington, D. C., taxi driver, was held for the grand jury here today on a charge that he forged a check for $20 on Harry K. Thaw, who owns a country estate, Kenilworth, near here.

According to officers, Haggard signed Thaw's name to a draft for $20 which he passed on a nearby merchant, the bank, however, turning the check down because Mr. Thaw's usual signature is "H. K. Thaw." The check was passed September 6. Washington police arrested Haggard last Friday for local authorities.

Thaw appeared in court when Haggard was arraigned and said he had never seen the man, who is about 30 years old. Unable to furnish bond, Haggard was remanded to jail for the January term of grand jury in Circuit Court.

Parker Choice Assailed As High Court Politics

(Associated Press.)

Daniel J. Tobin, in a statement last night through the National Progressive League, said, "it was Mr. Hoover himself who put the politics into the Supreme Court."

The statement added: "Mr. Dixon, the Assistant Secretary of the Interior, himself advised the President to appoint Mr. John Parker, of North Carolina, to the Supreme Court bench, 'for this,' said Mr. Dixon, 'would be a master political stroke.' * * * Mr. Hoover named Mr. Parker to the bench. * * * The men in the Senate * * * fought and licked Mr. Hoover in his determined effort to reduce the Supreme Court bench to a mere piece of political patronage."

15 Students Are Assured For Depression University

(United Press.)

Depression University started, stopped and started again yesterday after it became apparent that enough students would appear next week to make up a fair-sized football squad.

Everything was in readiness to open at Port Royal, Va., on schedule Tuesday night except for one disturbing factor—there were no students. Prof. William Meades Newton, graduate of Baliol College, Oxford, was prepared to expound the theories and principles of government; Prof. Edward Arranta had his lectures on art at hand; steam was singing through the radiators in the building.

But no undergraduates moved through this collegiate scene, so yesterday Dr. A. C. C. Hill, sponsor of Depression University, decided to start over again. His plan calls for a somewhat socialistic community at Port Royal to aid students and faculty members over the pitfalls of the depression. Each student pays $250. The undergraduates wait on tables, fire furnaces and mow lawns. They can indulge in athletics if they choose, but the faculty recommends hunting and fishing as major sports. They may play football and baseball but there will be no coach.

"Well, we did plan to start November 1," Hill said. "Guess it was a mistake. We're really going to start Monday. I mean there are going to be conferences between professors and students. It's wrong to say we don't have any students. Look at these."

He produced a pile of telegrams from his desk drawer.

"Why, there will be at least fifteen students on hand Monday. Look at these telegrams. They're coming from all parts of the country. And here is Walter G. Everett, professor emeritus of philosophy at Brown University, offering his services free. He indorses the Depression University idea. Want to hear his indorsement?"

It said a small student body was better than a large one. It predicted a future of unbounded service for Depression University. It hinted good old Depression would still carry on even when the corrupting influence of prosperity returned.

Member of House Defend Its Action

(Associated Press.)

Representative Hancock (Democrat), North Carolina, in a statement issued yesterday through the Democratic national committee, said President Hoover in his Indianapolis speech "by implication unfairly and falsely places full blame on the House of Representatives for the delay in creating the Home Loan Bank system."

"Had it not been for the cooperation of the Democratic House the bill would right now be lying in the files of a Senate subcommittee," Hancock added.

Hancock, member of the committee that handled the bill in the House, said: "Mr. Hoover also knows and should have courage and honesty to admit that the first major delay in the progress of this bill was due largely to the indifference of several of his leaders and spokesmen in the Senate."

SOUTHERN CONTROL LAID TO DEMOCRATS

Mills, in Brooklyn, Declares Dixie Will Block Party's Scheme for Repeal.

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Declaring the "Southern Democracy owns the Democratic party," Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, told a Brooklyn Republican rally tonight these States "will never put through Congress a straight repeal amendment."

Attacking the Democratic prohibition stand, Mills said:

"The pledge of the Democrats in favor of unqualified repeal of the eighteenth amendment can not be fulfilled without a protracted delay that might last a generation. * * *

"The Southern States and such States as Kansas, whose people have deep-seated convictions on this score, will never consent to repeal without guarantees. * * * The States that are certain to remain dry have it within their power to block the amendment in Congress and its ratification afterward."

Mills said the four main features of the Democratic candidate's campaign are as follows:

"1. He has shown a none too creditable willingness to misrepresent the position and a record of his adversary. 2. He has made all manner of promises with the most reckless disregard as to his ability to make good, and without specifying the means whereby the objectives are to be attained. 3. Except on a very limited number of issues, he has refused to take a definite position on any controversial question that might cost him votes. 4 As one newspaper put it, 'he has everywhere sought to arouse discontent, and let nature take its course.'"

Montgomery Veterans To Rally in Bethesda

The second rally of the Veterans' Democratic Club of Montgomery County will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the Montgomery County Building at Bethesda, Md. Commander E. F. Atwell, who commanded Camp Marks of the B. E. F., will be the principal speaker. He will disclose episodes concerning the camp never before made public, he announced.

Other speakers will be Dr. George L. Edmonds, county member of the Maryland House of Delegates; Joseph McGuire and Col. George R. Laird, of Washington, and Maj. Howard W. Cutler, president of the club.

the owners, many of whom live in western Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania representatives stopped the Jersey trucks for a few minutes only, and allowed the drivers to continue after issuing warnings.

"New Jersey is going beyond the provisions of the Pennsylvania act," Leon D. Metzger, Pennsylvania State secretary of revenue, said today.

He said that to date New Jersey is the only State that has officially abrogated its reciprocity agreement with Pennsylvania. Other States, he said, are cooperating.

No arrests are contemplated, Metzger said, except where there is conclusive evidence that the Pennsylvania law is being deliberately ignored. In that case the offenders will be treated as any other law violator.

ROOSEVELT TO VISIT NEW JERSEY SECTOR

Owen D. Young to Introduce Him to Audience in New York Tonight.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight extended his plans for winding up his campaign for the Presidency in the New York City area to include an automobile trip tomorrow night into New Jersey.

Leaving his New York City home tomorrow afternoon, the Democratic presidential candidate will drive through Jersey City and Newark before going to the Metropolitan Opera House to speak to the Republican-For-Roosevelt Club.

After attending to various State matters today, he turned to the preparation of the speech he will make tomorrow night.

The return of Mr. Roosevelt to Albany from his whirlwind automobile tour of New England placed him here last night in time for a late dinner after a change in plans that were to have taken him to his Hyde Park home.

Leaving Albany tomorrow shortly before noon, he will motor to Hyde Park for luncheon with his mother before continuing to his home in New York. After a short time there, he will drive into New Jersey, but expects to make no stops or speeches in either Jersey City or Newark.

The speech tomorrow night at the opera house will bring Mr. Roosevelt and Owen D. Young together on the same platform. Mr. Young, himself prominently mentioned at one time in the preconvention conversations as a likely candidate for the Presidency, will make a seven-minute introductory speech.

The Metropolitan Opera House speech will be the first of a series of three Mr. Roosevelt will make in the New York City area. On Friday night he will speak at the Academy of Music in Brooklyn, and on the following night at Madison Square Garden. Alfred E. Smith will appear with the governor on both of those occasions.

Surgeon General Urges Public to Aid Hospitals

(Associated Press.)

Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, surgeon general, yesterday emphasized the need for public support of hospitals during the coming winter, especially those dependent upon voluntary contributions.

"In almost all cities," said Dr. Cumming, "the financial drain on hospitals has increased steadily during the present economic situation. Though public health in general has maintained a high level, with few epidemics, an unusually large number of persons requiring hospital care are unable to pay more than a small part of the expense incurred."

AL SMITH ATTACKS REPUBLICAN TACTICS

address was in the nature of what he called a reply to Mr. Hoover's Madison Square Garden address. Referring to that speech, Democracy's 1928 standard bearer said:

"I wonder what he is trying to do? He certainly is not defending his administration and he certainly is not proposing anything new, but it seems to me that he is talking to scare the American people. Now, nobody can do that.

"It doesn't make any difference how bad the times may be, we are never going to fall into that depth of despair, that anybody is going to scare us as to the future of this country."

Smith said he agreed with the President that "you can not extend the mastery of government over the daily lives of the people."

"And that is exactly what is the matter with the eighteenth amendment," he added.

Referring to Mr. Hoover's warnings about "the growth of bureaucracy such as we have never seen in our history," Smith said:

"The greatest example of it is in the Department of Commerce that he himself presided over since 1920. Bureaucracy has grown up under the Republican administration in Washington until they have taken from the States all the power that he was able to constitutionally take, and then some."

Coast Guard Cutter Fired On Boat, Floridian Charges

Orlando, Fla., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Charges that a Coast Guard cutter fired without warning on a fishing boat occupied by three Orlando business men were aired here today at an inquiry conducted by Commander L. C. Mueller, of the Coast Guard.

C. S. Purcell, manager of the Orlando store of Sears, Roebuck & Co., told Commander Mueller the cutter Perry fired on the boat occupied by himself, E. N. Ekdahl, Sears, Roebuck salesman, and A. L. Weaver, sr., an insurance dealer, while they were fishing about 20 miles off Cape Canaveral last month.

Purcell said Ekdahl asked Boatswain Dumphy, who was in command of the cutter, what he would have done "if we had not stopped, and Mr. Dumphy told him he would have 'dropped one into the middle of us.'"

"We had been fishing about 35 or 40 miles out and were returning to shore when we passed the patrol boat. We passed about 300 yards from the cutter and did not see any one about. When we were about 1 mile or about 1½ miles away from the cutter I noticed they had started up the boat and were following us," Purcell related.

"It was then the cutter fired three times on us. The captain of our boat immediately put about and headed for the patrol boat. We pulled up alongside and a man came aboard and sat down and started making out a report. Then a second man, who was Boatswain Dumphy, came aboard.

"I said to him 'What do you mean by firing on us?' He turned his back and walked away."

Purcell said the men did not wear the regular Coast Guard insignia and that there was no way to identify them.

Further testimony will be heard.

TARIFF ISOLATION RAPPED BY BAKER

Lifting of Barriers Urged in Speech Lauding Garner and Roosevelt.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, today said the United States must participate in world affairs if it would have economic stability and advocated the election of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner as the means to this end.

In an address before the Harvard University Democratic Club, Baker said Republican tariff policies had brought about the isolation of the United States, economically, from the rest of the world. He advised the election of Gov. Roosevelt, saying President Hoover advocated still more tariff.

Baker spoke vigorously in praise of Speaker John N. Garner, whom, he said, there was a "disposition in some places to belittle."

"I have known John Garner for 20 years," said Baker. "Take my judgment that the Democratic minority of the House has had no leader in my time so constructed as Mr. Garner." He said Garner had been unfairly ridiculed and abused.

Baker reviewed the economic trend in the world since the World War and said that after that conflict there was a demand for economic leadership which the United States could have assumed and thus have brought about a feeling of harmony and peace in the world. Rather, he said, in 1921 Republican managers made up their minds the United States had been idealistic long enough; that it would look after itself and let foreigners "stew in their own juice."

The European nations proceeded to imitate us, he said, and drew up tariff barriers.

"We are not only economically stalemated, but hated," said Baker. "No country in the world is more universally disliked than the United States. We must cooperate with the world or have the nations combine against us politically.

DEMOCRATIC FISCAL RECORD UNDER FIRE

William Andrews Says War Debts Under Wilson Put U. S. Books in Red.

The fiscal record of the Democratic party was scored last night by William E. Andrews, former representative from Nebraska and former auditor of the Treasury Department, when he spoke at a rally of the League of Republican State Clubs, at the National Capital Republican Club.

"Gov. Roosevelt," Mr. Andrews said, "claims that he and his party are great economists. They have pledged themselves to reduce Federal expenses 25 per cent, including the salaries of Government clerks. As an aid in this direction they are urging the clerks to vote the Democratic ticket.

"He and his party created the debt and shed the blood that made the ledger red under President Hoover, who has been called upon to settle the political estate of that bankrupt concern, Wilson, McAdoo, F. D. Roosevelt & Co.

"Although Gov. Roosevelt persists in denying the responsibility for himself and his party for burdens of the World War, let us drive home the warning that they should cease forever the unmanly conduct of disowning the paternity of their own political offspring."

Shelburne Apartments Sold at Public Auction

The Shelburne, eight-story brick and concrete apartment building at the northeast corner of Seventeenth and S streets northwest, was sold at public auction yesterday to Barnum L. Colton, representing the District National Securities Corporation, for $146,300. Mr. Colton's bid covered a prior deed of trust, totaling $144,300. The sale was advertised by Harry M. The original estimated cost of the building was $325,000 and its current assessed value is $243,540, of which $43,540 is for the site and $200,000 for the structure. Subsequent owners are listed as Horatio C. Ball, Sue H. Harrison and Armand P. Jardin.

RADIO COMMISSION CUTS FORCES AGAIN

$75,000 Saving Effected by Reorganization as 33 Are Dismissed.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

The economy act took its toll of 33 more Government jobs yesterday, when the Federal Radio Commission, reorganizing field forces to keep within appropriations, announced a saving of $75,000, made possible largely by that number of dismissals in the field.

The discharges were in addition to the fifteen clerks released from the Washington office three months ago, following merger of the Federal Radio Commission with the radio division of the Department of Commerce.

Meantime the President is saving the commission at the rate of $10,000 a year additional by not appointing a successor to former Commissioner, Charles McK. Saltzman. The office has been vacant for nearly four months.

High Paid Posts Kept Open.

This same policy of not filling vacancies in high-paid posts apparently is being followed throughout the Government service. Mr Hoover has not named a successor to the late G. K. Burgess, former director of the Bureau of Standards. The office of director of the Bureau of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection, created under the economy act merger of two Commerce Department units, never has been filled.

Incidentally, Malcolm Kerlin, administrative assistant to the Secretary of Commerce, said yesterday that consolidation of the Bureau of Navigation with the Steamboat Service was effected without any discharges. He said the slack was taken up by five or six unfilled vacancies.

Commissioner Thad H. Brown, who supervised the Federal Radio Commission field service reorganization, said the step brings total economies under the radio merger to $110,000, made possible partly by new leases, reduced rentals and operating office expenses.

"It provides for the elimination of much overlapping and lost motion," Commissioner Brown said. "Inspectors in charge are to report directly to the commission. We can thus direct the work of the field force more expeditiously and efficiently."

Field Reorganization.

The field reorganization provides for division of the United States into twenty districts, each in charge of an inspector. With one exception, this was made possible by making existing suboffices of the present nine large districts independent. The exception is at Galveston, Tex., where a new headquarters was established. The quarters were donated.

"Heretofore the greatest demand for personnel arose out of matters relating to examinations for operators' licenses, inspection of ship stations and the maintenance of records relating to amateur radio stations," the commission's statement read.

"Procedure that controls the preparation for and the giving of examinations for operators' permits has been changed, and it is believed vastly improved. The other problems mentioned have been simplified."

W. D. Terrell, for many years chief of the radio division, now chief of field operations for the commission, indorsed the plan.

Democrats Are Appealing to Nonthinking Class, He Declares.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Ernest Lee Jahncke, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, tonight said in an address at Harvard University that the Democratic party is "wagering everything on its theory that there are not enough thinking voters in this country to elect a President."

Secretary Jahncke said there was "much uncertainty" as to what policies would be inaugurated by Gov. Roosevelt, if he were elected, because the "conflict of opinion among his chief supporters—men to whom he is deeply indebted—is so great and at such variance."

He made specific mention of Speaker Garner and Senators Norris, Wheeler, Dill, Glass, Robinson and Coolidge.

N. Y. CENTRAL LOAN APPROVED BY I.C.C.

$2,500,000 Would Be Used in Repairs; Three States Get R. F. C. Funds.

(Associated Press.)

A "work loan" of $2,500,000 by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the New York Central Railroad was approved yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission and meanwhile the corporation authorized relief loans of $145,748 for use in three States.

The railroad loan, estimated to provide employment for 1,500 men for seven or eight months in repairing cars, now must be approved by the Reconstruction Corporation.

The destitution relief loans included $121,567 to Georgia, $20,014 to Missouri and $4,167 to Nevada.

The Interstate Commerce Commission announced the New York Central loan would be used to repair 10,000 steel box cars at an average cost of $150 each and 3,000 automobile box cars at an average of $300 each. Alternatives authorized would be the repair of hopper and stock cars or locomotives.

The Georgia loan is to be used in Chatham County and Savannah, where low prices for cotton, naval stores and lumber have caused suffering. The city and county have spent $153,406 for relief this year and funds are now exhausted.

The Missouri loan is to be expended in Jasper and Butler Counties and the cities of Independence and Wellsville. None of the money is to be used in Joplin, in Jasper County.

The Navada loan is for use in Nye County, where the governor reported the mining industry at a virtual standstill. Out of 1,500 men employed two years ago only 300 are now working.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of the Maryland Institute, where she studied sculpture, painting and etching. One of her recent works is a bust of her famous grandfather. She is now studying art in New York. The prospective bridegroom is connected with a New York law firm.

Clifford Harmon, president of the International League of Aviators, announced he has offered to renew the Gordon Bennett Cup for international competition provided its name is not changed.

"Corn Likker" Gasoline May Boom Grain Sale

Yorkville, Ill., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—The possibility that a type of "corn likker"—ethyl alcohol distilled from corn—may be used when mixed with gasoline as motor fuel to furnish a market for millions of bushels of grain, is being investigated.

Tests on six different types of motor cars were conducted here yesterday under supervision of J. J. Groetken, of Aurora, and the Kendall County Farm Bureau, and tended, the demonstrators said, to bear out European reports of the value of ethyl alcohol as a motor fuel.

Democratic Rally Draws Collegians

Speakers included Oliver Reed, grandson of Richard Croker, famed Tammany chieftain, and Robert W. Criscuola, both of Georgetown University; Miss Ruth Cox, of Trinity College; Miss Louise Falligant, of the Young Democrats; Clement Ducy, of Catholic University; R. J. Chest Gifts Urged In Proclamation

Merchants Are Asked by Commissioners to Display Flags.

A formal proclamation urging Washingtonians to contribute generously to the Community Chest in its approaching campaign, November 14 to 23, was issued yesterday by the District Commissioners.

The Commissioners requested that merchants display sidewalk flags during the campaign. They declared that citizens of the District "in the winter and year ahead face the greatest human need, both in extent and in extremity, ever known in the National Capital."

The proclamation stated that "any one who has a job and any income has an obligation to aid his fellow citizens who have neither," and that "many who must receive aid this year were contributors last year."

BRITAIN NOT TO ACT ON LYTTON REPORT

Will Not Form Own Policy, but Will Cooperate With League Powers.

London, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—Great Britain favors enlistment of international law, through the League of Nations, in settling the Manchurian dispute, it was indicated clearly today.

The House of Lords discussed forthcoming action on the Lytton report, and Viscount Hailsham, secretary of state for war, told Lord Ponsonby during the debate that Britain will not take a definite stand on the Lytton report.

"Our object at Geneva," the war secretary said, "will not be to take some dramatic step which would focus attention on our own initiative or leadership. Our aim will be not to have a separate policy of our own, but to unite with the other powers in finding a single policy which might fairly be described as the policy of the league as a whole.

"In attempting to attain such a policy it will be the object of our government to persuade the governments of China and Japan to associate themselves with it."

Viscount Hailsham's declaration of policy, read from a draft prepared by the foreign office, was greeted with cheering.

Geneva, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—The United States and Soviet Russia may be asked to sit in the assembly of the League of Nations when the time comes for political decision on the Lytton Manchurian report, it was learned today.

Sir Eric Drummond, general secretary of the league, announced that the League Council will meet November 21 to discuss the Lytton report.

It was considered significant that Norman Davis and Hugh Wilson, American delegates to the disarmament conference, conferred this morning with Drummond, reportedly on Manchurian affairs.

Marion Neighbors Eulogize Harding

Friends Assemble at Tomb to Honor Memory on 67th Anniversary.

Marion, Ohio, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Residents of Marion and vicinity assembled at the tomb of the late President Harding today, to pay tribute to his memory on the sixty-seventh anniversary of his birth.

The occasion was planned by Boy Scouts of the Harding scout area, directed by Scout Executive Arthur S. Brooks, and was intended as an inauguration of annual pilgrimages to the tomb of the twenty-ninth President. It was essentially a tribute from the youth of Warren G. Harding's home community, where he was a stanch supporter of the Boy Scout movement.

The ceremonies included a brief address by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, vice president of the Harding Memorial Association and son of the late Brig. Gen. Charles E. Sawyer, Harding's personal physician.

APPEAL IS REJECTED ON RENDERING PLANT

Court Petition for Review of Zoning Board Decision Is Dismissed.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Judge Walter T. McCarthy, in the Arlington County Circuit Court yesterday afternoon dismissed the petition of citizens seeking a review by the court of the decision of the board of zoning appeals in granting a permit to the N. Norton & Co. for the erection of a rendering plant.

Following a lengthy argument by counsel on a demurrer filed by Attorney Frank L. Ball to the petition, the court took the view that inasmuch as there was no record of the evidence before the board of zoning appeals at the time the permit was granted, the court was without power to take new testimony to determine the legality of the action of the board.

In an effort to get immediate action by the Arlington County board for an adequate approach to the Arlington Memorial Bridge, the road committee, of which Monroe H. Stocket is chairman, for the Arlington County Civic Federation, has been directed to make a study of all proposed routes and to report at the December meeting.

The committee has already reported that the county board is opposed to the completion of the Washington street approach, over which all rights of way had been acquired. It is understood that reasons given are that it is not a practical route from an engineering standpoint.

Representative Howard W. Smith, Democratic candidate for reelection, is announced as the principal speaker at a meeting of the Young Democratic League of Arlington County tonight. The meeting will be held at the headquarters in the Rees Building at Clarendon.

Preceding this meeting, Representative Smith will meet with the county Democratic committee and other political leaders in the county at 7:30 to discuss final plans for election day. He will again stress the importance of the proper marking of the ballot.

Charges Are Dismissed After Rum Raid on Club

Because a quantity of alleged liquor found in a raid on the Two-Bit Club, in Brentwood, was not found by a policeman, Judge J. Chew Sheriff yesterday dismissed charges of possession brought against Arthur August in Hyattsville Police Court. A civilian accompanying the raiding party found the reputed contraband.

William Rabbit, also of Brentwood, pleaded guilty in the same court to possession charges, and was fined $50.

Dry Agent Is Accused By Riverdale Policeman

Claiming that two dry agents forced him into their automobile and threatened to arrest him after he hailed them for passing a stop sign in Riverdale, Town Policeman Walter Acton has sent a formal complaint to Prohibition Administrator Amos W. Woodcock about the conduct of Agent R. A. Brantley.

Acton said the two men drove nearly a mile before stopping their car and letting him out. The agents claim the stop sign was obscured by a parked car, and said that when Acton hailed them they thought he wanted a ride and took him into their machine.

With appropriate dedicatory ceremonies, three Bicentennial trees were planted yesterday afternoon in St. Mary's Cemetery at Alexandria, Va.

The Very Rev. Thomas A. Rankin, pastor of St. Mary's Church, dedicated one tree to Col. John Fitzgerald, aid to Gen. George Washington. The other trees were dedicated by the Rev. Hugh McFadden to Gen. Washington, and by the Rev. J. K. Koster to the memory of Col. Robert Hooe, mayor of Alexandria, who gave an acre of land to the cemetery.

The cemetery marks the site of the first Catholic church in Virginia, erected in 1795. Gen. Washington subscribed toward the erection of the church, while Col. Fitzgerald collected the funds.

The annual convention of the Virginia Manufacturers of Carbonated Beverages will convene at 10:30 a. m. today in George Mason Hotel, presided over by F. F. Cathey, of Exmore. Convention plans were prepared by S. J. Allen, of Richmond.

A feature of the program will be a discussion of problems confronting the beverage manufacturing industry, including the tax situation, by Martin L. Schmidt, of Louisville, Ky., vice president of the American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages, and president of the Kentucky State body.

It is estimated that 150 manufacturers will attend, and in addition to the Virginia representation beverage manufacturers from the District of Columbia and nearby States are expected.

Mayor Edmund P. Ticer and City Manager Wallace Lawrence will attend the formal opening at 7:30 o'clock tonight, at police headquarters, of the police school. Capt. John S. Arnold, of the local force, will be in charge.

D. G. Heflin, of 103 Mount Ida avenue, reported to police yesterday that his home was entered Tuesday night and $21 in pennies stolen from a bureau drawer. Heflin stated he had $57 in pennies in the drawer, but only part of them was taken.

WASHINGTON TREE PLANTED BY CLUB

Gaithersburg Holds Memorial Exercises at Methodist Home for Aged.

Planting of living memorials to George Washington in the form of trees was lauded yesterday in the address of the Rev. Herman M. Wilson, superintendent of the home, at the planting of a Bicentennial tree, under the auspices of the Neighborhood Garden Club of Gaithersburg, Md., yesterday at the Methodist Home for the Aged and Orphans at Gaithersburg. Dr. Wilson said that trees are an unusually fitting memorial to Washington because of his love for trees. He declared that the tree

The tree was planted by Miss Louise Hinton, who lives at the home, with the spade used in breaking ground for the Epworth Half of the home in 1928. Miss Hinton was named for Mrs. Louise Hawkins Washington, who was the daughter-in-law of Samuel Washington and was born on the latter's estate, Harwood, near Charleston, W. Va.

The invocation was given by the Rev. Frank A. Tyler, pastor of Grace M. E. Church South, and the benediction by the Rev. J. E. James, pastor of the Epworth M. E. Church, both of Gaithersburg. The presentation of the tree was made by Mrs. Clyde E. Thomas, president of the garden club, and was accepted by Dr. Wilson. Music was furnished by the Gaithersburg High School Orchestra.

At a business meeting the garden club selected Mrs. T. W. Troxell, Miss Elverta Cooke and Miss Mabel Becraft to serve as a nominating committee, to prepare a slate of officers for the annual meeting in December. Plans for a public meeting to be held November 15 were discussed.

Police Discount Story Of Arlington Auto Bomb

Arlington County police last night were inclined to discount the report of James A. Tripp, 30, who reported a bomb was placed in his automobile last Monday night. Tripp lives in Arlington and is employed in Washington as a painter.

Tripp, interviewed by a reporter, said the bomb was placed in his car by a ring which he said operates in Virginia and other nearby States. He said once before a bullet fired from the darkness narrowly missed him. The bomb was a bundle of giant firecrackers and several handfuls of gunpowder.

Car Crash Is Fatal To Mrs. B.E. Rogers

Charlottesville Woman Dies in Capital Hospital; Was 77 Years Old.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 2.—Mrs. Bettie E. Rogers, of this city, injured in an automobile crash on October 22, when the car in which she was riding was sideswiped on Lee highway cutoff, near Fairfax, by one driven by Peyton L. Hinkle, of South Port, Conn., died yesterday at Georgetown Hospital, Washington, D. C. The body will be brought here for interment.

Mrs. Rogers was Miss Bettie E. Pace, a native of Earlysville, this county, and was 77 years of age. She left Charlottesville ten days ago to make her home with her granddaughter, Mrs. John V. Walsh. At the time of the accident she was on her return to this city to visit her grandson, Theodore German.

Mrs. Rogers is survived by two children, Herman B. Rogers, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and a daughter, Mrs. Ora Ashford Balderson, of Washington.

ENGLISH MARCHERS STARTED HOMEWARD

Petition Signed by 1,000,000 Was Seized by Police During Rioting.

London, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—After the first contingents of the 2,000 "hunger marchers" who swarmed into London last week from all parts of the United Kingdom were started homeward tonight the mystery of what happened to their petition purportedly bearing 1,000,000 names was solved.

The petition demanding abolition of the means test, which limits dole beneficiaries and which never reached the House of Commons as was intended, was confiscated by police when they learned it had been checked in the Charing Cross railway station.

Three men presented a check at the station for the bundle tonight and seemed angry when told it had been given to police. The men were informed they would have to make their protest to railway authorities.

The only disturbance today involving "hunger marchers" was one in which they denied all responsibility. About 100 police were sent to a London County almshouse to quiet a demonstration by inmates who were aroused because of extra food given to "hunger marchers" stationed there. The latter received the extra food from sympathizers. They denied any part in the demonstrations and said they had shared food with the regular inmates.

Club Achievement Fete to Open.

The annual Achievement Day exercises of the Home Demonstration Clubs of Fairfax County, Va., will be conducted today at Forestville in the Great Falls Grange Hall. The program will open at 10:30 this morning.

Alleged Matricide Awaiting Verdict

Birmingham Lawyer Pleads Insanity in Effort to Save His Life.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—A jury which for 10 days has heard testimony and arguments tonight deliberated the case of John R. Boyle, prominent attorney, charged with slaying his mother, Mrs. Jessie Boyle, 66, last June 13.

Boyle entered pleas of not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity to the indictment, charging he slashed his mother's throat and pushed her over a precipice on Shades Mountain, where they had gone to gather flowers. Boyle contended that a highwayman attacked him and his mother.

His wife told the jury that for several weeks before the slaying she regarded her husband as mentally unbalanced.

2 R.F.C. EXAMINERS CONFER IN NEVADA

Governor Says Debt Holiday Will Be Cut if Money Is Forthcoming.

Reno, Nev., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Two examiners of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation arrived by airplane today to confer with executives of the Wingfield banks, which have requested a $2,000,000 loan for refinancing during the twelve-day banking and debt holiday proclaimed in Nevada.

With deposits of nearly $20,000,000 tied up in the closed banks—twelve Wingfield institutions and six others—merchants throughout this section, which embraces the great stock raising area of the State, reported business was proceeding on a somewhat curtailed basis.

Collections on the first of the month statements were particularly poor, they indicated. The proclamation of Acting Gov. Morley Griswold called for a twelve-day moratorium on all debts and obligations, except taxes, beginning yesterday.

A. R. Leroy and John H. McKee, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation representatives sent from Washington, held an extended meeting with the Wingfield Bank officials.

They were understood to have been informed that refinancing of the Wingfield banks had been made necessary by reason of the inability of live-stock men to meet their obligations.

Gov. Fred Balzar, who went to Washington to seek the $2,000,000 loan, left for Reno today and said the moratorium period will be shortened if the money is forthcoming before the expiration of the twelve days. He will confer with Leroy and McKee here Saturday.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

THE PILGRIM'S FIRST WINTER
"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by Herbert Roese, celebrated painter... inspired by the bitter hardships endured by America's first settlers in their conflict with raw, wild nature (1620). "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies

Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"

FOREIGN GOODS RUSHING IN.

In his verbal message to fellow Californians last night President Hoover laid stress upon the benefits received by the Pacific Coast through tariff protection. He called attention to Gov. Roosevelt's attacks upon the tariff which has been the backbone of Pacific Coast production. Mr. Hoover did not allude to Senator Johnson, who, although heretofore a protectionist, is now lined up with Gov. Roosevelt and his tariff reduction policy. Doubtless Senator Johnson is hearing something interesting from protectionists in his State.

No other State is more fully protected than California. Mr. Hoover told the Californians that but for the present tariff New Zealand butter would be underselling the home product in California; that Europe would be sending lemons to New York at $3.50 a box, instead of paying $6.50 a box for California lemons; that the egg industry had been saved by the tariff; that raisins and figs would now be selling for 50 per cent less except for the tariff; that California wool commands 38 cents a pound in Boston, while Australian wool could be sold there for 22 cents but for the tariff. Lumber of the Pacific Northwest is protected against British Columbian and Russian lumber.

The fish-canning industry of the Coast is now threatened with destruction by Japanese competition, made more dangerous by Japan's depreciated currency, and steps are now being taken to work out a tariff defense against this new onslaught. Imports of canned sardines were 90 per cent greater in September this year than in September last year. Canned vegetables, dried fruits, beans, pulp, iron and steel are also threatened by ruinous Japanese competition.

President Hoover did not say so, but there is reason to suspect that the enormous increase of cheap Japanese imports into the United States is fostered if not subsidized by the Japanese government, for the purpose of building up a commerce that will help to defray the extraordinary military expenses of Japan in Manchuria. Japanese exports of cotton fabrics to India are also said to be assisted by the imperial government, which seems to be taking advantage of the Indian boycott of British goods to capture the Indian market. In an attempt to counteract Japanese inroads the Indian government has increased the tariff on cotton goods by 25 per cent.

No one having knowledge of Pacific Coast conditions would encourage Gov. Roosevelt to attack the protective tariff as it applies to that region. His statement that "here on the Pacific Coast the tariff has had a destructive effect in our Oriental trade" must have dismayed his Democratic admirers who are dependent upon tariff protection against Oriental competition.

The Japanese invasion of the American market is new, and its growth is amazing. Tariff hearings in Washington during the last month have brought out the fact that several important industries are on the point of collapse as a result of Japanese underselling, despite the tariff. Within a short time it is virtually certain that the automobile tire industry will face ruin unless it is protected against Japanese tires. A peculiarity of recent development is that Japanese goods are equal in quality to American goods, and in some cases superior.

The whole country will become intensely interested in tariff matters if imports from countries having depreciated currency increase their exports to the United States at the present rate. Mr. Hoover has sounded the alarm to Californians, but the warning applies just as well to the industrial East.

DISORDER IN MANCHURIA.

Japan is finding its experiment in imperialism a costly undertaking. The latest news of more extensive engagements with 8,000 Chinese irregulars in the northwest and a concerted attack upon Tsitsihar probably do not concern Japanese military leaders so much as the widespread minor disorders scattered throughout the new state of Manchukuo. The superior equipment of Japanese troops leaves little doubt regarding the result of any engagement when the opposing force can be met in anything like a battle. It is the multitude of elusive small bands roaming the country which cause greatest damage and worry.

Recent Japanese estimates place the number of roving bandits and rebels at not less than 70,000. It is not difficult to compute the Japanese and local troops necessary to garrison cities and towns, patrol the railroads and still provide forces to hunt down the mobile marauders who live off the country and have no fixed headquarters. The extent of operations necessary is indicated by the Manchurian Daily News, a Japanese paper published in Dairen, which reported that in one period of seventeen days there were 80 bandit attacks of serious importance, minor raids by small groups not being considered a matter of news.

Bandit depredations take the form of wrecking and looting trains, destroying telegraph lines and sacking towns and villages. In all of these raids where there are regular troops the bandits lose five to ten times as many killed as the Japanese, but a dead bandit's equipment is quickly appropriated by another and the ranks filled. As a result of the disorders, which continued throughout the growing season, many settlers were forced to abandon their crops to crowd into garrisoned cities for protection. A new and more serious development of the latest fighting in the north is that Chinese troops of Manchukuo, organized under Japanese supervision, have begun deserting to the invading irregulars. At Tokyo such vast sums are being asked by the army and navy for new equipment and the cost of prosecuting the campaign in Manchuria that opposition is now being heard from the cabinet.

47,000,000 VOTERS.

Registration of voters exceeds all previous records. A survey by the Associated Press indicates that nearly 47,000,000 citizens will be eligible to vote next Tuesday. With few exceptions registration has been heavy throughout the country.

There are a number of reasons why people are more anxious than usual to vote this year. The most popular explanation is the "protest vote." Yet that is at most only one factor. Fear of a protest vote has doubtless induced thousands to register so as to offset that vote. In many States of the North a Republican victory is considered just as much a matter of course as is Democratic victory in the South. Hence, millions see no reason why they should take the trouble to go to the ballot box in ordinary years. This year it is different.

Registration fell off in only six States, three of which are in the South. Voters in Arkansas, Georgia and Texas doubtless consider the election already settled so far as the electoral votes of those States are concerned. It is difficult to understand the reasons for decreased registration in Pennsylvania, Delaware and Idaho. Republicans who are eligible to vote in Pennsylvania increased their numbers to a new high record. Why Democratic registration did not also increase in view of the intensive drive that has been made in that State is a puzzle.

Colorado furnishes an interesting example of the States that have enrolled large numbers of voters because of a close contest. Registration in that State increased by more than 25 per cent. California shows remarkable gains, most of them on the Democratic side. In ordinary years the Democrats of California don't have much chance to win. This year they believe they have a good chance.

William Tyler Page, former clerk of the House of Representatives, thinks that the increased registration does not necessarily mean an increase of votes next week. In the solid South many thousands may consider it a waste of time to go to the polls. But in the East, West and Middle West new records probably will be set. This year's campaign appeals to the personal interests of every individual. Millions will cast their ballots with a conviction that their economic welfare depends upon the outcome. Whenever a campaign makes such a close personal appeal to the masses the voting is unusually large.

FOREIGN LOANS.

The question of the State Department's responsibility for the flotation of foreign loans in the American market has been raised during this campaign. Senator Glass in his address on Tuesday evening stated that "the record warrants the assertion that the Republican administration at Washington, through its Department of State, was consequentially responsible for the flotation of these worthless foreign securities." He insisted that the Department, by requiring all proposed loans to be submitted to it for scrutiny, incurred a moral responsibility for a loan when it failed to object to it.

The law does not authorize the Federal Government to regulate the sale of foreign securities. Proposed flotations after the war gave rise to questions of political import, and the United States found it necessary to scrutinize proposed loans, and to object to flotations which would run afoul of the foreign policy of the Government. Mr. Hughes, Secretary of State, made the Department's policy clear in this statement:

> The Department will not pass upon the merits of foreign loans as business propositions, nor assume any responsibility whatever in connection with loan transactions.

The policy of the Coolidge administration in this matter has been continued by the Hoover administration, and would have to be followed by any administration regardful of avoiding foreign political complications.

Secretary Stimson, in his speech at Dayton last night referring to the absence of any Federal law regulating the sale of foreign securities, expressed the opinion that "there is probably no constitutional authority for the Federal Government to make such a law." At first blush it might seem easy to enact a law enabling the Government to regulate the sale of foreign bonds in this country, but second consideration reveals many reasons why such legislation would be unwise, even if it would be constitutional.

The first objection to such a law is that the Government would be regarded as a virtual guarantor of any loan which it approved. Senator Glass holds that bankers and investors imputed a moral responsibility on the part of the Government when it failed to object to a flotation, although Secretary Hughes had expressly declared that the Government assumed no responsibility.

Another objection to Federal regulation of foreign loans, or at any rate commercial loans, is that this is private business, coming within the jurisdiction of the States.

Another objection is that power would be given to the Government to promote or impede financial transactions affecting foreign governments, and that this power might be misdirected under the stress of international emergencies.

The fact that the Government is charged with having usurped and misused the power of objection or approval of loans, so that American investors have lost money because they were led to believe that the United States had approved of certain foreign loans, is sufficient to prove that it would be unwise to establish Federal regulation of the sale of foreign securities. So far as these securities are business propositions, and not affected by international political considerations, they should fall under the rule of "caveat emptor," along with all other business transactions. The States can prevent abuses in this field. It is not up to the United States to take over any more of the duties which the States refuse or neglect to perform.

PANHANDLING.

The estimate of Elwood Street, director of the Community Chest, that Washington people are giving $1,460,000 annually to panhandlers is a shocking revelation. People do not realize when they give a dime or a quarter to a beggar on the street that the total amount of such contributions would very nearly finance the welfare programs carried on in Washington. But that seems to be a fact.

Panhandlers have become especially active during the depression. They find that people who do not believe in giving to professional beggars are especially softhearted at present. The result is that large sums reach the pockets of panhandlers who would rather beg than work, while worthy citizens in need of relief are denied adequate care.

There seems to be only one way of remedying this situation. Individuals soliciting alms on the streets are liable to arrest as vagrants, but few citizens are inclined to turn over to the police a man who claims to be hungry and penniless. Furthermore, the professional mendicants make a point of soliciting where no policeman is in sight. Unless the public is educated to the waste and demoralization that results from the practice of indiscriminate giving, there is no hope of stopping this racket.

One excellent deterrent is the distribution of tickets entitling the holder to relief through the Community Chest, if he is found to be needy. The organized relief agencies are able to distinguish between the individual who is in desperate financial straits and the professional mendicant, while the average citizen can not. Relief tickets should be more widely distributed so that they can be given to panhandlers in place of cash. Public cooperation in this respect is highly important to the establishment of a rational system of relief.

Pat Harrison is so thrilled by the "new deal" that he bases all his campaign speeches on the promises of 1928.

THROUGH A CREVASSE

From the Kansas City Kansan.

Capt. Louis Calvin Migaud, oldest active Mississippi steamboat pilot, swung around from the wheel of the Ouachita as she lay at her berth in New Orleans Harbor, removed his cigar from his mouth, and exclaimed: "I've seen this old river in all kinds of moods, but that crevasse of 1889 up at Bonnet Carre was the worst of all. You know what a crevasse is like? It's like nothing else under the sun! When this river pushes out of bounds and goes rolling over the fields and farms it tears out a piece of levee and sounds like the water from 10,000,000 bathtubs sucking through the hole. It catches up everything in sight and carries it along. And that is when a pilot's hair is pretty likely to turn white in a few minutes. I tell you he's got to steer clear of crevasses! I remember * * *

"I was piloting the old St. James bound up the river and making pretty good time, too. Ahead of us, all of a sudden, I saw smoke rising and a big sidewheel boat came nosing down toward us. It was the Katy, one of the finest and biggest boats on the river, a mighty cotton carrier; used to be called the Ed Richardson; belonged to Capt. John Tobin, who built the J. M. White. Our captain came up in the pilot house just then.

"'Louis,' he says to me, 'here comes the Katy. And do you know who she's got on board? Old Jeff Davis himself.' (You know, after the Civil War Mr. Davis lived at his plantation, Briarfield, on the Mississippi, until he died. He used to make trips down to New Orleans with us frequently; a nice old gentleman, too.) 'Well, captain,' I told him, 'I am glad I ain't piloting the Katy now. That pilot better look close. If he gets any nearer that crevasse he'll get sucked through. Look! What'd I tell you?'

"At that moment we saw that big river catch the Katy up like a chip, spin her around and then send her rolling out of the channel through the crevasse and over the fields hidden under the water. 'My God! Captain, I'm awful glad I ain't in that other pilot's shoes,' I told him. 'Louis,' says our captain, just as easy as you please, 'we're going right out after her.' And I tell you we did go after her, too. Right spang out of the big river, through that big hole in the levee and over the fields. If you ask me how I did it I can't tell you. In that stiff current all a man could do was to hold a straight course and ask the good Lord to bring him out all right. But we made it. We rescued Mr. Davis and all the other passengers on the Katy and brought 'em into port. Yessir! I hope I never see another crevasse like that. At least, I hope I never have to negotiate one."

POST HASTE

"President Machado wins sweeping victory." The old-fashioned Cuban broom is more infallible than even a modern Hoover vacuum cleaner.

The backfire of bonus demands in the midst of depression is going to be to put veterans on the defensive to hold benefits unless they were actually disabled by war service.

Another burning question is what shall we do with or to the 20 per cent of the voters who don't register and the 15 per cent of those registered who don't vote?

Some one ought to tell us just how industrial leaders who advise their employes to support the administration can coerce and browbeat a free electorate casting a secret ballot.

Congress may have a pronouncement to make regarding Gov. Roosevelt's somewhat free use of first person singular promises of legislative action.

If the President did elongate the time a bit in fearing that an administrative change might disrupt traditional principles for 100 years, it would at least have to be left to our great-grandchildren for check.

More power to Mr. Harlan's suggestion that racketeers and gangsters as enemies of society and a class apart be handled by military law.

Senator Glass undertook a big job when he tried to shift responsibility for inflationary measures from House Democrats to the President.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

GRANDPAP'S JOB.

Just the right job for an old-fashioned chap
Who doesn't care much for an afternoon nap,
But would much rather sit in the four-seated swing

Keeping them quiet when company's near;
Just the right job for a grandpap like me,
Telling them stories of sailors at sea,
Pirates and Indians, wildcats and bears,
While father and mother are resting upstairs

Just an old grandpap, as worn as a shoe,
Little in life there is left I can do;
This task's too heavy and that one's too long,
My fingers are fumbling, my legs are not strong.
Still there's a need for us old fellows queer,

Maybe they'll miss them when I disappear;
Maybe they'll wish for me. Maybe they will Find there's a place only grandpaps can fill.
Maybe they'll learn, as I learned long ago,
There are some things only granddaddies know.

A Brief History of Finance as Practiced in the Land of Easy Money

By ROBERT QUILLEN

TEN men who were financiers chipped in ten dollars each and bought a fine cow that gave ten gallons of milk every day.

The milk was divided at night and each man received one gallon as his share.

Soon the neighbors far and near heard about the wonderful cow and said to one another: "Think of getting a whole gallon of milk every day! What a wonderful return on a ten-dollar investment! I wish I had a share in her."

When this talk was repeated to the ten men, they held a meeting and one of them said: "Let us give these people what they want. Our shares in the cow cost us ten dollars each, and we can sell other shares at the same price."

So they went to a printer and obtained one thousand sheets of paper bearing the legend: "One share in the cow." Then they sold 500 of these shares at $10 each, which brought them $5,000, and divided the other 500 among themselves as their reward for being smart.

Each man of the ten now had 51 shares, whereas in the beginning each had but one.

But one of the ten began to worry.

"Look here," he said. "Every fellow who bought a share in this cow will expect a gallon of milk tonight, and the cow gives only ten gallons. When the milk is divided into one thousand and ten parts these new shareholders won't get a spoonful. Shares will drop to nothing. We'd better unload while we can."

So the ten men went out on the street to find investors and each of them sold the fifty shares that had been awarded to him, and thus they obtained a second $5,000 to divide among them.

But now night was drawing near and again one of the ten began to worry.

"There will be a row at milking time," said he. "Hasten abroad and persuade each of the shareholders to sign a proxy, which is a joker authorizing you to cast as you think best the vote to which his share entitles him. Then return with the proxies and we shall do some voting."

At twilight the men met at the barn, and in their hands were 1,000 signed proxies to represent the absent shareholders. And the ten were entitled to vote in their own right, for each still held his original share.

"Now," said the one who did the talking, "we must reorganize. This company needs a president, a treasurer and eight vice presidents. That gives each of us a job. And since there are ten of us and the cow gives ten gallons, it is moved and seconded that each of us receive a salary of one gallon of milk per day. All in favor say 'aye.'"

The motion carried without a dissenting vote.

And they milked the cow.

Brooklyn Eagle.

Yale is very much in the limelight of Connecticut politics this year. Gov. Cross, who has held down a chair of English and served as dean of the graduate school, is running to succeed himself. Prof. Albert Levitt, of the Brooklyn Law School, who has several degrees from Yale, is a nominee for the governorship on an independent Republican ticket. Hiram Bingham, who seeks reelection to the Senate as the regular Republican nominee, was professor of Latin-American history at Yale and finds one of his opponents in Milton Conover, professor of political economy, who is a running mate of Prof. Levitt. The regular Republican nominee for congressman-at-large is Charles M. Bakewell, professor of philosophy at Yale.

Assurance is given the Investment Bankers' Association by Arthur A. And all of that in spite of the notorious administration mismanagement and of unsound fiscal policies of which the country has been hearing so much lately in campaign speeches.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Farmers Pay Large Part of Railroad Workers' Wages—Lower Freight Rates Would Help Develop Business.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Postponing or preventing entirely wage reductions is well for the railroad workers. When the unions protest that the 10 per cent reduction already received has reached bedrock it might be well for them to consider who is paying their wages and how. A large portion of railroad income comes from the transportation of farm produce and sending supplies to farming communities. Consequently farmers are paying directly or indirectly a considerable portion of those wages.

While railroad wages have been reduced 10 per cent, farm gross incomes have been cut from 50 to 75 per cent, with all operating expenses to come out of the balance. In the last two years the price of wheat has been reduced about half, oats two-thirds, corn about three-fourths and hogs to less than half. This means that farm income in many cases is considerably less than nothing, after expenses are paid. How then can farmers be expected under those circumstances to pay transportation charges based on merely a 10 per cent reduction in wages? The answer is that it can't be done for long.

With ear corn worth about $5 a ton and coal at $7.50, corn will be used for fuel, resulting in no business for railroads and no work for trainmen. With lower transportation costs, made possible by lower wages, corn could be shipped out and coal shipped in, resulting in employment and business at a lower level, but much better than total unemployment.

Another example of too much difference is seen in the fact that hides will not pay the freight to market, and yet farmers are using old patched harness because they cannot pay the price of new leather.

No real prosperity can exist with such unbalanced conditions. The sooner this fact becomes generally recognized the sooner business will become normal.

Protests Against Taxi Rent System as a Racket Which Utilities Commission Should Suppress.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A couple of weeks ago the Public Utilities Commission started out as if to enforce its order forbidding cab operators to force taxi drivers to pay rent for the privilege of working. However, after causing the arrest of a few rental drivers, the P. U. C. seemed to revert to its old policy of doing nothing and the rent rackets kept right on forcing the drivers to turn in a fixed sum each day as usual.

The hack inspectors' force in the meantime was increased to about the size of the German army. The new additions to the force, having nothing else to do to kill time, went right to work on the depression-ridden drivers, enforcing all kinds of petty regulations against them. The question arises, is the rental racket like the liquor racket, stronger than the District government? Why are the P. U. C. and the inspectors so able in the enforcement of petty regulations against the drivers, and so futile in their attempts to curb the rental racket?

Enforcing the rental order would do more to check the flood of cabs and eliminate the cruising evil than any of the methods now used for these purposes. Enforcing the anti-rental order—not picking on the drivers—is the real answer to the taxicab tangle. B. L. H.

Bewildered Voter Has His Brands All Mixed and Everything Going Up in Smoke.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Between cigarette brands and political brands I'm all upset. Until now, noted athletes and other celebrities have confined their indorsements to this or that brand of cigarettes, but since they have gone in for political parties I am unable to follow understandingly. Perhaps you can advise me.

If I reach for the Republican lever on the voting machine and Hoover should make a lucky strike, will I keep getting slender? On the other hand, will Roosevelt and Garner satisfy? Supposing I vote blindfolded, are we likely to go off the old gold standard?

Nature in the raw is seldom mild, so I can not vote for Communists. They nauseate and leave a bad taste. What brand do you suggest?

ARTHUR J. STANFIELD.

New York City.

Thinks Congress Should Help People to Get Back to the Land.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Congress should attempt to move a few million of our people from the congested cities and put them back on the land in subsistence plots, or small farms, rather than permit the gradual strangulation of the race.

There is plenty of land, and instead of making appropriations for the construction of buildings and roads that nobody wants, or will ever use, it would be a God-send to many families if they could be financed by the relief agencies, placed on small plots of land, and carried a few months until they can raise enough stuff for their own use. Why not utilize Government parks for this purpose, or other unoccupied land, about 200,000,000 acres of which is still available?

I, for one, am strong for giving the needy an opportunity to dig in the soil and work out their own destinies in complete freedom—and aid them while they are doing it. Our pioneers did it that way; why not our moderns?

THOSE NEW BRIDGES.

As if the people of this country didn't have enough to worry about, the rules committee has changed the rules governing the great American disturbance known as contract bridge. The decision to make new rules came just as the people were making a little progress in understanding the old ones.

* * * *

The committee explains that it has been preparing the new code for more than two years. It now thinks it has succeeded in providing so many new rules that even Culbertson and Lenz will have to think hard.

* * * *

Indignation at the new rules is general throughout the United States, the rank and file of contract bridge players contending that they should still be allowed to make up their own as they go along.

* * * *

Early reports from 38 States show that while the playing is no better under the new rules the fights are much hotter.

* * * *

Bitter battles between players who still stick to the old rules and those who think they have mastered the new ones are reported raging on all fronts, and the percentage of married couples going home from the bridge party in separate taxicabs has gone up 35 per cent.

* * * *

THE scrambled regulations are too confusing for easy consumption, but the following summary will give you a general idea:

UNNECESSARY ROUGHNESS.

1. Clipping and straight-arming an opponent are illegal, except in cases where a partner refuses twice to return your lead.

2. Elbowing and the use of knees and shoulders are barred at all times and the use of the flying wedge is taboo except in protecting the "dummy."

SUBSTITUTIONS.

1. No substitution for a player may be made after an opponent has led a card.

2. Substitutes for "dummy" may be sent in at any time it appears to the coaches that the "dummy" is groggy, uninterested or blotto.

GENERAL.

1. Piling on is permissible only in the case of the player who keeps an ace until it is too late to take a trick with it, and in such an instance the player gets 15 yards for holding in the line.

* * * *

BROWBEATEN.

Your eyes are twin stars agleam
Hiding woman's ancient scheme;
For you, whole world I'd have seized—
If your eyebrows weren't tweezed.
—Zev Graham.

AN OPPORTUNITY MISSED.

Either presidential candidate could have made a tremendous hit with the country by canceling his speech the night before the new contract bridge code went into effect and broadcasting the entire text of the new rules.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

WHETHER radio helps or hurts the box office is a highly controversial question, but it is our opinion that an occasional broadcast would greatly help the National Symphony Orchestra.

There are thousands in Washington who have never heard this orchestra. Had they the slightest conception of the work Hans Kindler is doing here many might go to the Washington Auditorium to give him their personal encouragement. Having heard the orchestra over the air they would have the added assurance they would get their money's worth at the concert.

It is also important that the orchestra be heard nationally, and we feel confident its competent manager, C. C. Cappel, will find a way to bring this about.

Seeing Norman Brokenshire in "The Big Broadcast" at the Palace Theater reminded us of a visit we had from him in the early days of broadcasting, just after he had left WRC.

"Do you know who I am?" Brokenshire demanded.

"Sure," we replied, and proceeded to make a terrible mistake, judging from the expression which later came across "Broke's" face, by adding, "You're Ted Husing!"

As a result of the scrimmage between Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, and Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills, radio speakers are preparing to keep a closer watch on the advanced copies of air addresses. Senator Glass claims that Secretary Mills secured an advance copy of his speech attacking President Hoover, enabling Mills to reply to charges made by the Virginia on the same radio chain, immediately following, and thus probably reaching the same audience. This sets a new speed record for political speech come-backs, with the Democrats burning on the one hand and the Republicans elated on the other.

General Motors is reported to have appropriated $1,250,000 for four radio program series for the forthcoming season. The Buick half hour, featuring Paul Whiteman's Orchestra, is now on the air. Al Jolson will start the Chevrolet feature on November 8. Oldsmobile will begin in December and Pontiac in January.

Howard Thurston, magician, will make his radio debut in a new series of programs to be heard from the Chicago studios every Thursday and Friday at 8:45 p. m. over the WJZ-WBAL hookup. For the initial performance, Thurston and his company of dramatic artists will present the adventure of the "Death Ray Mystery," in which he saves the life of a beautiful young woman.

LEARN the latest news from all parts of the world as it is being gathered by The Washington Post by tuning in on WMAL for "The Postilion," at 10 p. m. before turning off your radio set for the night.

Evan Evans, baritone, will feature "Please," from "The Big Broadcast;" "Mimi," "All American Girl" and "Old Man River," during his appearance with Jack Denny's Orchestra at 8:45 o'clock tonight over WJSV.

Now that static has begun to clear up, radio fans will have the pleasure of trying to add a new distant station to their log. It is WKAQ, San Juan, Puerto Rico, a thoroughly modernized transmitter. The station operates with a power of 1,000 watts.

The Capt. Emery Showboat comedians, Molasses 'n' January—Pat Padgett and Pic Malone—give an authentic Southern flavor to the Thursday night broadcasts (WRC, 9 o'clock), because they were both "bawn" in the South. Malone is a native of Dallas, Tex., and Padgett is a native of Georgia.

ONE thing was decided by the Radio Manufacturers' Association when they met in New York recently—there will be no national radio show in 1933. In fact, there may never be another one. The show will be omitted this year as an experiment to see what effect, if any, it has upon the year's business.

Radio manufacturers are to be urged to devote more advertising space to a discussion of program features. M. H. Aylesworth told of plans to develop programs designed especially to promote use and, therefore, sales of automobile receiving sets and also sets particularly adapted to office use. Business programs for business men, Mr. Aylesworth said, are now on the air but will be developed further and more successfully if manufacturers will build sets more adaptable to offices and office furniture.

REENTERING BIDDING IS HELD ADVANTAGE

By F. HAL SIMS.

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—In contrast to my requirements for opening the bidding first and second hand, an archaic method still in vogue permits openings in those positions with the fallacious holding of two and one-half honor tricks. Such openings often are followed by catastrophes.

In the first or second position the player has no knowledge of the other three hands. For safety's sake, among other things, requirements for starting the auction must be greater than after opponents have indicated that they do not have powerful hands.

When previous positions have passed, third and fourth positions can appreciate that there is no tremendous alignment of cards against them.

From the standpoint of first and second positions there is a distinct strategy in reentering the bidding after you have passed, a strategy not available if your opponents realize you would open if you had two and one-half tricks, the half at times consisting of nothing but an utterly worthless queen in one suit and knave in another. If first or second position passes and then makes a defensive overcall less trouble is likely to result under my requirements. Your opponents know that perhaps you passed a semirockcrusher. Championship players long since have discarded the foolish way of opening the bidding taught novices.

The one-over-one force of the Sims system enables information to be exchanged freely by partners without risk, is precise in arriving at game and slam contracts and helps partners to stop and sign off before arriving at utterly impossible commitments.

We have a leeway principle. Opponents of players using the one-over-one force don't know from the bidding what types of hand they are up against. They are tempted to give you a clew to their cards by overcalls. They force with a bid of one higher than necessary, in which case the user of the one-over-one force waits for them to get into a cotnract they can't make, because he realizes where the strength is. Those who bid one-over-one as an invitation don't get anywhere. If the original bidder fails to accept the invitation to bid again, his opponents surely are not going to let his partner get away with a cheap contract to take seven tricks. The forcing bid in low ranges is really essential to the easy exchange of information.

A rival method of bidding stresses that suits must be bid originally in preference to no trump, and what a terrible result with many hands! Often hands of partners can make game or slam at no trump if the correct hand of the two is the declarer. Assume you have a couple of suits headed by ace and queen and a third headed by king and jack, and in the fourth nothing but the king and deuce. Bid your long suit and your partner is likely to deny by overcalling you with no trump. You raise and there is a no trump game contract with your hand as dummy. Your ace-queens and your king-jack and perhaps your once-guarded king are led through, instead of up to. If you had bid no trump originally game would be easy because the leads would be up to your ten-ace combinations instead of through them. No trump bids conceal your weakness from the enemy. Suit bids reveal it.

I love it when followers of a certain system bid slams in a guessing contest based on inferences as to total honor tricks held. They duplicate values often and down they go. They think seven honor tricks or so, indicated by original bids, forces and raises, means taking twelve tricks when often some of those honor tricks may be in the same suit, with no regard for a suit in which each partner has two or three losing cards.

There is reasonable safety in the Sims method of slam bidding and surely go after the big hands as much as anybody. After partner and myself have agreed on what we want to make the trump further bidding of other suits by either of us shows possession of an ace. Often one such ace-showing bid is all that is needed. Lack of such a bid from either partner is a stop signal. We stop short of the impossible slam bids that the other fellow stumbles into blindly.

Anyhow, I am certain that the last word on contract bidding has not been written. So many players are using my methods that I guess I'll try and think up some new wrinkles.

Congress Criticism Called Habit.

Kansas City, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, Florida congresswoman, told the Women's City Club here today that ridicule of Congress, like the mother-in-law jest, is largely a habit—and unjustified.

TELEGRAPHIC DISPATCHES

Catawba, N. C., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Yeggmen entered the Bank of Catawba last night, burned open the vault with an acetylene torch and escaped with approximately $2,000.

Chardon, Ohio, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—The first snow of the season fell here and in Hampden today while most of the rest of northeastern Ohio was enjoying sunshine and slowly rising temperatures.

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Conrad Nagel, motion picture actor, was elected president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences at a meeting of the board of directors last night.

Ellensburg, Wash., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Virtually abandoned since the more riotous days of the gay, gold-mining nineties, diggings in the Swauk area are being worked again by miners from all over the West, encouraged by a find of $10,000 in one small pocket.

Albuquerque, N. Mex., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Thomas H. Brothers, 25, Fort Wayne, Ind., was arrested today and charged with passing forged money orders. His bond was set at $2,000. Federal authorities said he stole 75 money order blanks at Fort Wayne and cashed them throughout the West.

New York, Nov. 20 (A.P.).—Reductions of 16 2-3 per cent made last spring in salaries and wages of employes of the United States Freight Co., a forwarding concern, were restored September 1, the company announced today, due to an improvement in business. F. M. Mellus, president, said tonnage in September was about equal to that of September, 1931.

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—One hundred and three high city officials rode the subways or taxis today because Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee had taken away their city-owned cars.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

IT just simply has to be done, that's all.

Think because Mrs. So-and-so has a French maid, or because Miss So-and-so makes enough money to send her things all the time to a good and expensive cleaner, that is the reason why they are always elegant and soignee?

Well, it isn't. There isn't a French maid on earth, with even the best intentions in the world, who will do one single thing one jota better than her mistress expects of her. If her employer doesn't expect the utterest best—she simply doesn't get it, that's all—no matter what she pays for. And if said employer doesn't know what the best is—isn't truly elegant, doesn't refuse to accept a single stitch or button off or wrinkle in—she won't get perfect service from her maid and consequently won't be perfectly soignee herself.

And maids notwithstanding, the care you take of your own clothes. How long you can keep them, how always fresh and neat, if you but will! Just the least littlest things—for instance, the corset furor we had the other day, the maid and I. Well, to cut an agonizing story short—corsets must be sunned and aired, washed or cleaned as the case may be, every so often—and often sunned and aired meanwhile. Then, ribbons and garters and straps on corsets or brassieres need much more frequent changing than the corsets do themselves. And lastly, this washing and sunning and airing will take the color out of them—fade them and make them look old, whether they are or not. And all you or your maid has to do is to dip them, the washable ones, of course, in one of the water tints on the market, of which there are so many! All new, then, all my corsets and brassieres— daintily pink as a blushing rose, newly garbered and strapped and beribboned and laced—even though there's a place for a new maid in my repertoire!

Which simply doesn't mean a thing in the life of a lovely lady, my deahs. Here I am tonight in between dashes to the typewriter, washing out dem collahs and dose cuffs, and furiously soaking that darling organdy vestee in a mild bleaching solution which one uses at the rate of a few drops to a quart of water—and which makes all the difference between oldish and dingy cotton or linen things, and white, white ones—drat that maid.

And the white fox fur collar goes into French chalk and a brown paper bag until it is to be used again—when it is shaken thoroughly, with one's hair tied up in a towel, and not a dark dress on—but my white furs always look white, and nothing but!

And the black negligee with the pink velvet sleeves goes back to the cleaner tomorrow—at his expense, with a firm reminder that lovely ladies do not accept bad work at any price * * *.

And you can manicure yourself. And you can shampoo your own hair. And you can keep your complexion clear and lovely, and your hands soft and smooth and young—and oh, a million other things like this. I know you can, because I do 'em—and I have the time and I take the time, and when I haven't, I make the time. And I have a birthday this month, too—and, well—drat that maid, ennyhow!

* * * *

Gosh, I am on the warpath today! Even so that I knocked a couple of more slats and sides and things out of packing cases and made a couple of more pieces of furniture! Yes, now there simply isn't anything we haven't made for Dawn Mirage in the way of furniture out of packing cases—except a gas stove. That makes tables and chairs and stools and benches and a couch and a dressing table and a wardrobe—and better send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make all these things out of packing cases, too. They're more fun to make, and more joy to have—you'll see.

An revoir.

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO."

IF November 3 is the date of your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 1 p. m. to 2:15 p. m., from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger hours are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., and from 3 p. m. to 3:45 p. m.

November 3 influences will tend to induce a feeling of unrest in most people. Business activity in most fields will probably be both fitful and fretful with a general feeling with the coming of night that little has been accomplished. Business and social ventures embarked upon on this November 3 will be of uncertain outcome. In the home, irritating and disturbing influences of a petty nature will be apparent.

The child born on this November 3 will probably have a rocky road to travel dus aither to his inability or unwillingness to consider the wants and feelings of those about him. More than just a trace of selfishness will be found in his character. The child will be possessed of a happy nature and inclined to exaggeration and to extravagances in his speech.

If November 3 is the date of your birth you are probably motivated in all that you do with a desire to be outstanding, to excel. You do not seek necessarily wealth or power, but it appeases your vanity to be pointed out as the person who has done this, or accomplished that, with great success. Unless you find yourself doing some creative work or occupying a position of many and various duties you will probably not remain long in any one line of work. You are not a rolling stone at all, but you must always be doing something new and, if possible, something different than the ordinary run of work.

Your outstanding fault is probably the unfailing habit of "airing your own views" on any subject whatsoever. Your conversation, more often than not about yourself and what you think, is rarely brilliant, usually dull and boring. Occasionally you forget yourself and at these times your friends and business associates are given a glimpse of a much finer you. On these occasions you show yourself to be fundamentally kind and considerate of others, interested in the welfare of people as a whole, more than willing to lend a helping hand, and all in all a most pleasant person to be with. Why not try more to cultivate this seldom seen self?

Successful people born on November 3.

COOKING BEEF.

(Bureau of Animal Industry.)

When the home maker goes to market to buy a piece of beef, she has to think of two things: She wants a cut that will fill the desired place in the menu and at the same time be consistent with the contents of her pocketbook. With the knowledge of the different cuts and how to cook them in order to bring out their best qualities, she can select and serve appetizing meats to suit any family budget.

Tender Cuts.

Steaks—Sirloin, poterhouse, tenderloin, club and rib (short cut).

Less Tender Cuts.

Steaks—Chuck, shoulder, flank, round and rump.

Stews—Neck, plate and brisket, flank, shank and heel of round.

For tender cuts the best method of cooking is to sear the meat at a high temperature for a short time until a brown coating is formed, then to reduce the temperature and finish the cooking at moderate heat. Do not cover the meat and do not add water. Meat cooked in this way loses little of the delicious flavor developed by browning, and the drippings can be poured over the meat or made into tasty gravy.

Tender cuts are cooked until rare, medium or well done, according to personal preference. A meat thermometer kept in the center of the roast during cooking removes the guesswork and makes it possible to get the exact stage desired. Beef is rare according to the meat thermometer between the temperatures of 130 and 150 degrees Fahrenheit, medium between 150 and 170 degrees Fahrenheit and well done at about 180 Fahrenheit.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

SO MUCH emphasis has been placed on the slim silhouette that young girls start strenuous reducing measures long before they should. The majority of these girls jump from high school or business college right into an office, where they are confined for eight or nine hours a day. Their work is new to them, which adds to their tension. They rush to business via subway, or similar vehicle, in the morning, rush out again at noon for a sandwich and soda at the corner drug store counter, rush to a store to do some hurried shopping, rush back to the office. Home or restaurant for the evening meal, out to the theater, movies or party, back to their home, out of their clothes and into bed—breathless, tired—steal a few minutes' extra sleep in the morning, which means more rushing to get to the office when the clock strikes nine.

That is a picture of the young business woman as a famous physician gave it at a recent lecture. And we are inclined to believe he painted it with rare accuracy. Don't you agree? This medico goes on to say that very soon the young business woman finds herself with a severe case of "nerves," and without the necessary flesh, not superfluous flesh, mind you, but the necessary flesh that makes for graceful, round curves, for health and for a smooth, unwrinkled face and neck.

Arrange Day Efficiently.

The first thing for every business woman to do is to arrange her day as efficiently as she does the duties of her office. Plan definitely all the time you have away from business. So much for shopping, so much for parties, so much for sleep (and never skimp on the last), and please—so much for beauty. The last means exercise, fresh air and all the other health rituals as well as the actual time you give to beauty treatments. If you happen to be up very late one night, do plan to get to bed very early the next. This planning and balancing of the time budget will help you to accomplish more in the long run, and "to make haste slowly." This is an excellent maxim, particularly for women with nerves or without flesh. Remember that relaxation and sleep are the most nourishing flesh foods and health builders; so indulge to your heart's content and your body's welfare. Nine or ten hours of sleep each night won't give you an overdose of avoirdupois if you are under weight.

As for food. Do eat slowly, and instead of a sandwich have a salad or a bowl of cream soup, some cooked vegetables or foods that really tempt your palate, providing they are rich in nourishing elements.

And don't attempt to rush about or shop, or see people during your lunch hour. The only things permitted you, aside from actually eating during this time, are a short walk before or after lunch, a short beauty treatment if that helps to pep you up, or a ten-minute rest in an easy chair. Two or three times during the day, throw your window wide open and take deep breathing exercises. Many of the large business organizations have ten-minute periods at 10:30 and 3:30 for this purpose. After your day at the office, try to arrange to walk home part of the way. You'll feel the better for it.

There are two bulletins which may interest you. One is my Beauty Schedule, which will tell you how to budget your time; the other is my weight gaining leaflet. Please send self-addressed, stamped envelope for these.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

THE infantile paralysis season for 1932 is drawing to a close. The same is true of the epidemic encephalitis season, though that fact is not as well proved. On the other hand, the season for epidemic meningitis is just starting and will not reach its peak until March.

The fact that these diseases have their seasons of prevalence does not mean that they are not to be found out of season. Infantile paralysis will be moderately prevalent until December and there will be some of it each month of the winter and spring. The great majority of mild cases of infantile paralysis are never seen by physicians and, of those cases that come under observation of doctors, only a small part are seen by those who have had experience with as many as two cases.

If a physician examines 100 cases of scarlet fever, whooping cough, erysipelas, and other well known diseases he will make the right diagnosis in 96 of the lot. If, on the other hand, he sees 100 cases that are certainly infantile parelysis, but in which there is yet no paralysis, he will be right in his diagnosis of only 50 of the number. If he sees only cases in the first phase of the disease and makes diagnoses he will be wrong in a much larger proportion.

These are the conclusions of Dr. J. E. Gordon, and his experience at Detroit qualifies him for an authoritative opinion.

should prove to be reliable, physicians should use it on the very early suspicious cases with advantage.

Infantile paralysis is the best known of the sway-back diseases. Each of this group of diseases has a first attack of fever and other symptoms, lasting from one to three days, followed by several days of apparent good health. This sway in the back is followed by a second hump—a second attack of fever and other symptoms. The first hump has the appearance of an ordinary attack of mild fever, with some headache, some general aching, and some digestive disturbance. There is apt to be constipation, though in a few cases there is diarrhea, and there may be nausea and sore throat.

What would make one suspect infantile paralysis in that stage? Not much, and what there is may be overlooked. The presence of other cases roundabout, the season of the year—these are the two principal reasons for suspecting the case to be one of infantile paralysis. If the parent is watching closely she may notice that the child is unexpectedly irritable or, on the other hand, is too sleepy. Or there may be some muscle stiffness or soreness, or the skin may be a little too splotchy. Perhaps even a better reason for suspicion is the absence of any other cause of the symptoms, such as malaria, a common cold, sore throat, rheumatism, appendicitis, or what not.

With the onset of the second hump there is likely to be more room for suspicion. First, symptoms that go off and then return without cause in from three days to a week is a combination that should always arouse suspicion. Then, careful observation shows tenderness of muscles, irritability on being held, stiffness of the neck and back, tremor in one set of muscles, one leg or one arm, mottling of the skin, and muscle weakness in one set of muscles. At this stage, and well before any paralysis develops, tests of the spinal fluid will settle the question definitely.

THE STRATEGY OF OVERCALLING —OR NOT OVERCALLING—I.

WHEN the opponents have opened the bidding with either one notrump or one of a suit, you and your partner are temporarily on the defensive; whether you will be so or not at the time the contracting is completed is as yet unknown. The question of whether to take immediate action when sitting back of the Opening bidder, when you hold a hand containing considerable strength, cannot be decided by hard and fast rules. As a certain expert player once said to a weak partner who had been tossing him all evening:

"Get the idea out of your head that you are expected to bid every time it comes around to you."

Assume the opponent on your right has opened the bidding with a suit bid of one. Of course, you may have a bust hand and would automatically pass; on the other hand, you may hold any number of hands containing anywhere from 1½ to 4 or more honor-tricks. Paradoxical though it may sound, very often it is best to overcall immediately with a 1½ honor-trick hand and to pass quickly with a 4½ honor-trick hand. Passes of this latter type are quite naturally strategic passes, as the pass momentarily denies holding even half as much strength as your hand contains.

When the opponent has opened the bidding, a quick glance at your hand should tell you: First, whether the opponents have a game or not; second, the chances for a game or even a Slam for yourself and partner; and third—depenedent upon the answers to the first two questions—what is the best way to attack or to defend.

Assume the Opening bid by your opponent is one heart. You have a very weak hand with about 1½ honor-tricks, but a six-card suit topped by the Queen-Knave-Ten, and among your other worthless securities, a doubleton in hearts. It looks very much as though your opponents have a game in hearts. On this type of hand, particularly if you are not vulnerable, it is best to overcall immediately with one spade. You make this bid, firstly, as a nuisance bid, to interrupt, if possible, the lines of communication between the Opening bidder and his partner, and secondly, to show your partner a possible line of defense, as a sacrifice bid of four spades might eventually be found to be in order. In this situation, as a matter of fact, expert players sometimes make a Jump Overcall of two spades to make it more difficult for the opposition. However, using the Approach-Forcing System, this is bad policy, as now your partner will not be able to have any faith in your sound Jump Overcalls, when, as and if made.

However, let us assume vulnerable opponents to have opened the bidding with one heart. You hold a fairly large hand, containing over 4 honor-tricks and a 4-3-3-3 or a 4-4-3-2 distribution, and you have something, incidentally, in hearts back of the heart bid. This is the ideal type of hand on which to make a strategic pass. An immediate Overcall will naturally stop the Responding Hand from making a response on a possibly shaded holding. You pass and Responding Hand keeps the bidding open for the Opening bidder. Your opponents may pretty soon get to the point where you can make a lucrative Penalty Double. If the hand is passed out at one heart, you still have a chance of beating the Declarer 100 or 300 points, which counts for more than any part-score you could make. If, on the other hand, your partner has some strength and you could have made game, you are liable to set the opponents as much as 500 or 700, which is still better than the nonvulnerable game you might have scored. Of course, in making strategic passes of this sort, you need the cooperation of a good partner who should realize the possibility of your having passed with quite some strength and who will reopen the bidding for you in the fourth position either by a simple Overcall or a Take-out Double on a possibly shaded holding.

I will discuss this subject further next week.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

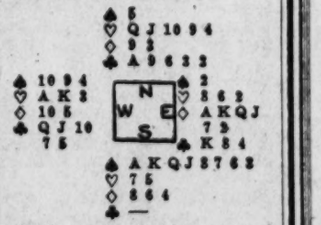
North—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

TWO SLAIN, ONE SHOT IN RAID ON ROBBERS

Lapeer, Mich., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—A burst of gunfire that greeted deputies and bank officials when they called at a farm house near here today to question occupants about a bank robbery resulted in the death of one deputy, the wounding of another and the apparent slaying by his own hand of one bandit suspect.

Three persons, one man and two women, were arrested and are being questioned concerning the shooting and robbery.

Deputy Sheriff Harvey Tedder, of Oakland County, fell with a shotgun charge through his chest as he approached the farm home of Benjamin and Scott Dillon, 8 miles north of here. Undersheriff Frank Greenan, also of Oakland County, was wounded in the arm and chest, and Benjamin Dillon, 20, who fired on the deputies, shot himself in the head, dying an hour later in the Lapeer Hospital.

Police said that before his death Dillon admitted participating in the holdup last July of the Clarkston State Bank, at Clarkston, Mich. The bank was robbed of $5,000 by two youthful bandits, who escaped in the midst of gunfire by Clarkston business men.

Scott Dillon, 26, brother of Benjamin, was arrested at the farm home, together with his mother, Mrs. Claudia Dillon, 52, and Miss Marian Halliday, 17, who for the past several weeks had been living at the Dillon home. Police said they denied knowledge of the robbery.

The officials said they found several guns and a quantity of ammunition in the home, as well as a large amount of merchandise, believed to have been stolen from merchants in the vicinity.

Central Union Mission Asks Clothing for Idle

With the first touch of November cold, the Central Union Mission last night issued an appeal for overcoats and men's clothing for the approximately 450 jobless men who are applying nightly for free shelter. Superintendent John S. Bennett declared that not a single man in the line-up during the last two nights had an overcoat and most of the men still wore thin summer clothing.

The mission will receive clothing at all hours of the day or night at its headquarters, 613 C street, or it will send its truck to make collections in any part of the city, he explained.

SYNOPSIS

Dan Hardesty and Joan Ames meet in Hong Kong's most famous international bar and fall in love at first sight. They are passengers on the same liner bound for San Francisco, but each hides from the other the sentence of death that hangs over them. Joan has an incurable heart ailment. Dan faces a death penalty at San Quentin.

Eluding officers, Dan has one glorious day with Joan at Honolulu. He plans to escape on a tramp steamer bound for Mexico. On the way to boat, he tells Joan of his trip. The shock brings another heart attack and Dan forfeits his chance for freedom in order to get the woman he loves safely back to the steamer. En route to the American coast she proposes that they meet New Year's Eve in Auga Caliente and Dan, hiding his grief, accepts with a cheerful smile. Later she learns from a steward what awaits Dan when he arrives. When he says good-bye, they both repeat their pledge to meet below the Mexican border. At that supreme moment neither can say "good-bye."

The cabin on the liner S. S. Paris shown in the accompanying picture may be your stateroom during a round trip to France to be awarded the winner of the Warner Bros.-Washington Post "One Way Passage" contest.

From the distant corners of the earth beauty was brought to grace the lovely interiors of the S. S. Paris cabins. Created by famous Parisian decorators, Italian marbles, the etched glass of Lalique, mural paintings, silken damasks, Morocco leather and novel appointments make these rooms as fascinating as those of some great chateau.

From Plane to Liner.

Here's how you may win this trip!

With the cooperation of Warner Bros. Earle Theater, Eastern Air Transport System, the Edison Hotel and the French Line, The Washington Post will award a free round-trip to France, without strings or obligations, for the most logical 20-word interpretation of the unusual and very dramatic ending of "One Way Passage," the Warner Bros. and Vitaphone picture featuring Kay Francis and William Powell, which opens tomorrow at the Earle Theater. The ending of this unusual romance can be interpreted literally or symbolically. Your interpretation may win the trip!

The winner may take along an escort.

Before starting the sea voyage to France, the winner and escort will be taken to New York in one of the large airliners of the Eastern Air Transport System and will make their home, while in New York, at the Edison Hotel.

Method to Follow.

The rules are simple:

1. No employe of a Warner Bros. theater, The Washington Post, the French Line, Eastern Air Transport or relatives of any employe of these firms is eligible.

2. The answer must be sent to the "One Way Passage" Editor of The Washington Post, postmarked not later than midnight seven days following the closing of the picture. That is, November 17.

3. It will not be necessary to purchase an admission for the showing of "One Way Passage." You may use the synopsis published in this issue of The Post.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

Joan Crawford

TIMES have changed. It was not so many years ago that the Will H. Hays organization set its foot down firmly upon the proposed picturization of "Rain," the play in which the late Jeanne Eagels had achieved her supreme triumph on the stage, and emphatically decreed that it should not be. It was only by changing its name to "Sadie Thompson" and guaranteeing certain modifications in treatment of the story that Gloria Swanson succeeded, finally, in winning the approval of Mr. Hays and his associates to her project.

In the meantime, "Rain" has not changed basically as a dramatic narrative; it still depicts the losing warfare waged by the Reverend Davidson against the seductive wiles of a garish and blatant young fugitive from justice in the South Seas; it still makes her apartment at Joe Horn's trading post in Pago Pago the rendezvous of all the U. S. Marines not on active duty, and it still reeks a little of the looseness of the brothel in the vigorous pointing of its conflict.

Yet here it is, in essence the same vivid story of tropical turpitude it has always been, coming into the Palace tomorrow with its name unchanged and its content officially unchallenged by Mr. Hays and his cohorts.

This, I think, is as it should be. My point, if any, is that the play never should have been banned from the screen in the first place. But since it was, how now is its frank exposition in celluloid form to be reconciled with the former taboo, or vice versa?

To be sure, it is not an unexpurgated "Rain" that will be seen in this second United Artists release of the picture with Joan Crawford in the Eagels part. In this audible screen version of the play, which Miss Swanson made as a silent picture, the roles of Mrs. Davidson and Dr. McPhail have been boiled down to an almost irreducible minimum, to the almost complete destruction, needless to say, of their original significance. In the original John Colton play, it was these two who by their tacit disclosures of his hidden nature supplied the physiological and psychological background for the character of the Rev. Davidson and rendered plausible the tragedy of his self-inflicted death out on a lonely beach. These character sidelights are wholly omitted from the picture, and for that reason, and to that extent, the climax of the film loses in point and power. Those who have not before seen the play in something a little more closely resembling its original form will wonder what it is all about.

I do not mean to say that "Rain" in its newest manifestation will be found uninteresting; merely that it is less interesting than it might have been, left a little more as it was in the beginning and not made quite so insistently evangelical through much of its length as it is now. The salient facts of the original drama are present. The secondary facts, supplying the motivation and the logic of the play's major movement are not.

Evidently the objection to "Rain" does not rest so much upon the things that happened in it as upon why they happened. This seems to me a thoroughly silly point of view.

Either "Rain" is fit to be filmed or it is not fit to be filmed. If it belongs on the screen at all it deserves to be reproduced there with some fidelity to its original intent and purpose—enough at least to afford a sound biological premise upon which to base the startling quirks of character it discloses in the figure of the reformer who now cracks up spiritually for no good or apparent reason.

Since the vagaries of a slightly cockeyed theater season have suddenly resulted in the removal of "Cynara" as the prospective attraction at the National the week of November 14, and plopped the revival of "Show Boat"—the last production of the late Florenz Ziegfeld—down in its place, instead, the popular-priced matinee benefit performance for the Actors' Fund of America, announced in this column yesterday for the afternoon of Friday, November 18, is automatically and definitely off. But then, life is like that—here today, gone tomorrow!

Always difficult of successful solution, the problem of Saturday bills satisfactory to both adults and children seems in a fair way to be worked out by the management of RKO-Keith's. In addition to the regular program of screen subjects selected for the edification of those of mature years, each Saturday a new installment of "The Last Frontier," a thrilling Western chapter play, and a revival of some Mickey Mouse cartoon comedy that has proved its worth are being shown at morning and late afternoon performances on Fifteenth street.

With a flat rate of 15 cents at all times for juvenile patrons, Keith's is fast becoming the "Children's Theater," at least one day a week, without annoyance to the customers in search of adult diversion. A good managerial trick, even if you can't do it!

Speaking of good managerial tricks, Rodney Collier, managing director of the Rialto, has thought up one for election night. Instead of cluttering up his picture screen with statistics on the balloting, Lowell Sherman, Lila Lee, Peggy Shannon and the other principals of "False Faces" will be permitted to go about their business unmolested. For those more interested in the election results, smaller auxiliary screens will be hung in the proscenium side-tabs, originally occupied by illuminated Grecian field scenes when the theater was new.

Of course, there may be some slight likelihood of getting a little confused and thinking it is Mr. Sherman who has just carried New York and the Messrs. Hoover and Roosevelt who have gone in for the plastic surgery, but what's a trifle like that on election night?

Incidentally, one of the short-reel supplementaries at the Rialto next week will feature Morton Downey with Vincent Lopez and his orchestra, both fresh in Washington's memory—Mr. Downey for having been here in person a short time ago; the Lopez Orchestra by reason of its participation in "The Big Broadcast."

With yesterday's matinee practically sold out and business gaining by leaps and bounds as the week progresses, the National Theater bids fair to chalk up a high gross for the week's engagement of "The Cat and the Fiddle"—as it richly deserves. And that is only half the reason for Master Steve Cochran's wide grin. There is another week just like it in the offing—Earl Carroll's ninth edition of the "Vanities," opening Sunday night, with Al Trahan and Mitchell and Durant featured among more gorgeous gals than the season has so far produced.

The election week attractions in the ornate temples of the cinema promise to be something like this: Loew's Fox, Clive Brook and Miriam Jordan, in "Sherlock Holmes," and a four-star vaudeville bill headed by Dorothy Jordan in person; Earle, Kay Francis and William Powell in "One-Way Passage," and Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink headlining the vaudeville bill; RKO-Keith's, Mitzi Green in "Little Orphan Annie;" Rialto, Lowell Sherman and Peggy Shannon in "False Faces;" Palace, Joan Crawford and Walter Huston in "Rain;" Columbia, Lilyan Tashman and Mary Astor in "Those We Love;" Metropolitan, Edward G. Robinson in "Tiger Shark," second week.

Mme. Schumann-Heink, at the zenith of her career the greatest of Wagnerian contraltos, and later one of the commanding figures of the concert stage, arrived in Washington for her week at the Earle last evening at 6:45, from a brief vacation in Atlantic City. She is accompanied by Katherine Pike Speeden, who serves in the dual capacity of companion-secretary offstage and piano accompanist on. Eluding the theoretically vigilant eyes of both William C. Ewing, of the Warner publicity department, and Harry E. Lohmeyer, manager of the Earle, at the station to meet them. Mme. Schumann-Heink and Miss Speeden proceeded at once to the Hotel Washington, spent last evening in taking a leisurely constitutional through the downtown thoroughfares, and are spending today sightseeing and otherwise diverting themselves pending the beginning of the Earle engagement tomorrow morning.

So now you know, Bill, if you and Harry are still trying to find them!

No use fretting, though. About all you can do in a case like that is just feel low 'n' grin!

THURSDAY NOVEMBER 3, 1932 SPORTS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

CAPT. H. H. WELLS, director of the intelligence and publicity office of the United States Military Academy and as well-met a gentleman as it has been the privilege of this department to know, hastens to correct what he fears may be a false understanding of West Point's athletic policy.

To Bob Considine, of The Post's sports staff, the estimable captain addresses a letter which in fairness to Army and its athletic principles it is a pleasure to publish. Quite concisely, Capt. Wells goes on record:

"I have read with considerable interest your story in The Post of October 27, in reference to the possibilities of Mr. Whelan, of Catholic University, entering the Military Academy. May I assure you that not a single officer of West Point connected either with our football coaching staff or the Army Athletic Association has approached Mr. Whelan with a view toward influencing him to enter the Military Academy."

Whelan's Ability Is Fresh News.

"Furthermore," Capt. Wells relates: "I have inquired around the post and have been unable to find any one who has heard of Mr. Whelan's football abilities. It is my belief that persons reading your story will feel that some one on duty here has engaged in proselyting. This is absolutely false.

"For your information, I am inclosing a bulletin of information relative to the entrance examinations for West Point. Officers on duty here have absolutely no way of influencing appointments or of obtaining appointments.

"I have written to Mr. Whelan asking him to let me have the names of the 'representatives of the United States Military Academy' who approached him.

Relations With Navy Now Cordial.

"Our relations with the Naval Academy are now extremely cordial," Capt. Wells reminds, "but stories such as yours are bound to stir up the old controversy, and I have yet to find a sports writer who regrets that the two service academies will meet this year in the five major sports.

"I am uncertain as to whether another story on Mr. Whelan would be advisable, but if you think proper you may use this letter and quote me as you desire."

West Point Rests Its Case.

The good captain has left nothing to the imagination concerning West Point's stand against the recruiting of players, and with his case rested, perhaps there is a defense for the article by Mr. Considine anent overtures made to Whelan.

The fact remains that, on the authority of Whelan himself, he was approached by a certain individual who inquired into the possibility that the Catholic U. star might matriculate at Army. It is entirely possible, too, that every well-wisher of West Point is not connected either with the Army coaching staff or the Army Athletic Association, the two groups Capt. Wells has cited as having had no traffic whatsoever with Whelan.

Football players who have made their reputations in college have been known to enter West Point in goodly numbers in the past, and should Whelan matriculate there also, it would not shatter precedent. But Mr. Considine was incorrect, perhaps, in the statemetn that Whelan was solicited by "U. S. Military Academy representatives," and The Post deeply regrets that assertion.

But perhaps Capt. Wells has fumbled the ball also. He states that nobody at West Point ever heard of Whelan's football abilities. One demerit for the Army Intelligence Service.

Woman Seeking Post As Manager of Reds

Cincinnati, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—The hands that rock the cradle put in a bid today for a chance to do some ruling in the baseball world.

A woman, a resident of Sioux City, Iowa, sent in an application for the job of manager of the Cincinnati Reds.

"I would like to apply for the position of manager of your team," she said. "I am sure I would make a better manager than Joe McCarthy. I am a high school graduate and my greatest sport interest is in baseball.

"I would draw crowds from all over because of being the only woman manager in baseball. I have been told many a time that I wasn't hard to look at. If you hire me you'll never regret it. I'll be waiting to hear from you."

And President Sidney Weil, who refused to give the woman's name, could say only "Tra-la," and murmur something about picking a manager some time. Most Red fans think it will be Donie Bush.

RAY STEELE WINNER.

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Ray Steele, 216, of California, threw Pat McKay, 215, Memphis, with an airplane spin after 32 minutes and 27 seconds of grappling in the main bout of the St. Nicholas Arena wrestling show tonight.

North Dakota Tricky Foe For G. W.

Stewart Rejoins Colonials for Tomorrow's Night Battle.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

DISQUIETING reports concerning the North Dakota State football team, which plays George Washington University's ambitious Colonials tomorrow night in Griffith Stadium have seeped out of the wheat-belt on the eve of the game.

North Dakota, according to friends of George Washington situated in that region, is one of the trickiest teams the Dakotas have ever developed and will stoop to any legitimate bit of football mesmerism to win tomorrow night. The Bisons are one of the 20 unbeaten teams in America, and are undisputed champions of the North Central Conference.

Lateral passes off kickoffs, low passes over the line of scrimmage and a couple of hip-grinding backs are the physical manifestations of North Dakota's dexterity.

Some of its featured stars are Bud Jacobson, 185-pound, 6 foot 6 inch end, who is extensively used as a ball carrier. He does most of the punting for his team and frequently mixes up opponents by sweeping end runs from kick formation.

McKay Fine Pass Receiver.

Full Back McKay can not only hit the line with great force, but is adept at receiving forwards, as can be attested by the fact that he caught five out of seven in the Moorhead Teachers game last week, which the Bisons won by a decisive score, 24-0. The flat Bison passes scored touchdowns against both Wisconsin and Minnesota last season. Johnny Fischer, half back, does most of the passing. He threw a ringing wet ball 45 yards successfully last Saturday.

George Washington will have real trouble going anywhere against the middle of North Dakota's line, which boasts of big brawny linemen averaging 200 pounds. One of the teams N. D. State has beaten this year is N. D. U., which held George Washington to a 6-6 tie last year. In the opinion of many Midwestern experts, North Dakota State could beat Iowa (G. W.'s last opponent) by almost any score it pleases.

Visitors' Captain Injured.

The visitors, who arrive today, will not have the services of Capt. Schoenfelder, who received a broken leg in the final Bison workout.

G. W., practicing at Griffith Stadium yesterday, was cheered by the return to uniform of Zuzu Stewart, stellar tackle, who demanded a chance tomorrow night. Stewart probably will be used during a part of the game.

Tickets for the intersectional grid treat are on sale at Spalding's, the ball park and the university. The game will start at 8 o'clock.

Shenandoah Priming For Landon Contest

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 2.—After taking three decisive trouncings in as many weeks at the hands of Virginia elevens, Shenandoah Valley Academy's football team, of this city, is going through intensive practice this week in preparation for the tilt with Landon School, of Washington, D. C., on the grid here Saturday afternoon, November 5.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 2.—The Naval Academy soccer team which has been showing a fine brand of the game since the opening of the season, had its work cut out today to maintain an unbroken string of victories in meeting the strong team of Syracuse University. The contest, desperately waged from the start to finish whistle, was taken by the Tars, 1 to 0.

The Middies scored their lone goal eight minutes after hostilities got under way. Forcing the issue from the outset, the Naval lads managed to work the ball into good position, and during the thick of a scrimmage Geist booted the leather into the net.

9 of 12 Winners Is Record for Grid Contest

NINE winners in twelve games stand as the best record for the thousands of entrants in The Post's popular football selection contests, and that mark was attained last week when the Nation witnessed its greatest number of upsets of the current season.

This week's contest finds the fans severely divided on only two or three of the dozen games submitted for their selections and the record of nine winning teams seems destined to go by the boards when the results are compiled Saturday night. Indications point to a fine possibility that the winning entrant will select every successful eleven.

The Catholic University-Wake Forest, Brown-Holy Cross and Northwestern-Ohio State battles continue to prove the sticklers among the dozen games which comprise the contest and out of the thousands of entrants the Football Contest Editor is anticipating at least one perfect score.

The current week's contest closes tonight at midnight with all replies in the mails before that hour accepted by the Football Contest Editor. Merely clip out the list of games, insert the probable scores, append your name and forward the clipping.

To the winner of the contest will be given four choice box seats to the George Washington - William and Mary game at Griffith Stadium a week from tomorrow night, with two grand stand seats to the second-place winner and one grand stand seat to the man, woman or child gaining third in the contest.

Canzoneri Choice To Defeat Petrolle

New York, Nov. 2 (U.P.).—Tony Canzoneri, world's lightweight champion, is a 9-to-5 favorite to retain his title against Billy Petrolle Friday night, according to Jack Doyle, Broadway's betting commissioner.

Doyle said he expected Canzoneri to be a 2-to-1 favorite when they climbed through the ropes for their fifteen-round bout at Madison Square Garden. "The bettors believe Tony is too young, too fast and too smart for Billy," he explained.

But these odds are not bothering Petrolle, "the Fargo Express." Billy sat down in an easy chair at his hotel tonight and predicted that he'd knock out the champion.

"I've been waiting ten years to win the lightweight championship," said the beetle-browed former freight car checker of the Northern Pacific, "and I'm going to win it this time. I've got to take it now or never because I've only got a couple of more fighting years. I'm 27 now."

Hutchinson Is Winner In Optimist Club Golf

At the regular weekly luncheon of the Optimist Club held yesterday at the Hotel Hamilton, Optimist Don Hutchinson, of Beaver Dam, was announced as the winner of the President's Cup in the club's annual golf tournament.

Hutchinson negotiated the difficult Indian Spring course with a net score of 72. He was followed closely by Fred W. Baer, of Indian Spring Club, with a net 74.

In addition to the President's Cup, other prizes were won by Joseph Kammerer, low gross; George J. Richardson, second low gross, and Hugh Phillips, third low gross.

Arrangements for the tournament were handled by David Morris, chairman of the golf committee. Presentation of prizes was by George J. Richardson, winner of the President's Cup in 1931.

Maryland, Vanderbilt Teams Guests of Fox

Football teams from Vanderbilt and Maryland, which will clash Saturday at Griffith Stadium, will be the guests of Loew's Fox Theater Friday night.

Carter Barron, city manager of Loew's Washington theaters, has received a telegram of acceptance from Dan McGugin, coach of the Commodores, stating that he and his team would be present along with cheer leaders and student rooters.

Started early in the football season, "college night" has proven a popular feature at Loew's Fox. Barron, the sponsor, was a former Georgia Tech star, having been a member of the Golden Tornado's backfield several years ago. He is the younger brother of the famous "Red" Barron, who won All-American honors at Georgia Tech. Still a younger brother is playing half back for Tech this season.

TOMMY PAUL WINS.

District Tennis Body Again Gives Honor to 1931 Star.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA tennis history repeated itself within the space of a year last night when the ranking committee of the Washington Tennis Association bestowed upon Dooly Mitchell the No. 1 honor for 1932.

Mitchell was ranked far ahead of the remainder of the local field in the ratings which were revealed as a feature of the annual dinner of the association at Wardman Park Hotel, where District tennis enthusiasts gathered in large numbers to learn their fate or the fate of others of the 1932 crop.

A pleasing commentary on the come-back of Bob Considine, former District champion, was the assignment to him of the No. 2 position after a year's absence from competition locally. This post Considine earned chiefly by advancing to the finals of the District tournament.

Mitchell Won Three Local Tourneys.

Three local championships fell before the onslaughts of Mitchell's racquet last season. He won the City of Washington tournament, the Public Parks tournament and the Wardman Park tournament to clinch his honors beyond the realm of doubt.

The rise of a trio of younger players in the ranking was a feature of the 1932 list. Anthony Latona, ninth in 1931, was awarded No. 3 honor, while Gilbert Hunt, eleventh last year, earned No. 8. Upshur Moorhead, far down in the 1931 list, gained the No. 8 position.

Maurice O'Neil, veteran star of the District's courts, paired with young Barney Welsh to gain No 1 in the doubles, an honor won over the youthful team of Frank Shore and Anthony Latona, who were named No. 2.

Gathering Addressed By Lawrence Baker.

The gathering was addressed by Lawrence A. Baker, secretary of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, who regaled his audience with intimate phases of the 1932 trip of the American Davis Cup team, which he accompanied to Paris.

101-Yard Run Features Indians' 77-0 Victory

Williamsburg, Va., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—William and Mary took Bridgewater College's Eagles over the hurdles, 77 to 0, tonight, with a varied running attack that the visitors were unable to stop.

The tenth touchdown of the evening, a spectacular 101-yard run by Dale Worrell, was the most spectacular. He teamed with Clark Giles for high scoring honors, with three touchdowns apiece.

Maryland and Tulane Elevens Clash in 1933

Maryland University yesterday signed articles to meet Tulane, at New Orleans, next year. The date is unsettled, but it is likely to be November 4. Vanderbilt, which is met Saturday at Griffith Stadium, will not be played next year.

Florida is also on Maryland's next year schedule, taking the customary place of Western Maryland, December 2. Georgia Tech is also expected to be part of the Old Line schedule next year.

In an effort to secure bigger and better competition for the College Parkers, Curley Byrd, it is believed, will lessen the number of intra-State games. Navy, Hopkins and Western Maryland will be retained, but the chances of Washington College and perhaps, St. John's, of making future Maryland schedules, are somewhat shakey.

BYRD AIMING TO CHECK ROBERTS

"STOP Dixie Roberts" is a saying that is becoming popular in the Southern Conference, and this week it is the keynote expression of the Maryland University training camp, as the Old Liners tune up a defense calculated to do just that.

The odds are much against Maryland's stopping the irrepressible Vandy back-field ace, but that is not deterring Coach Curley Byrd's pregame plans. Putting the ball and chain on Roberts is comparable to seeking applicants to tie the bell around that historical cat's neck, except there were more applicants yesterday at College Park who promised Byrd that Maryland would do something Saturday that no team has been able to do in nearly two years.

Maryland, however, may be so intent upon bottling up Roberts' shifty-hipped alants that they will overlook a new-fangled shift which Coach Dan McGuigin has installed lately. Criticism of this new maneuver has been rampant throughout the Southern Conference, but Vandy supporters claim that it is legal and that no amount of adverse comment will cause them to abandon a style of line-up that opponents have been finding utterly confusing.

Maryland Without Scouts.

The Terrapins staged a long workout yesterday, largely given over to defensive work, but some time was spent on the speedy Maryland backs, which Byrd hopes the team can shake loose Saturday and permit them to whizz along the Griffith Stadium turf.

Vanderbilt leaves for Washington tonight, and will arrive tomorrow morning. Unbeaten and untied, except for a 6-to-6 game with Tulane, the Commodores represent some of the best competition seen in Washington in several years. It is their fourth meeting with Maryland, and they have yet to lose. Last year Maryland held the Vandy squad to a 12-to-12 score at the half, but Roberts ran for four touchdowns in the second half and his team won 39 to 12.

Young Firpo Battles Reed in Portner Bout

Local boxing fans will be offered a group of favorites on the supporting card at Portner's Arena Monday night where Jimmy Reed crosses fists with Young Firpo, Penn's Grove, N. J., sensation.

In the semiwindup Jack Simpson, clever conqueror of the Raspi brothers and a host of other featherweights in local rings, has been paired off with Doug Swetnam, Harry Groves' fast improving featherweight.

Harry Kersey, who made such a hit when he beat Sailor McKenna, mixes with Vince Serio, Baltimore, in another six. Serio has also whipped McKenna.

Willie Essinger, the slugging local lightweight, returns to war to meet Sammy Lucas, another of Buzzer Ryan's proteges. The four-round opener is to be carded.

White Sox Release Rothrock and Selph

Chicago, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—John Rothrock, outfielder, and Carey Selph, utility infielder, have been released by the Chicago White Sox to the Columbus Club of the American Association, according to a bulletin today from Commissioner Landis. Officials of the White Sox were out of the city. Selph was drafted from Houston, Tex., while Rothrock came from the Boston Red Sox.

The players were sent to Columbus to complete a deal for Evar Swanson, outfielder, whom the White Sox obtained from Columbus last September.

137-POUNDER TO OPPOSE C. U. TEAM

Special to The Washington Post.

WAKE FOREST, N. C., Nov. 2.—Already possessed of one of the figest defensive elevens in the Piedmont section, Wake Forest's "Deacons" are hopeful of presenting a vastly improved attack Saturday when Catholic University's flying football team is met in Washington, D. C.

Considering this the most important game remaining on its 1932 schedule, Wake Forest has remained fairly well under cover since the Duke game two weeks ago. Having polished their offense perceptibly since then, the "Deacons" are confident they will be prepared to make a smashing bid for an upset upon launching of play.

Though held to a 7-0 score by Delaware this past Saturday, Wake Forest won fairly well as it pleased. Secreting many of their plays and holding back most of their punch for Saturday's impending engagement, the locals nevertheless had the situation well in hand all the way.

Deacons Prepare Attack.

An effort to develop a more versatile attack has been made by the "Deacons" in practices this week. Boasting a "pony" back field comprised of Wall, quarter back; Wilson and Peters, half backs, and Lawhorn, full back, the Carolinians have made a particular effort to strengthen their passing game, using "Shorty" Wall as the spearhead of the tossing.

Wall, scaling just 137 pounds and a triple-threater upon occasion, has impressed most in recent maneuvers. Naturally quick witted and alert, the youngster has mastered several new plays that may enhance his eleven's scoring punch considerably.

Reports emanating from Washington and other Eastern centers regarding the brilliance of Tommy Whelan, Catholic's fine running back, has in no way intimidated Wake Forest. Having stopped onslaughts directed against them by some of the Southland's finest backs and having yielded but nine points in five games to date, the "Deacons" are in no way fearful that Whelan, superstar or not, will run wild against them.

PENN WORKS IN SECRET FOR PITT

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—There was much secretiveness and mysterious goings on around Franklin Field today in preparation for the all-important football game between Pennsylvania and Pittsburgh here next Saturday.

No mere student, or faculty member, for that matter, was allowed any inkling of what the representatives of eastern Pennsylvania are going to do to the representatives of western Pennsylvania on the Franklin Field battleground.

Secret drills have been carried on in the gymnasium behind locked doors and hard practice was held on the field today with no "outsiders" present.

Just before darkness fell, however, the field gates were swung open for about 400 students, who were permitted to see the team go through some of its regular drills, including dummy scrimmage and signal practice.

Notre Dame Victory Adds Zest.

Pitt's victory over Notre Dame last Saturday and the fact that neither the Panthers nor the Quakers have encountered defeat this season, has given zest to the coming game. Pennsylvania sees a chance to win the mythical Eastern football championship and is making the most of her opportunity.

With Pitt an odds-on favorite to win, the Quakers are not going into the game with any defeatist sport. Coach Harvey Harman says, and a hard battle is looked for.

Reports come from Pittsburgh that the Panthers came out of the Notre Dame game in good condition, and that the players are confident of maintaining their winning way against their Eastern rivals, Pitts has not lost to an Eastern team since 1930, and Jock Sutherland, the coach, is expected to send in the same strong team that upset Notre Dame last week-end.

Harman Keeps Team At Home.

Breaking the rule of sending the team away from the scene of conflict for a day prior to a big game, Harman will keep his men at work on Franklin Field, perfecting plays that he is expected to spring.

Penn's full strength will start the battle. Capt. Sokolis, around whom there was some doubt as to whether he would be in the line-up at the opening whistle, is reported in fine physical condition and will take his place at tackle.

The two big teams of William Penn's domain have met ten times and Pittsburgh has walked off victorious in eight of the clashes. They tied, 3-3, in 1919, and in 1923 Pennsylvania won, 6 to 0. They have not met since the game of 1925 when Pitt won, 15 to 0.

West Point, N. Y.—Army held its final hard workout before the Harvard game, dividing the time equally between attack and defense. After a long lay-off the Cadet varsity showed a lack of coordination and fumbles were frequent.

New Haven, Conn.—Yale got back to work after a three-day rest and had some trouble finding its form again. The varsity was tossed back repeatedly by the scrubs in scrimmage.

Princeton, N. J.—Bill Marks, sophomore end, was given a thorough tryout in place of Smithies as the Princeton varsity scrimmaged the freshmen today. The regulars showed a fairly consistent attack, although the yearlings held for downs several times.

Cambridge, Mass.—Eddie Casey, Harvard coach, said he would not announce the Crimson's starting line-up for the Army game until after Friday's final workout. Harvard had a routine drill today.

New York—Columbia had a long passing drill with Linehan, who took Montgomery's place at quarter back, and Brominski and Tomb doing the heaving. It was followed by a defense drill against Navy plays put on by the scrub line and coaches' back field.

BEATEN at every turn of the game, but fighting with a savage courage born of desperation until the last vestige of hope had been destroyed, a weary and battered Central team trudged off the field yesterday, the victim of another high-powered Tech eleven that executed plays with the preciseness of mechanical men. The final score was 13-0.

It was a sorry-looking spectacle to see Central, a mere shell in comparison to the mighty Central teams of yore, doggedly attempting to withstand the bull-like rushes of Tech's back field. The final outcome, considered a moral victory for the Blue, is far cry from the days before Hardell put his stamp on Tech teams.

The smallest crowd to witness a Central-Tech football game in the last twenty years, approximately 4,000, saw the Maroon and Gray rush and pass its way to its twenty-first series victory and fifth consecutive high school championship. Before many minutes of the last period had elapsed many of these had departed.

Game Is Rough And Ready.

From the outset it was apparent that the teams would wage a bitter and bloody warfare. Central kicked off to Tech, and on the first play Johnny Gormely, Tech half back, was knocked cold by the charging Central warriors. Gormely's face was a mass of blood, but he remained in the game and was going strong at the finish.

On the second play, Carroll Shore, erstwhile Business basket-ball star and playing his first high school grid game at center for Central, was roughed a bit. Not long after this Jimmy Pistolas, Central guard, called for his nose guard, a massive piece of leather covering his entire face. The war was on.

The most serious injury of the day resulted in the third period, when Tech's captain and star end, Al Meiklejohn, suffered a sprained hip attempting to bring down Don Dunlop, who was returning a punt. Meiklejohn will be out of the football picture for at least ten days.

Play was continually in Central territory. A stubborn line saved the Blue from a worse defeat. Central's line made a game stand on the 5-yard stripe in the first period, where Tech arrived after taking the opening kickoff. In the course of helping turn back Tech's rushes, Johnny Nicolopolous, guard, was evicted from the fray for slugging. Hay, who replaced him, was the only Central substitute to get into the game.

Brinkman Heaves To Score.

Not until the third period did Tech score again. The touchdown followed a fumble by Don Dunlop, on his own 15-yard line. A 9-yard pass from Brinkman to Gormely brought the ball to the 2-yard line, and Gormely plunged over after Pisano had failed to gain.

Don Dunlop was the only Central back to make any appreciable gains. Running with a deceptive fade-away stride, he showed to an advantage returning punts and sliding off-tackle. In Central's line, Capt. Hank Gibbons, Frank Koscia and Pistolas were towers of strength. But the real Central hero was little Bill Richardson, 140-pound half back, playing his first game.

Richardson Hero For Central.

Richardson hit the line like a veteran, and he took much punishment from the heavy Tech linemen, but never failed to come up ready for more. Richardson made more than his share of the tackles. Twice in the last period he prevented Tech from scoring. The first time he brought Gormely down from behind after the latter had received a pass and had a clear field to a touchdown. Almost immediately after he threw Mike Apperdi out of bounds on the 2-yard mark. This Maroon drive ended when a pass bounced off Coiner's chest over the goal line.

The final score is not indicative of the real power exhibited by Tech. The victors held Central to one first down and that the result of a penalty while plowing through the Mount Pleasant line for 10. Foley outkicked Gibbons by a comfortable margin, and Brinkman's superior passing was never questioned.

Central did not use its widely her-

Fast Thinking Turns Gallant Gesture Into Winning Score

The elite Giants—they are the important boys in Nashville Negro football teams—were playing the Chattanooga Wolverines. The Giants were supposed to be the better team and yet they were tied, 13 to 13, with only a second to play and the ball in Chattanooga's possession.

The Wolverines snapped the ball and it went to a half back, who started around end. Then the gun sounded, telling that the game's time had expired.

The half back stopped and then, being a friendly Negro, walked over to the dejected mustached quarter back, patted him on the shoulder and handed him the ball—a gallant gesture.

The mustached one aired out for Chattanooga's goal. It was a touchdown easily and Nashville won, 19 to 13.

Officials ruled the half back's gallant gesture an intercepted pass. The rules say a play started just as the game ends must be completed before the game officially comes to a close.

FUTURITY HOPES TRAIL BURNING FEET IN PIMLICO FEATURE

Gilbert Rides 5-1 Shot to Victory

By WALTER HAIGHT
(Post Staff Correspondent).

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Md., Nov. 2.—Moe Lowenstein won today's Pimlico feature with Burning Feet, a gelded son of Transmute, but Moe was not a very happy man after the race despite the victory. His displeasure dates back to January of 1930, when the foal of Petrol was not nomintaed for the $40,000 added Pimlico Futurity, to be run here on Saturday. Four of the juveniles expected to face the post in that classic were behind Burning Feet today. They are Pompet, which finished second; Admiral Cary T. Grayson's Hope To Do, which finished third and is trained by Lowenstein; Dominus and Silent Shot.

Hope To Do and Burning Feet went to the post as the Grayson-Lowenstein entry and the crowd of some 10,000 saw a perfectly run entry—something that is often planned in the paddock, but seldom materializes in actual competition. Hope To Do set a lightning pace that carried several contenders with him, and Burning Feet came from far back to take the purse when the stablemate tired.

Burning Feet Far Back.

Burning Feet was seventh as the field rounded the clubhouse turn and moved up behind Pompet on the dash up the back stretch to take the lead at the quarter pole and coast home. The entry paid a $13.40 mutuel.

The mile-and-70-yard race was run over a drying-out track in 1:46 2-5.

Mr. G. H. (Pete) Bostwick walked to the jockeys' room, smiling to a chorus of boos. Bostwick essayed to win with his own horse, Masked Knight, and the public thought that he would, backing the son of Pompey down to 50 cents on the dollar.

But the millionaire gentleman rider was not the equal of Jockey F. Munden in a stretch duel and as a result was forced to finish a half-length behind Magyar, a colt which raced with varying success in Canada. Magyar thrilled the hearts of the long-shot players with a $32.70 mutuel.

Favorite players were beginning to feel uneasy about Luckite as the steeplechase field arrived at the twelfth jump. The public choice had been rated far back in the field for the first mile and a half and had moved up to third place behind the lead of Alpheus and Shylock. It appeared that one of the pair would show the way home. But then came the evils of jumping races. Alpheus fell and then Shylock fell and all the king's horses and all the king's men couldn't put them together again, at least for this race. So Luckite's third position became first position and he galloped to the wire.

McGinnis Given Thrill.

At that Jockey McGinnis got a thrill out of the finish. The riderless Shylock was right on the heels of Luckite and the boy believed until the last few strides that he was being hard pressed. Second money went to Sir Sweep, with Moonstruck, 22 lengths behind the place horse, awarded third honors.

Flora Canter, under a rousing ride by Callahan, proved a worthy favorite in the second race, hopping to the front with the rise of the barrier and holding the lead to the finish. However, Callahan was forced to turn on top speed the last sixteenth to stall off the closing rushes of Changeable and Fair Billy, a pair of longshots. It was a graduation from the maiden ranks for Flora Canter.

General A turned in a neat victory in the third dace, a sprint for older horses, staying behind the fast pace set by Vander Pool and Proteus to take the lead in the stretch and hold the closing drive of Mountain Elk safe. Third money went to Up, an outsider.

Alexandria Eleven To Face Lane High

Alexandria, Va., Nov. 2.—Alexandria High School football warriors will invade Charlottesville tomorrow for a game with Lane High School, runners-up for the State football title in 1931.

The game will be played in Venerable Stadium, and will be one of the features of the teachers' conference now in session at Charlottesville.

Last season the "Twins" won from the Lane gridders, 14-13. A touchdown in the last three minutes of the game tied the score and Jimmy Bruin, star half back, kicked the extra points to win the contest.

Givens will carry 18 players on the trip. His team is badly crippled as several of the boys failed to meet scholastic requirements.

PIMLICO RACE TRACK.

DEAR AL:

Not much to report today. My two winners yesterday were nothing to brag about. It took two falls before I got Luckite home and Flora Canter might as well have paid off in cigar store coupons after a neck decision. The majority of my horses were in the money upsetting each other. Brother Pete Bostwick, trying with all his might to win, stopped Masked Knight. His attempt to put up a driving finish was humorous. It looked like a case of spare-the-whip-and-spoil-the-horse. Pete was still laughing when he weighed out. However, Masked Knight's backers were booing. Some of the boys went right down to the judges' stand to give him some close-up razzberries. But Pete held his head high as if to say: "That's my horse. What's it to you, how I ride him?" BILL.

FIRST RACE—CHATTERFOL may a bit over his head in this company, but showed a world of finishing ability with maidens at Laurel. His last was over a course he apparently disliked. RESERVIST was a smart one last out and is dangerous. SWINHAVEN to show.

SECOND RACE—FRENCH KNIGHT has been this route twice and has given a good account of himself on each trip. Appears to be ready for brackets in this. GIFT MAGIC and STANDOUT to battle it out for the rest.

THIRD RACE—COLOSSAL raced so well at Laurel that I can't chase him off the top of a field of this sort. HACKY H, which I picked in the money at a big price, can place here. The honest THE DOCTOR for the show.

FOURTH RACE—JUNGLE KING is my long-shot special in this. Comes to me from the clockers. Don't try to get rich. A deuce across the board will return a neat profit. ISEULT and RUSH HOUR for the rest.

FIFTH RACE—MATE, at 109 pounds, probably will draw Steffen for a rider and on Laurel form should take these. ST. BRIDEAUX is the wake-up horse in this. PILATE for the show.

SIXTH RACE—THE POINT handled a field of this kind at Laurel and can do it here, I believe. ALLANAH and BLACK WATCH for the remainder.

SEVENTH RACE—MISS CORRINE, SUN VIR and MODERN TIMES. At least, I'm putting them in that order.

SIR SWEEP, prominent throughout, was easily best of the others. MOONSTRUCK, allowed to drop far out of contention, was never able to enter into a forward position. DEGAS went well for a mile and one half. FIVE O'CLOCK was outrun. SHYLOCK and ALPHEUS were racing on even terms coming to the twelfth fence where they both fell. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLORA CANTER, $3.70, $2.90, $2.60; CHANGEABLE, $11.20, $6.40; FAIR BILLY, $3.80.

FLORA CANTER moved into a winning lead after the opening furlong, was kept in the first of the former footing, but, when clear through the final stages and had to be sharply ridden to stall off CHANGEABLE. Latter worked her way up on the inside to enter contention, was placed to punishment and was wearing the winner down gradually. FAIR BILLY, kept under strong urging, finished with good speed nearing the finish. GRAMARYE could not seriously threaten the winner early, but closed up ground at the end. MISS TEENIE lacked early speed and went wide while closing ground. DAISES BOY closed a good gap. GLEN HUNT and MOUNT VERNON tired.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:11½. Off at 2:12½. Winner, Mrs. A. Carfan's br. c. (4), by General Thatcher—Anmagh. Trained by L. Williams. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 2-5, 0:48, 1:14.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GENERAL A., $16.60, $8.50, $5.00; MOUNTAIN ELK, $9.10, $6.30; UP, $10.80.

GENERAL A., rated in near attendance of the leaders, moved into the lead with a rush when entering the home stretch and held MOUNTAIN ELK safe. Latter, a strong factor from the start, finished gamely but could not threaten the winner. UP, forced to race on the outside, closed in determined fashion. MINTON saved ground entering the home stretch and was racing resolutely at the end. PROTEUS, used up racing with VANDERPOOL, VANDERPOOL had speed for five furlongs while racing in hand, but stopped suddenly. LITTLE AMERICA was not persevered with and raced disgracefully. She lost ground all the way and came extremely wide into the home stretch, and can do decidedly better.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 2:41. Off at 2:43. Winner, M. Lowenstein's ch. g. (2), by Transmute—Penol. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:48 3-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:41, 1:46 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BURNING FEET (C. T. Grayson-M. Lowenstein entry), $13.40, $5.80, $5.00; POMPET, $4.90, $3.40; HOPE TO DO (C. T. Grayson-M. Lowenstein entry), $6.00.

BURNING FEET, favored by the fast pace, moved up strongly when put to a drive, swung to the outside of the leaders when nearing the home stretch, took off the pacemakers and drew out at will. POMPET, a bit wide for firm footing, reached a forward position rapidly, but was no match for the winner. HOPE TO DO, used up to race his early contenders into defeat, weakened fast at the end. KEGGY went evenly throughout. SILENT SHOT passed tiring horses. Malley kept DOMINUS in the worst going and his mount tired from being rushed all the way. BLESSED EVENT weakened early.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; allowances. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:16. Off at 3:19. Winner, Mrs. C. O. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAGYAR, $32.70, $7.10, $3.70; MASKED KNIGHT, $2.80, $2.50; BROADWAY LIGHTS, $2.50.

MAGYAR, taken to the outside when reaching the back stretch, reached the leaders gradually, came around MASKED KNIGHT when straightened into the home stretch and Munden outrode Bostwick when it came to a finish. MASKED KNIGHT, in the deepest footing most of the trip, raced BROADWAY LIGHTS into defeat, but his rider was of little help when it came to a drive. BROADWAY LIGHTS forced a steady pace and held on willingly when the real test came. VILLAGE VAMP had no excuses. SAMPLE BALLOT was overmatched.

SIXTH RACE—One and three-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:46½. Off at 3:50. Winner, N. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KNEEHIGH, $10.00, $4.90, $3.90; BRANDON ROSE, $4.60, $3.00; DESPOIL, $16.40.

KNEEHIGH, intelligently handled, was not hurried in the early stages when taken out into the best footing, moved up resolutely when put to a drive, wore the leaders down, but had to be kept under strong urging to outstay BRANDON ROSE. Latter, rushed hard to take command early, had a lot taken out of her holding to her lead while racing with MATADI and WISHING STAR, but came again at the end. DESPOIL worked his way up steadily and closed with good courage. ALCMAN raced up to the leaders, but faltered in the final drive. WISHING STAR was poorly handled and raced in the worst footing. MATADI showed improvement.

SEVENTH RACE—One and three-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:21. Off at 4:24½. Winner, J. E. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DEEDIE, $6.50, $3.80, $2.90; NEGOPOLI, $5.50, $4.10; MARSE ROBERT, $4.10.

DEEDIE, steadied close to the leaders early, moved to the front with a rush, responded to punishment and held NEGOPOLI safe. Latter, closer up than usual, made a determined effort when approaching the home stretch, but was not good enough. MARSE ROBERT, under restraint while close to the leaders, weakened in the final drive. SYRIAC tired. GENERAL COURT was tipped and used up chasing SYRIAC. ASTRAKHAN was outrun.

American U. Battles Gallaudet Saturday

Washington's only intra-city football game of the year will be played Saturday afternoon at American University field between American University and Gallaudet.

American U. ended a losing streak of more than a year's duration early this season, but once more is back to losing ways. Gallaudet has not won a game in more than a year.

There is little to choose between the two teams, but American is believed to have a slight edge, largely because of their triple-threat back, George Borsari.

Mohawks Seek Kicker For Brooklyn Contest

In a predicament similar to that of a ship without a sail, the Mohawks are still seeking a capable kicker for Sunday's game with the Brooklyn Bulldogs. Club officials are attempting to regain the services of Fee Collier, but Collier, if he has any desire to rejoin the club which dismissed him earlier in the season, has not shown it.

Dick Allen and Frank Deckman, both of whom were on the injured list, will be available Sunday. Allen has been brushing up on the art of booting the pigskin and may do the punting against the Bulldogs.

LONDOS HERE IN BATTLE TONIGHT

Dusek Meets Champion in Feature at Auditorium.

JIM LONDOS, handsomest of all the boys who live by the fret of their brows, rassles again at the Washington Auditorium tonight against Rudy Dusek, favorite of Washington's mat audiences. Londos arrives in town today, goes through his motions tonight about 10 o'clock, and shoves off for other growling pastures.

Paying no attention to the edict of several State boxing commissions that he is no longer champion, Londos has led a tremendously active campaign of late, wrestling about four nights a week and more or less carrying the limping game around on his huge shoulders.

Dusek has been bumping off competition in old-time style of late, his latest conquest being Pat McKay, who beat Fred Grobmeier the week before.

The supporting card tonight, which starts at 8:30 o'clock, is made up of the customary four bouts, but in keeping with the appearance of Londos, some of the better boys have been corralled for the subsidiary leering.

Stecher to Show On Card.

Joe Stecher, methodical former champion and still one of the best, meets Ernie Dusek in the semiwind-up. Stecher is nearing 40, but is still close to his peak. Young Dusek is just over 20, but should hold his own tonight with the older and more experienced man—at least for a while. Stecher's leg scissors probably will win for him in the long run.

Gino Garibaldi, favorite of many local fans, meets George McLeod, dependable second rater, in another interesting preliminary. Garibaldi was the hero of the summer season here, but lost to Dusek at the start of the indoor year.

Chief White Feather, slugging Indian rassler, meets George Vassell in another bout. White Feather, who used to be Max Schmeling's sparring partner, should find Vassell's chin a fine landing field for the short rights to the jaw when the referee's not looking. In the other bout Everett Marshall meets Alex Aberg.

Women, escorted by paying customers, are admitted free.

Playground Teams Receive Post Cups

Commissioner Will Present Trophies and Medals to Track Winners.

The Washington Post cups officially will be presented the winning teams, both girls and boys, of the 1932 interplayground track meet Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the District Building. Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer will make the presentation.

At the same time, medal winners in all divisions will receive their rewards. Georgetown triumphed in the girls' division, and Rosedale won the boys' meet. Several hundred boys and girls will receive medals.

G. U. PREP JUNIORS WIN.

Stock Prices Cut 1.9 Points As Trading Volume Mounts

Early Firmness Is Routed; Day's Turnover Rises to 1,099,790 Shares.

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Stock trading picked up momentum on a last-hour reaction today. Final prices were not so much lower on balance, but the only appreciable activity was while quotations were sliding off. Sales totaled 1,099,790 shares, half of which changed hands in the final 50 minutes.

The market firmed unspectacularly up to noon on the strength of a little short covering prompted, apparently, by word that steel production was being maintained and that output of electric power was still looking upward. However, sentiment toward the rail shares was somewhat less friendly, possibly because midweek loadings figures pointed to seasonal slackening.

Frisco common stock sold off more than a point; eventually, most of the leading carriers worked 1 to 3 lower, a slightly larger range of losses than was shown elsewhere.

Drug, Inc., moved against the general trend with an extreme advance of 2½, turning over briskly as a regular dividend of $1 a share was voted. Oils were steady to firm, assisted by the decline in crude production and by favorable action on the dividends of Indiana and California Standards.

American Telephone bowed under par again when pressure became rather pronounced, making a net loss of something more than a point. Allied Chemical, U. S. Steel, Consolidated Gas, North American, Case, Harvester, United Aircraft, Westinghouse and American Tobacco B sagged 1½ to 2½; otherwise losses tended to be smaller, except in the railroad section.

The wheat market's tone lent assistance to stocks during the very mild forenoon upturn; commodities, in fact, held much better than securities, both wheat and cotton ending the day virtually unchanged.

Trading increased in volume to 1,099,790 shares, half of which changed hands in the last 50 minutes of the session. The average loss was 1.9 points. Drug, Inc., made an extreme advance of 2½ points. Oils were steady and firm.

Bonds.

Weakness of secondary rails sent bonds six-tenths of a point lower. Trading activity increased, and the volume mounted to $7,363,000, or more than $1,000,000 above Tuesday's record. Utilities followed rails in the decline.

Curb.

Prices fell sharply in late trading. Utilities lost from fractions to 2 points. Oils resisted selling pressure. Aluminum suffered a break of 4½ points. The sales volume increased to 150,000 shares.

Wheat.

Broadening of overseas demand for Canadian wheat lifted Chicago values somewhat, and resulted in the market closing unchanged to ¼ cent higher. Corn and oats were down. December wheat sold at 43¼ to 43⅝ cents.

Cotton.

Prices held steadily in early trading, but yielded slightly near the close. December contracts remained unchanged at 6.02. Trade buying firmed quotations. The net result was 1 point decline to 2 points advance. Losses at Liverpool were offset by the rise in sterling.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

London—After a spectacular rise in the government's new loan and the advance in sterling exchange, gilt-edged securities reacted on the stock exchange due to profit taking, but good buying sustained values at prices well over Monday's closing. Gold mining shares and industrials moved higher while others were easy. The closing was irregular.

Pa—Impending political events in the United States and Europe restrained activity on the bourse. The new 4½ centum rente was traded in frequently, while bank stocks firmed slightly. The market closed irregular.

CURB SINKS LOWER ON HEAVIER TRADING

Utilities Lose Two Points as Dealing Increases to 150,000 Shares.

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Prices fell rather sharply in the late trading in today's curb market, with trading quickening on the decline. The turnover amounted to 150,000 shares, against 100,000 yesterday.

Stocks which had figured most sharply in the summer rally were among those to encounter the severest pressure, the utilities losing from fractions to about 2 points.

Electric Bond & Share common gave up about 2, while the 6 per cent preferred dipped 1. American Gas & Electric, American Superpower, Cities Service, and United Light & Power A were fractionally lower. Niagara Hudson Power held steady. The oils presented a stubborn front against selling. Standard of Indiana was unchanged. Standard of Kentucky dipped a shade. Gulf was down a substantial fraction. Humble gained a point.

In the specialty group, Aluminum Co. suffered a 4½-point break in an odd-lot sale. Newmont, which was fairly active, lost more than 3 points. A. O. Smith and Singer Manufacturing held their losses to less than a point.

Pennroad Corporation, apparently in sympathy with the weakness of rail stocks on the big board, yielded a fraction. Woolworth, Ltd., and the Ford issues were steady.

Bank Finance Improvement Is Hailed as Recovery Sign

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—The recent improvement in the financial position of American banks, which has been widely commented on in current bank reviews, including that at the New York Federal Reserve Bank, is being hailed by business leaders as an indication that world recovery can be readily financed, once it gets well under way.

The unexpectedly good results of foreign government refunding plans, whereby their maturing bonds have been replaced by obligations bearing lower interest coupons, have been regarded as proof that the financial machinery of Great Britain and France has been well lubricated. And on this side of the Atlantic, there have been notable gains recorded in the past several months toward credit expansion.

This expansion, which has been accompanied by a gain of nearly $1,000,000,000 in the past half year in deposits of leading New York banks, although as yet this has not extended in more than nominal degree to banks outside New York, has been largely the result of two wholesome forces at work. One has been the return of gold to this country, after its flight earlier in the year, and the other has been the return of hoarded money, which with reviving confidence has gradually been released from the tin boxes of hoarders and allowed to work back to the banks.

Accompanying this measureable gain has been a sharp falling off in the number of bank suspensions. In January there were 342 bank closings. In June, when the worldwide run on American gold was nearing an end, there were 151. In July, it fell to 132, in August to 85 and in September and October to 65 each, according to a tabulation presented in the monthly survey of the National City Bank.

With October figures of bank suspensions falling to one of the smallest monthly totals for the year to date, a precedent of two years' standing was smashed. In both 1930 and 1931 the peak of our bank troubles was witnessed in October, but this year the month was one of comparative calm. Sixteen banks reopened during the period.

Oil Yield Reduced By 62,550 Barrels

Refineries Operate at Rate of 56.5 Per Cent; Exports Drop.

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States decreased 62,550 barrels in the week ended October 29, totaling 2,096,600 barrels, the American Petroleum Institute's weekly summary indicates. Daily average production east of California decreased 49,550 barrels to 1,621,300 barrels.

Refineries representing 93.6 per cent of estimated total capacity, operated at 56.5 per cent of their capacity, reported daily average runs of crude oil to stills as 2,040,000 barrels. Daily average the previous week for refineries representing 93.6 per cent of total, operated at 59.4 per cent of capacity, was 2,145,000 barrels.

Daily average cracked gasoline by refineries representing 95.4 per cent of total charging capacity was 438,000 barrels. Daily average the previous week by refineries representing 95.4 per cent of total was 448,000 barrels. Imports of crude and refined oils at principal United States ports totaled 778,000 barrels against 621,000 barrels.

GOLD MOVEMENT.

New York, Nov. 2.—(A.P.)—Today's gold statement of the New York Federal Reserve Bank reported an importation of $38,200 from Mexico. There were no other changes.

Power Production At New High Level

Weekly Gain in Keeping With Improvement in Period of 1931.

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Power production in the week ended October 29 went to a new high level for the autumn recovery period, the National Electric Light Association report showed today, the weekly gain keeping pace with the improvement recorded in the corresponding period of 1931. In the same periods of 1930 and 1929, power production turned downward in contrast with the gains established in the same periods during the two following years.

Output last week totaled 1,533,028,000 kilowatt hours against 1,528,145,000 the previous week. Production in the October 29 week was 7.2 per cent below the same 1931 week, unchanged from the previous week. Output in New England was 2.7 per cent below the corresponding 1931 week. For the Atlantic seaboard the margin of decline was 3.1 per cent for the central industrial region, 9.2 per cent, and for the Pacific Coast, 7.8 per cent.

Last week's output of 1,533,028,000 kilowatt hours compared with 1,506,219,000 in the first week of October and with 1,443,977,000 in the first full week of September, which included the Labor Day holiday.

RAILS CROWD BONDS SIX-TENTHS LOWER

Utilities Also Join Losses as Trading Is Increased to $7,363,000.

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Weakness of secondary rail loans today further unsettled a bond market that has been rather nervous during the past several sessions.

Trading activity increased on the decline and sales totaled $7,363,000, par value, which, although considerably under the normal volume, was more than $1,000,000 above yesterday's aggregate. The average for 60 domestic corporate bonds dropped sixtenths of a point, the most severe reaction since the early part of October.

Among the most active rail losers were some issues of Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake Corporation, St. Paul, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Erie, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, Frisco, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific.

The utilities were not far behind the carriers, the easier ones including loans of American & Foreign Power, International Telephone, Columbia Gas, New Orleans Power and North American Edison. Among the industrials, some of the oils improved moderately, but amusement bonds, such as Loew's and Warner Bros., sagged. Paramount Publix 5½s, however, gained slightly.

Foreign obligations generally were dull and irregular. The largest turnover was in British 5½s, which gained one-half point and then reacted to close unchanged. The United Kingdom will tomorrow offer a new war conversion loan of £300,000,000. Australian maturities firmed, as did some of the Japanese. The Argentines eased.

The United States Government list was quiet and a trifle lower after earlier firmness.

Cigar Stores' Creditors Charge Undervaluation

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Counsel for a group of landlord creditors today, before Referee Irwin Kurtz, attempted to support a claim that a stock and bond holdings of the bankrupt United Cigar Stores Co. of America and its Delaware subsidiary were greatly undervalued in the schedules.

Mortimer Hayes, counsel for the landlord group, contended that securities which were carried in the schedules at $1,250,000 were actually worth upward of $20,000,000.

Wreck of Company Is Laid to Eaton

Baltimore, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Cyrus S. Eaton, founder of Continental Shares, Inc., a Cleveland investment trust incorporated in Maryland for which a receivership is being asked, was charged today with having "wrecked" it by using the company to further his own financial interest. This charge was made by Carl Tresemer, attorney for George L. Gugle, stockholder who brought the suit, as the opening argument in the case was made before Judge H. Arthur Stump in circuit court here.

Mr. Tresemer also claimed that the present directors of the company some of whom, he said, are presidents of banks, to which the investment trust owes money, have operated it to the advantage of their own concern.

George Weems Williams, attorney for the defendant company, in answering Tresemer's allegations, contended that questions of internal management were presented to the court by the prosecutors and urged that no receivership be named. Many stockholders of the company had re-elected the present management last spring, he said, pointing out that millions of dollars in dividends had been paid out to stockholders.

COTTON PRICES HIT BY SOUTHERN SALES

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Cotton held steady today on Liverpool and trade buying, but slight reactions occurred toward the close under somewhat increased Southern and local selling owing to late weakness in the stock market.

December contracts sold off from 6.11 to 6.02, or to the previous closing level and closed at the latter figure. The general market closed barely steady at a net decline of 1 point to an advance of 2 points.

The market was 1 to 3 points higher in sympathy with relatively steady Liverpool cables combined with buying from that source as well as continued trade price fixing, which has been the principle source of demand recently.

Prices Hold Steady.

Prices rose 8 to 11 points and held relatively steady until near the close. Final prices were at or within a point of the lowest, under Southern and local selling.

The weekly weather report indicated mostly fair conditions in the West, with harvesting making fair to good advance there.

Moderate declines at Liverpool were more than offset by advances in sterling, the market there reporting hedging and local liquidation absorbed by Bombay buying. The outlook in the spinning section at Manchester was described as more hopeful.

Exports today, 71,197, making 2,149,098 so far this season. Port receipts, 73,927. United States port stocks, 4,303,559.

WHEAT VALUES FIRM ON EXPORT DEALINGS

Market Closes Unchanged to ¼ Cent Higher; Corn and Oats Lower.

Chicago, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Sudden big broadening of overseas demand for wheat from Canada lifted Chicago wheat values today, but the effect proved only transient. United States wheat export trade was a virtual myth.

It developed that most of today's Canadian export business, about 2,000,000 bushels, was with Great Britain, and belief was general here that British government refusal to permit Canadian wheat to receive preferential tariff treatment when shipped from United States ports had been a determining factor in the enlargement of purchases from Canada. Talk was heard that further huge quantities of Canadian wheat for shipment to Great Britain were likely between now and the close of navigation on the St. Lawrence.

Wheat in Chicago closed nervous, at exactly the same as yesterday's finish to ¼ cent higher; corn, unchanged to ¼ lower; oats, unchanged to ⅛@¼ off; and provisions, unchanged to 5 cents up.

Assistance to Farmers.

Assisting to give comparative firmness to wheat values today were reports from Missouri River points that cash wheat business the last few days had been on a large scale at prices materially over a Chicago basis. Domestic mills were reported as the chief takers, and a decided improvement of flour demand was indicated. On the other hand, Canada and Argentina were both offering wheat cheaper abroad, and it was asserted that incentives to put United States wheat on an export basis were nullified owing to the fact that every attempt in this direction was matched by parallel moves on the part of competing countries.

A jump in British exchange rates today tended at least temporarily to promote fractional upturns in Chicago wheat quotations and to halt low-price record breaking that had been almost continuous for about a week. Another effect of the rise in sterling was to make Liverpool wheat prices actuatlly higher as translated into dollars, although formally lower in terms of British currency. There was much speculative buying here at times against simultaneous equal sales in Winnipeg.

Corn and oats were steadied by intimations of corn export business, but no sizable purchases for overseas were confirmed.

SIMS' QUARTET WINS VANDERBILT TROPHY

Donor Is on Victorious Cup Team First Time While Captain Repeats.

New York, Nov. 2 (A.P.).—P. Hal Sims, who won the Vanderbilt Cup last year with his famous "Four Horsemen," captured it again tonight with a contract team composed of Willard S. Karn, Waldemar von Zedtwitz and Harold S. Vanderbilt.

It was the first time Vanderbilt ever has won the squat silver trophy he put up in 1928 and which since has come to symbolize team supremacy in the world of bridge.

Another Florida Flogging Spurs Hunt for Mobsters

Operations Spread to West Coast as Sarasota Farmer Is Abducted and Beaten; Second Resident of Area, Absent From Home, Escapes.

Sarasota, Fla., Nov. 2 (A.P.).—Mobsters operating like those who beat twenty people in Jacksonville recently, invaded this community last night, abducted a farmer and flogged him with a rubber hose.

The victim, Charles Rawls, said the gang dragged him out of the house in his night clothes, beat him severely with the hose, and ended up by pounding him with a pistol butt.

Another farmer residing nearby reported a crowd came to his home, asked members of his family for whisky, and then inquired for him. He was away and the men finally departed after they were convinced of his absence.

Circuit Judge Paul C. Albritton said he would call a special session of the grand jury, if necessary, to thwart an outbreak of mob violence in this section.

Sheriff W. A. Keen has started an investigation, but no arrests have been made. Officers said they are convinced the men do not live in the Sarasota section.

MAJ. BROWN SHIFTS 15 POLICEMEN FROM CARS TO FOOT DUTY

Order Follows Requests of Citizens; Aid of Banks Is Praised.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, yesterday ordered the transfer of fifteen men from duty in radio cars to foot duty as a step toward cementing cooperation of banks and business houses with the police to suppress crime. His action followed numerous requests from citizens to add to the number of men patrolling beats.

A previous order relieving men from unnecessary assignments for beats will, it is estimated, place 50 men in the precincts. A plan to concentrate uniformed men to patrol the business sections is rapidly being put into effect.

Approval of the new squad, organized to inform business houses how to safeguard against robbery, was voiced yesterday by a number of store proprietors. A delegation from the Mid-City Citizens Association visited Maj. Brown and commended his campaign against crime.

Suggests Safety Measures.

In an address to members of the District Bankers Association at their luncheon at the Willard Hotel yesterday afternoon, Assistant Superintendent Frank S. W. Burke reviewed criminal operations directed against banks in the city and suggested several safety measures.

The invitation to speak at the luncheon followed a letter sent to officials of local banks which introduced a plan of inspection, in which veteran detectives could survey the safety devices of the banking houses and suggest additional safeguard measures.

Immediate approval of the survey project was received from several banking officials. In a letter from J. Frank White, cashier of the National Bank of Washington, the plan was lauded as "a real constructive and efficient measure, one that should prove effective in forestalling the activities of criminals."

Thanks Bank for Aid.

The communication expressed the willingness of the establishment to receive the suggestions of police in safeguarding against robbery. The letter was answered by Maj. Brown, who thanked the bank for its cooperation.

In a note to Inspector Burke in reference to the letter, Maj. Brown said: "This early response to your campaign for cooperation on the part of banks and business establishments indicates that your activities will have beneficial results."

The intensive campaign against crime was organized by the Detective Bureau following indications that bandit operations would probably increase during the winter, due to financial conditions.

Cupola Restored in Plans

Action of District Commissioners May Cost Government More Than Initial Bid of $3,750 for Taft Junior High Project.

Despite previous indications of a united stand against the replacement of the moot cupola in the plans of the Taft Junior High School, now under construction at Eighteenth and Otis streets northeast, the District Commissioners yesterday decided to restore the architectural embellishment.

The cupola, which would have cost $3,750 under the original alternate bid, may now cost the District government more, as the initial bid was rejected. The Commissioners may now either accept another bid from the contractor, or they may order him to build the tower at cost plus the usual 15 per cent profit. Either procedure is likely to run the cost somewhat above $3,750.

Maj. John C. Gotwals, Engineer Commissioner, who eliminated the cupola from the plans as an economy measure, was overruled by the two civilian Commissioners, Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer and Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby. The latter two Commissioners, at a recent public hearing on the matter, presented every appearance of supporting the Engineer Commissioner.

The cupola was restored after the Fine Arts Commission, the Board of Education, the Burroughs Citizens Association, the District Chapter of the American Institute of Architects and other civic bodies had protested against Maj. Gotwals' action.

Yesterday Maj. Gotwals said that he expected to be criticized by the House subcommittee on appropriations for restoring the cupola, but he said he could stand it. Formerly he had explained his action as being in line with implied instructions from the committee to exercise every means of economy possible in school construction.

The Commissioners explained that their action yesterday was influenced considerably by the fact that the Fine Arts Commission had recommended the cupola's restoration. They denied that any congressional influence had been brought to bear on them.

FOUR PRIESTS READY FOR BENGAL MISSION

High Mass at Seminary Today to Speed Catholics on Daccan Trip.

A solemn high mass, as a part of farewell ceremonies attending the departure of four missionaries of the Congregation of Holy Cross for India, will be celebrated this morning in the chapel of the Foreign Mission Seminary, on Harwood road.

The Rev. George Pellegrin, C. S. C.; the Rev. Francis Quinn, C. S. C.; the Rev. James McGarvey, C. S. C., and Brother Neil, who for the past four years have specialized in mission science and Bengali at the Foreign Mission Seminary, will leave tonight for their assignment to the diocese of Dacca, Bengal, India.

En route to India they will stop in Rome for a special audience with the Pope.

Father Pellegrin will be the celebrant of the mass, assisted by Father Quinn, as deacon, and Father McGarvey, as subdeacon. The Right Rev. Timothy Crowley, C. S. C., bishop of Dacca diocese, will preside in the sanctuary.

Closing the ceremonies of departure, solemn benediction will take place tonight at 8 o'clock at the seminary. The departure sermon will be given by the Rev. Francis Goodall, C. S. C., who recently returned to the seminary after six years of missionary work in Bengal. Father Pellegrin will respond in behalf of the departing missionaries.

Taxicab Cruising Curb Is Sustained

Regulations of the joint board of District Commissioners and the Public Utilities Commission against taxicab cruising on F and G streets and Seventh street in the congested areas will continue to be enforced as the result of a decision handed down by Justice F. D. Letts in District Supreme Court.

The board was informed yesterday that the court had sustained the regulations, issued last August, in a test appeal by the Diamond Cab Co. The court also sustained the constitutionality of the joint traffic board.

Under the regulations, cab drivers may be arrested if they venture on any of the streets in question unless they are to discharge passengers or have particular calls from the restricted area.

Roller Skate Carnival To Be Conducted Today

The annual roller skate carnival of the Virginia avenue Playground will be held this afternoon, starting at 4 o'clock on L street southeast between Eighth and Ninth streets.

Races for various ages and sexes, a boxing match on skates and a hockey game between the boys and the girls are among the scheduled events. Miss T. Elizabeth Smith is director of the playground.

Policeman Halts Pants Theft and Saves Owner

Policeman W. C. C. Renn chanced along M street yesterday just in time to dash to the assistance of Meyer Levey, who was struggling with two colored men in front of his store at 3019 M street northwest and shouting wildly for police help.

One man was apprehended, but the other escaped. The man held said he was Clarence Reed, 29, 516 L street northwest. Levey told police the men grabbed a package of twelve pairs of trousers and attempted to flee with the merchandise.

Fireman Hurt on Duty Retired From Service

Walter H. Casey, District fireman, who was injured last March while fighting a two-alarm blaze on Twelfth street southwest, has been retired from the department. Mr. Casey has not yet recovered from a back injury and is still at the Naval Hospital.

He was a veteran of 10 years in the department and at the time of his retirement was attached to No. 10 Truck Company. His home is at 1215 Sixth street southwest.

LOU TAYLOR TAKES LEAD IN CHASE AT FOX HUNTER MEET

Second and Third Places Are Held by Washington Hounds Also.

Lou Taylor, smart young hound bred and owned by Hunt and Bland, of Washington, yesterday forged to the front in the second day of the $1,000 Twelfth Chase Futurity of the National Foxhunters Association.

The Hunt and Bland dog wrested first place from Randy, owned by A. G. Rolfe, also of Washington. Dancer Naylor, also a Rolfe dog, is in third place. The respective scores of the first three dogs now are 260, 230 and 150.

An unusual coincidence is that all three of the leaders are litter mates, having been sired by Champion Dancing Tramp out of Lucy Naylor.

Large Crowd Attends.

Ideal conditions prevailed as the horn sounded the beginning of the chase yesterday morning. A large throng of chase enthusiasts was on hand.

Fourth place was announced as having been tied for by Hampstead Rodes, owned by H. L. Small, of Esmont, Va., and Dancing Grace, owned by Hunt and Bland. Both have 140 points.

Other leaders who total 100 points are Hope K., Kanatzar & Baker, Richmond, Ky.; Jim K., Kanatzar & McClure, Richmond, Ky., and Doris Leavell, Wilmore, Ky.

Four youngsters were scratched. All were well up in the running. They were The Stir Up, Tygart Valley Kennels, Clarksburg, W. Va.; Music Forney, Benton Forney, Unionville, Md.; Clarkes Depression, D. E. Clarke, Washington and Red Flower, J. H. Starr, Blairsburg, Iowa. Sibly Dorton, Golden Valley Kennels, Forest City, N. C., also was scratched.

Challenge Cup Winner.

In the horse show at Rockville, Churchill Newcomb, Greenwood, Va., rode the same big hunter to victory in the National Challenge Cup event that had twice before carried away winning laurels. The win gave permanent possession of the cup to Newcomb. Results of the other seven events were withheld by the judges until today.

The $500 all-age stake will be started this morning, to run through Saturday. Final castings in the futurity will take place this afternoon.

Convicted of stealing the contents of a coin box in a newspaper honor rack, Steve Prymok, 36 years old, of no fixed address, yesterday was sent to jail for eight months by Police Court Judge John P. McMahon.

Prymok was arrested when a boy on a bicycle, who had been sent to trail him, notified a policeman at Third street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, who watched the man and arrested him after he tinkered with a rack.

A locksmith, to whom Prymok went to have a bunch of keys made, grew suspicious af him, and had the boy on the bicycle trail him until he saw a policeman. He was arrested Sunday and tried yesterday. Assistant United States Attorney Milford Schwartz prosecuted the case.

Foxhall School Contract Is Let, Despite Protests

Over the protests of a score of residents of Foxhall Village, the District Commissioners yesterday awarded a contract to A. Lloyd Goode, Inc., of Charlotte, N. C., for construction of the Foxhall School, on the west side of Foxhall road, between Q street and Volta place. The bid was $75,400.

The Board of Education had recommended construction of the school on the disputed site following a hearing although Foxhall Village residents complained that the school would draw an "undesirable" class of children. They urged that another site be bought on Reservoir road.

Court Puzzles Over Case of Miss Du Bois

Released on a $100 bond, Miss Elizabeth Du Bois, daughter of former Senator Du Bois, of Idaho, today is at liberty while Judge Ralph Given struggles with the problem of what to do about her conviction on twelve charges of violating traffic laws.

Yesterday Judge Given fined her $5 on each charge, and when she told him that she didn't have the money and that she would have to go to jail, he decided to release her on a small bond while he considers the question.

Miss Du Bois had warrants dating back to 1931 against her. She said she only recalled seeing two of them, but eleven policemen said they handed them out. The twelfth was unable to appear because of illness.

An increase of 38 deaths and 204 injuries due to traffic accidents was noted up to date, in contrast to the corresponding period of 1931, although the total number of accidents indicate a decrease of 401. The figures are:

Deaths	66	104
Accidents	7,098	6,697

PAY OF SUBSTITUTES AND CUSTODIANS CUT BY EDUCATION BOARD

Salaries of substitute teachers and custodians were ordered cut 8 1-3 per cent by the Board of Education yesterday to conform with the provisions of the economy act.

These substitute school employes receive a certain proportion of the salary of the regular teacher or custodian for whom they substitute on a per diem basis. Although the regular employes have been receiving the 8 1-3 per cent cut the substitutes escaped this deduction until the board took action yesterday. Salaries of $1,000 and under are exempt.

Recommendation that the cut be made was urged by the personnel committee of which Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle is chairman.

Book Stores Protest.

A complaint from three leading book stores of the city that a book store is being operated at McKinley High School was referred to Superintendent Frank W. Ballou. The dealers charged that the store is selling books to night school pupils.

Book exchanges were abolished by order of the board when the free textbook law for day schools was passed. The book dealers complain that the exchange at McKinley has been continued despite this order. The dealers point out this is unfair to them as the school book exchange is not required to pay rent, license or taxes.

Superintendent Ballou reported that an encouraging reception had been given the board's finance committee by the Bureau of Budget when hearings were held on forthcoming school appropriations. George M. Whitwell is chairman.

Teachers Appointed.

Ballou was authorized to apply to the American Association of Teachers Colleges for membership in the association of the Wilson and Miner Teachers Colleges. Membership in the association will give the two colleges standing with the grade A teaching colleges of the country.

R. L. Shanck was appointed social and English science teacher, and Ralph B. Kennard mathematics teacher at Wilson Teachers College.

Giant strides, parallel bars and ocean waves were ordered removed from elementary school playgrounds. This equipment was installed for the use of older children before the establishment of junior high schools.

The following schools were selected to exchange flags with schools in England: E. V. Brown, Takoma, Emery, Eckington, Ludlow and Morgan.

Woman Reports Clothing Stolen.

Mrs. Mazie Lacy, 3297 M street northwest, reported to police that clothing valued at $98.50 was stolen from her apartment yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Yuen-Li Liang Seized

Chinese Diplomat Arrested at Station Before Leaving for Europe; Pays Amount of Hotel Bill and Is Allowed to Proceed.

Arrested on a warrant sworn to by officials of the Cairo Hotel as he was preparing to board a train for New York, Dr. Yuen-Li Liang, prominent Chinese diplomat and formerly attached to the Chinese Legation in Washington, yesterday paid a $180 lodging bill to the hotel, and was released, so that he was able to embark for Europe last night, where he will attend the Geneva conference on the Lytton Manchuria report.

Claiming himself to be a representative of the Chinese government on an official mission, and carrying a diplomatic passport, Dr. Liang protested against being placed under arrest at Union Station by Headquarters Detective H. D. Robey, claiming that he had diplomatic immunity, although he is not registered as a diplomat at the State Department.

Drew Pearson, former Washington correspondent for the Baltimore Sun and now affiliated with the United States Daily, who accompanied Dr. Liang to his train, was said to have attempted to interfere when Detective Robey placed the Chinese statesman under arrest, and was taken to police headquarters.

The case was referred to United States Attorney Milton Schwartz, who ordered the two men released, after Dr. Liang settled with the Cairo. Officials there said that he left their hostelry a month ago, after staying there for four months. He was said to have left a number of personal effects, which included a legal library of about 300 volumes, at the hotel.

Charles K. Phillips, official at the hostelry, swore out a warrant for Dr. Liang, when he was informed of Dr. Liang's intended departure. Mr. Pearson, who had been parking his automobile outside of the station, after parting with his friend, remonstrated with the policeman, and sought to aid him in obtaining a release.

Elective School Board Symposium Plans Laid

Plans for a symposium on the subject of an elective school board for the District, to which members of Congress and representatives of every civic organization in the city will be invited to participate, were laid last night by the District of Columbia Public School Association, sponsors of the movement.

Charles I. Stengle, president of the association, announced the purpose of the meeting will be to obtain the views of both friends and opponents of the elective school board. A large number of organizations in Washington have gone on record in favor of an elective board, it was announced. One of these is the Washington Chamber of Commerce.

Ways of meeting depression demands for economy, without detriment to school children, were described to the association by Miss Alice Barrows, specialist in school-building problems of the United States Education office.

Pointing to the platoon school system as an example, Miss Barrows showed how the advanced school methods of today can be retained in elementary school buildings with the same cost per capita as under old methods. This can be brought about through constant utilization of all school space, she showed.

Miss Barrows' suggestions were referred to the committee on school organization of the association, of which K. P. Armstrong is chairman, for study. Members of the association after hearing Miss Barrows' talk criticized the fact that many rooms in Washington elementary schools are not used at certain periods of the day. Miss Barrows stated that she was not applying her remarks to the District, but to schools in general.

Ace Berry, Theater Man, Wins $7,500 Damages

Ace Berry, one time manager of Keith's Theater and now a division manager of R.K.O., stationed in Albany, N. Y., yesterday was given a verdict for $7,500 in District Supreme Court. A jury in the court of Justice Jesse C. Adkins awarded that amount for injuries Berry suffered when he was struck by a cab operated by Oden C. Catterton, in December 1930.

Through Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer, Berry showed the jury that the machine in which he was riding was hit by Catterton's machine at Nineteenth and Q streets northwest. The suit was against Catterton and not the company for which Catterton was driving.

Children at Gallinger Exhibit Handiwork

The work of the children is under direction of Mrs. Elizabeth M. Huff, who was a practice teacher of community activities in Pittsburgh, Pa.

K. of C. to Hold Chest Night.

Spalding Council, Knights of Columbus, will observe "Community Chest Night" at their meeting at the K. of C. Hall on Tenth street tonight, according to an announcement by J. Fred Brady, grand knight of the council. Francis Miller, welfare officer of the American Legion, will be the principal speaker.

PARK DEVELOPMENT IS JEOPARDIZED BY BUDGET BUREAU ACT

Request for $3,000,00 by Planning Commission Is Rejected.

Proposed park and playground expansion, development of the George Washington Memorial highway and completion of the Fort Drive, connecting Civil War forts and circling the city, will be seriously jeopardized unless Congress comes to the aid of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

A request by the commission for $3,000,000 to purchase land and other items prepared for the 1934 budget was refused by the Budget Bureau, it was learned yesterday.

Elaborate Program Mapped.

An elaborate program mapped out by the commission, calling for land purchases in the District and adjoining areas to develop parks, playgrounds and recreation centers, can not be carried out, officials said, without sufficient funds for the coming fiscal year. Prospects for the future "are dim indeed," the commission declared.

Officials of the commission pointed out that much land has already been purchased, particularly for the Fort drive, and additional land must be acquired before it is built up.

Personnel Slash Is Faced.

No money was secured from Congress for this year's work and the commission was directed to save enough from the funds on hand to continue its work. With the Budget Bureau's refusal for additional money, the commission declared that not only will the land-purchasing activities be impaired, but a sharp reduction in employes must be made.

Gasoline Man Beaten Again by Same Thugs

Attacked and severely beaten early yesterday by two colored men, whom he recognized as former assailants, Clinton S. Baker, 27, a gasoline station attendant, was reported as "resting easily" last night in Georgetown Hospital.

Baker was preparing to close his station at 4812 Conduit road, when the two men appeared, and after threatening his life, struck him with a blunt instrument, and escaped without attempting robbery. Baker said the same pair attacked him in the same manner about two years ago.

$20,000 Accident Damages Asked.

Adolph Peiffer, 4700 Connecticut avenue, yesterday brought suit against Irwin H. Mann and Marcus W. Pugh, trading as the General Poultry Co., 1113 Water street southwest, for $20,000 damages. Through Attorneys T. M. Wampler and J. C. Turco, Peiffer claimed he had been knocked down and seriously hurt by a truck of the defendants on Twelfth street southwest last December.

A 5-year plan that made good

FIVE years ago we looked around for a line of men's clothing that would answer the demand for custom-type apparel, and yet yet come within bounds of reason in price. We cast our lot with the nationally famous Tex-Wear products. We planned to create a virtual monopoly on these clothes in this section of the country.

In celebrating the 5th Anniversary of Tex-Wear at The Hecht Co. we're happy to announce that our plan more than made good in 5 years. And this year the man who buys a Tex-Wear garment will find that he comes in for a pleasant surprise . . . since all Tex-Wear have been vastly improved in quality and production and prices are the lowest in more than a score of years.
